5 Burn to Death, 50 Missing as Fire Destroys Ship City of Baltimore After Blast in Chesapeake Bay

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, Md. (Friday), July 30.—A Chesapeake Bay steamer bound for Virginia's seaside vacation lands burst into a solid wall of flame last night and from scattered shoreline rescue points a known death toll of five with upwards of 50 persons unaccounted for was compiled early today.

The steamer, City of Baltimore, carrying an estimated 96 persons, including members of the crew, was enveloped in fire like a "ball of flame" off Seven Foot Knoll en route to Norfolk about 7:30 p. m.

Her passengers, about 50 in number, were lounging in the ship's salons or finishing their dinner in the dining room when members of the crew ran up from the hold crying, "Fire."

Within the space of three minutes, survivors said, the entire ship was in flames, men and women were huddled in the bow and crying pitifully for rescue boats to brave the heat and come alongside. Scores were hanging to the rail and dropping into the water.

Five bodies, all of them severely burned, were brought in ambulances to hospitals here. Many persons are believed to have perished when they leaped into the water to escape death by fire. One report said 11 bodies floated ashore near Gibson Island.

Some of the survivors were coming ashore at Bayside, Md., where three of the bodies were washed up.

Toll of Sixty Feared.

Seven-Foot Knoll is about 14 miles below Baltimore, and water at this point runs shallow many yards out from the shore.

First reports on the extent of the disaster and its cause were conflicting. Baltimore police and fire officials said an explosion was the cause, and that flames almost immediately enveloped the entire ship. They said reports to them were that the death toll would reach 60, but this was without confirmation.

Reports that a terrific explosion either preceded or accompanied the fire were borne out by accounts of the disaster by the first eye witnesses.

They said they had no official passenger list, that the only one available was in the hands of the purser, who logged names of passengers as they came aboard.

One of the first passengers rescued, John H. Bing, of Baltimore, said he was standing in the ships' salon with Paul F. Ships and Robert Long, both of Shamokin, Pa., "when a member of the crew ran through saying the boat was on fire. Then other members of the crew started toward the hold of the ship with hose. Smoke came out of the hold.

Passengers Hang Over Sides.

"In a few moments the crew came back, forced out of the hold by the fire. The passengers went to the forward deck and the crew and the officers told the passengers to put on life preservers.

"The passengers did this, but in a few minutes the fire got so bad that the passengers went over the side and hung by their hands.

"The fire soon got too hot for them and they started to drop off. We were picked up and brought ashore."

Bing said he and Long and Shipe

Ship's Flames Keep Rescuers From Her Rail

Capt. Zadock Lewis, operator of a fishing boat near Bodkins Point, was first to arrive at the side of the blazing City of Baltimore. His eyewitness story of what happened follows:

"I was out with a party of six fishermen, who were all Baltimore firemen. I noticed smoke coming out of the lower part of the ship near the forward hold.

"I turned to the party and said, 'It looks like that boa's afire.' In less than five minutes the flames were shooting up high. We were heading for her as fast as we could. The flames were spreading fast.

Rescuers Scorched.

"I could see about 50 people huddled forward on the upper deck, trying to keep out of reach of the flames.

"They were yelling, 'Help! Help! For God's sake, get us out of here.'

"I kept my boat moving around, as close in as we dared. It was scorching us out where we were, it was so hot. We were waiting for some of them to jumy so we could scoot in and pick them up. The ship kept moving toward shore.

"Presently they began jumping off. We picked up all we could hold. About the time we got a full load the ship hit the edge of the channel and stopped."

"There were about four or five large vessels closing in by this time, standing by. I could see them lowering life boats all around us. By now several pleasure boats were speeding out from shore to the rescue.

"I picked up Bing, Long, Shipe and Miss Ramsay. Miss Ramsay was bady burned and two of the men seemed to be exhausted, more from water than burns, although they had life preservers on. I hurried ashore with these four."

John H. Bing, of Baltimore, who enlisted in the Army Air Corps Tuesday, and was on his way to report at Langley Field, was believed to be the first man rescued. When

World Demand To Boost U. S. Farm Exports

Crops Large in U. S., Poor Abroad; Purchasing Power Rises.

By Russell Smith

The world's ports are beckoning again to American crops, figures produced by the Department of Agriculture showed yesterday.

Their invitation is timed happily with the Maritime Commission's vigorous drive to restore the merchant marine to its once queenly state.

Good crops appear sure in all major United States commodities. In many foreign nations weather and insects have clouded farmers' prospects. Other countries suffer yet from previous bad years, so that the carry-over is below normal.

Many countries have abandoned attempts to become self-sufficient in food production. Some have been forced to seek lower prices to escape suffering among the masses of their populations.

Consequently, there has been a general tendency for many months toward leveling of tariff barriers, abandonment of subsidies, and more open markets.

In Germany, Italy and Spain import duties for wheat have been lowered, and in the Irish Free State they have been abolished. The German reduction, from 93 cents a bushel to 11, is especially significant. Sweden has reduced its license tax from 10 to 3½ cents a bushel. The

Sugar Bill Vote Order Refused By Roosevelt

Remains Neutral on Act, President Tells Six Visitors.

By Sidney Olson.

Six sugar-State Congressmen went to the White House yesterday to plead with the President "to take the red light off" the House Rules Committee, so that the 1937 sugar act could be passed at this session.

The President, it was learned, told the three Senators and three Representatives who represented the united 24-State group backing the bill in Congress, that:

1. He had been and intended to remain entirely neutral on the matter.

2. That he personally could not urge that the House Rules Committee cease blocking the measure and report it to the House floor, because such action would be interpreted as White House support of the bill. He explained to them he cannot support the bill directly in such a manner, since that would be a slap at his own official family, as three departments—Interior, Agriculture and State—do not favor the bill in its present form.

3. He could only urge them to attempt once more to compose their differences in conference.

As a result, at 10 a. m. today the group of legislators will meet with Secretary of State Cordell Hull, Acting Secretary of Agriculture M. L. Wilson, and Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, in the Interior Department. The Senators are Alva Adams, Colorado; Joseph C. O'Mahoney, Wyoming, and Prentiss Brown, Michigan. The Representatives are Fred Cummings, Colorado; Marvin Jones, Texas, and J. Will Robinson, Utah. All are Democrats.

Senators and Representatives from the 24 sugar States unquestionably control sufficient votes to keep the Congress in session until their demands are met.

The President recommended to Congress March 1 broad sugar legislation involving the quota system and an excise tax of three-fourths of a cent per pound on raw suger. The legislation drafted was to replace the present Jones-Costigan

Chincoteague Pony Roundup Attracts 15,000 to Tiny Island

By Frederic B. Tuttle.

A Staff Correspondent.

Chincoteague Island, Va., July 29.—Snorting, foam-flecked Spanish ponies from pages of history pranced through this island village today in the great Chincoteague round-up.

From Hog island, Wallo's Beach and from Parker Island, the little wild ponies rounded up from the island marshes, came into a modern world, with all the Eastern Shore a midway for their neighing.

There were 15,000 visitors here today. Some of them bought ponies, but a majority simply watched a saga of America which dipped into the past of galleons, trade winds and adventure.

Legend relates that the forebears of these ponies straggled

Chiang's Armies Advancing; Japanese Garrison Trapped

5,000 Gendarmes Shelling Hundreds in Doomed Fort; Slaughter of 1,000 Chinese in Ambush Revealed.

NATIONALIST HOSTS EXPECTED TO STORM TIENTSIN FROM REAR

On the Sino-Japanese War Front.

Five thousand Chinese gendarmes assailed the Japanese garrison at Tungchow near Peiping with trench mortars and machine guns, attempting to annihilate the garrison. Slaughter of 1,000 Chinese soldiers by the Japanese was confirmed.

Japanese war planes devastated large areas of Tientsin. Chinese asserted thousands of civilian casualties resulted.

At Nanking, Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, Chinese premier, declared the fighting in North China was only the beginning of hostilities and that China "will not surrender to Japanese pressure."

In London, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden indicated Great Britain had let Japan know she disapproved of the severance of any more provinces from China.

In Washington, Senator Pittman asserted the United States should not be "hasty" in applying the neutrality act to China and Japan. He suggested that application of the act, which would bar shipment of arms and munitions to the belligerents, would impair the President's "power for the protection of our citizens in China."

The Japanese government ordered heavy reinforcements of soldiers to China and announced it would reject summarily any "interference" by other nations in its China operations.

Chiang's Troops on Move.

By the Associated Press.

Nanking, July 29.—Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek, head of the Chinese army and premier of the Nanking government, tonight asserted the fighting in North China was "only the beginning" of hostilities and that China "will not surrender to Japanese pressure."

(The Domei (Japanese) News Agency reported at Shanghai that Chiang had ordered his powerful central Chinese forces to move northward. Specifically, he was reported to have ordered the forces now centered at Paotingfu, 80 miles southwest of Peiping, to begin a general movement toward the Japanese.

(Since Paotingfu is due west of Tientsin, it was believed possible by military experts that the reported movement might be directed toward driving a wedge in behind the Japanese forces at Tientsin.)

Chiang said "the only course open to the nation is to be determined unanimously to cope with this national crisis."

"Japan's military invasion and political pressure on China was not begun today," he continued. "It has a long history. Therefore, the present situation is not accidental.

"Since the Japanese military long have been deliberately planning to invade China and have used all kinds of methods to achieve this aim it is obvious that the Peiping-Tientsin warfare marks the beginning of a war of invasion, not its end."

Negotiations Impossible.

Under present conditions, Chiang said, negotiations with Japan are impossible. He recalled that on July 19 he set forth four conditions for settling the North China conflict and asserted "there is absolutely no possibility of changing or revising" those terms, which he said "marked the limit of our endurance."

Those conditions were: No settlement must infringe on China's sovereignty or territorial integrity China can not "permit illegal alteration" of the status of the Hopei-Chahar political council; China can not "agree to removal, by outside pressure" of North China officials; no restrictions must be placed on positions of the Chinese army.

Gen. Chiang recalled he had said "we would not seek war but would meet war when it is forced upon us."

"Since we have arrived at the limit of endurance," he asked, "how could we consider the state of affairs at Peiping and Tientsin as local questions and let the Japanese military encroach on our territorial Japanese Surrounded.

By the Associated Press.

Peiping, July 29.—Five thousand Chinese gendarms whom the Japanese believed allies suddenly turned on the Nipponese garrison at Tungchow today in an attempt to wipe it out.

The Chinese surrendered the barracks, 20 miles east of here, and opened up with trench mortars, machine guns, and rifles on the garrison in an amazing display of vengeance.

The number of Japanese huddled under the rain of fire was not known outside Japanese headquarters, but there were believed to be hundreds trapped.

The sudden attack brought to an end a few hours of peace which followed Japan's intensive bombing of Peiping's environs yesterday. During the peaceful interval, Chinese resistance seemed to have collapsed.

An Associated Press correspondent who went to the scene of fighting found the locality engulfed in billows of black smoke from the oil tanks within the Tungchow garrison compound. They had been set afire by the Chinese gunfire. The Japanese military stores within the compound also appeared to be burning.

Japanese Are Doomed.

The trapped Japanese soldiers seemed doomed. There was little likelihood the Tientsin garrison could send them reinforcements because of fighting there.

The Foreign School of Tungchow, commonly known as the American School because of the support of various missions, is dangerously close to the battle scene. Its fate could not be immediately determined.

An attempt to visit the American-supported Yenching University in Peiping and the group of Americans who are carrying on there was blocked by a sudden outburst of military activity.

With a roar of motors which drowned out all competing noises, 45 Japanese tanks accompanied by trucks bearing about 300 Japanese soldiers suddenly raced toward Fengtai from the northeast.

There was no explanation imme-

Price Rider Jeopardizes D. C. Tax Bill

Administration Objects to Proviso, House Leaders Hear.

By James D. Secrest.

As House and Senate conferees reached an agreement on all major provisions of the omnibus District tax bill yesterday, the Tydings rider threatened to jeopardize its chances for prompt enactment.

House leaders expressed concern as the Senate and House managers voted to retain the amendment which seeks to sanction State price-fixing laws. Instructions had come from the Administration, it was understood, that the rider was to be stricken off the bill.

Chairman Palmisano, of the House managers, had been specifically directed to see that the amendment was removed, it was reported, and indirect word was given other members that the President was opposed to the rider.

While Chairman King of the Senate District Committee, declined to disclose results of yesterday's parley pending a final meeting this morning, it was learned that the following tithes were adopted by majority vote of the conferees

A business privilege tax of two-fifths of 1 per cent of the gross receipts of all business houses and professional men.

A 25-cent hike in realty and personal property tax to $1.75 on $100 valuation.

Loan Power Approved.

An increase of one-half of 1 per cent to 2 per cent on insurance premiums.

An estate and inheritance tax.

A motor vehicle weight levy.

A $20,000 authorization for an expert study of the whole local tax problem.

Broader authority for the tax assessor to collect intangible personal property taxes.

Transfer of the department of vehicles and traffic and traffic policemen, together with all fees from motorists, to a highway fund.

Victory for House.

The program agreed upon constituted a victory for the House. Rejected were the two principal Senate amendments: the income tax and the $1 land levy. The restored insurance tax also had been discarded by the Senate.

The Senate managers succeeded, however, in bringing about a reduction in the gross receipts tax from three-fifths to two-fifths of one per cent and a modification of other features of it.

Primary exemptions were raised from $1,600 to $2,000 to ease the levy on the small business or professional man.

The conferees also voted down the Senate amendment which would have authorized the District Commissioners to install experimental parking meters.

The borrowing clause and the tax study provisions were Senate amendments, but House members were not opposed to them.

Rider Favor Denied.

The $1.75 tax rate was adopted rather than the $1.70 levy voted by the House because city officials feared that the tax bill's delay may cause original estimates on revenue to fall short of expectations.

The Tydings rider began to disturb District officials more seriously than heretofore last night after the Attorney General issued a state-

A. F. L. Fight On Black Bill Is Reported

Bloc of Southern, Western Democrats Talks Recommittal.

By Robert C. Albright.

A strong bloc of Southern and Western Democrats, with reported backing of the American Federation of Labor, threatened last night to send the Administration's wages and hours bill back to the Senate Labor Committee "for further study."

An overnight reaction against the bill developed in the Senate, where Administration leaders drove for passage before nightfall tonight. An undetermined factor in the fight was William Green's labor federation, reputedly cool to the bill in its present form.

It was learned that John P. Frey, president of the A. F. of L.'s Metal Trades department, suggested to some Senators the wisdom of letting the measure go over until next year. Frey was said to have favored the bill's objectives, but opposed the grant of broad discretionary powers to a five-man board.

A demand that Green "state where he stands on it publicly" was made by Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Montana Democrat, when conflicting reports of labor's position filtered into the Senate's open debate.

Black Quotes Green.

Wheeler's challenge followed denial from Chairman Hugo L. Black of the Senate Labor Committee that Green sought recommital of the measure.

"I called up the president of the American Federation of Labor to ask if he had told anybody he wanted the bill recommitted, and he said he had not," declared Black.

Wheeler disclosed that "some members of the American Federation of Labor have called me and called other members of the Senate and said they wanted to see the bill recommitted"

"I do not know for whom they are speaking," said the Montanan, "but they said they were speaking for the American Federation of Labor."

At Green's office last night it was said he would issue no statement. Earlier he told a reporter he had "not asked any Senator to recommit the bill."

"I don't know to whom Senator Wheeler refers," he was quoted as saying. "The bill in the Senate is not in the shape we would like. However, we thought it could be changed in the House if it passed the Senate."

Will Talk No More.

Asked if he personally was opposed to recommitment, Green said he said "all I have to say on the subject."

Return of the bill to a Senate committee would be the second such reverse on a major measure suffered by the President and probably would lead to a speedy fold-up of the session. Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley predicted a vote on the bill, but would not hazard a forecast on the recommit motion. For the second day, he ordered an 11 a. m. session of the Senate.

Following White House insistence on the President's full program, save farm legislation alone, Majority Leader Sam Rayburn told the House the program can be completed in three weeks, unless unforeseen difficulties arise. Overnight, the Senate Reorganization Committee came to life and ordered public hearings on the Government reorganization program beginning Monday.

$1,200 Pay Minimum Asked For 46,000 Federal Employes

Some 46,000 Government employes would be assured a minimum wage of $1,200 a year under a bill introduced in the House yesterday with Administration approval.

Chairman Ramspeck, of the House Civil Service Committee, who sponsored the measure, said that it may be called up in both houses under unanimous consent at this session of Congress.

At the same time, Ramspeck introduced a bill to liberalize the optional provisions of the civil service retirement act. He stated, however, that because of the controversial nature of the legislation he will not press for action until next session.

The pay bill, whether passed at this session of Congress or the next, would not become effective before July 1, 1938.

Bills now are pending in the Senate and House to fix a minimum salary base of $1,500 a year for Federal employes, but the Administration has asked that they be held up.

It is presumed that the Ramspeck measure is a compromise which the Administration is willing to accept.

Senator McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, and the late Representative Connery (Democrat), of Massachusetts, introduced the $1,500 pay bills.

Some Government workers now earn as little as $900 and $1,080 a year, according to Ramspeck.

The present bill, like its predecessors, sets forth a scale of salaries for the low-pay classifications. It consequently would allow raises for other low-salaried workers now above the $1,200 minimum.

George VI Talks To Premier on Irish Terrorism

Coronation Trip Violence Condemned in Both England, Ulster.

By the Associated Press.

London, July 29.—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain spent an hour with King George VI today after the monarch's return from northern Ireland where terrorism and violence marred the general acclaim accorded his coronation visit.

Indignation over the shooting, dynamiting and arson yesterday in Belfast and on the Free State border was expressed on both sides of the Irish Sea. Chamberlin and the King discussed the disorders.

Some authoritites said they believed trouble in Ireland had been expected, pointed out that the visit of the King and Queen Elizabeth there was much briefer than any other coronation trip. They spent three day in Wales, a week in Scotland and less than 12 hours in Ulster.

The British press was divided in its expressions between anger over the demonstrations and over the peril to which the King and Queen were exposed.

"What next?" demanded the Daily Mirror, "a trip to the borders of Abyssinia? A call on Mr. Gandhi? A visit to Peiping?"

The conservative Morning Post declared, "the civilized world by now is too familiar with the noxious character of Irish gangster politics to feel anything but disgust."

The Irish Times, the only Dublin paper to comment on the manifestations, said:

"We and all other Irishmen of good will have hoped against hope that we may see the day of Irish reunion, yet our confidence flags when every year with monotonous regularity sees the perpetration of some insensate act which cannot fail to set North and South still farther apart."

Cruiser Refloated, Heads to Norfolk To Undergo Repair

The cruiser Omaha, which has been aground at Castle Island Light in the Bahamas since July 19, was floated at 1.32 p. m. yesterday. The Navy Department received the terse message.

At the time she ran aground the Omaha was en route to Charleston, S. C., Navy Yard for overhauing. The Navy Department said yesterday that the light cruiser will now go to the Norfolk Navy Yard, at Portsmouth, Va., for repairs before proceeding to Europe where she will relieve the U. S. S. Raleigh as flagship of the European squadron.

In an earlier message, Capt. Howard B. Mecleary, U. S. Navy, the Omaha's commander, reported that the ship had been moved 25 feet in the first attempt Wednesday and 40 feet the same night.

The Omaha is 550 feet long and it is not definitely known how deeply it was imbedded.

Tax Line Swells As Deadline Nears

Long lines of taxpayers at the assessor's office in the District Building yesterday are expected to swell to record proportions today and tomorrow as the Saturday deadline for filing personal returns draws near. About 30,000 personal returns have been filed according to Deputy Assessor Charles A. Russell. This indicates 15,000 will either file their returns in the next two days or be delinquent.

Dog tax deadline is the same day, Saturday. Owners have been slow in purchasing tags.

A penalty of 20 per cent of the assessed valuation of personal property may be imposed for tardiness, Russell said. He stated his office closes at 12:45 Saturday but if returns are mailed with a postmark before midnight they will be accepted without penalty.

San Francisco, July 29 (AP).—Kidnaper Rufe Persfuel cut off his left hand with a razor-sharp ax at lonely Alcatraz Prison and then begged in vain for a fellow convict to "cut off my other hand."

James V. Bennett, Federal director of prisons, confirming the incident, said Persfuel, serving 25 years for abducting an Arkansas sheriff, apparently had been overcome by loneliness but the object of his self-mutilation was not clear.

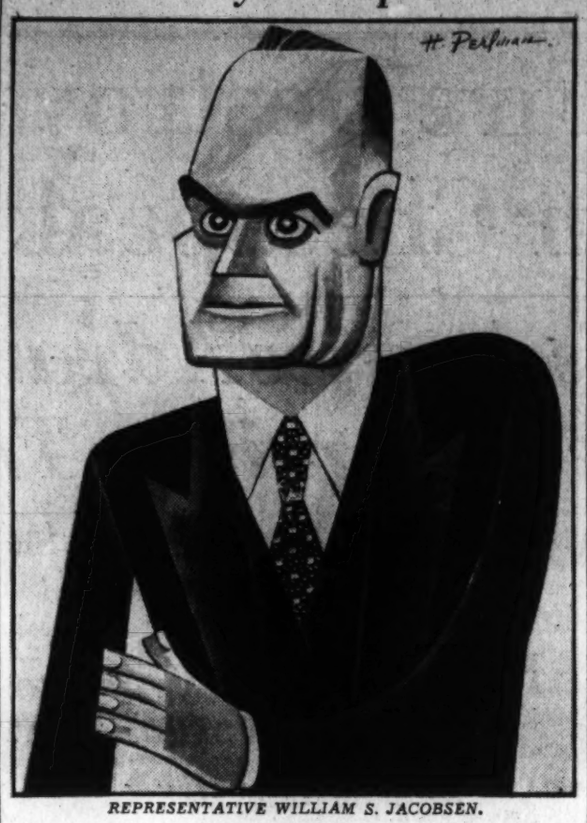
Political Precepts of Father Smooth Way for Rep. Jacobsen



REPRESENTATIVE WILLIAM S. JACOBSEN.

Iowa Legislator Says His Family's Interests Have Always Been With the Masses Rather Than the Classes.

By Liam K. Leniham.

Representative William Sebastian Jacobsen not only has followed in his father's footsteps; he has worked with him, thought through him, dreamed with him.

Which is the reason why the 50-year-old legislator from Iowa's Second District, who describes himself as "a New Dealer to the hilt," feels he owes his election to his father's popularity as a Congressman. (His father, Bernhard M. Jacobsen, was a member of Congress from 1931 to 1936, the year he died.)

"We were a closely knit family," he will tell you. "The joys and sorrows of one member were the joys and sorrows of all."

The district Jacobsen represents is known as "the buckle on the corn belt"—a rich, prosperous community that knew no crop failures when drought stalked the Midwest. Yet, due to the fact that the Jacobsen family was in business, its contact was with the masses rather than the classes, and "that's where its interest lies."

Biographical note: Congressman Jacobsen was born in Clinton; attended the Clinton schools and the Normal College of American Gymnastic Union at Indianapolis; started working as a timekeeper and shipping clerk, then became physical director of Turner Society and of Y. M. C. A. In 1915 he became part owner and manager of a department store with his father, quit the business in 1927 to organize an industrial loan company with his parent. He is still secretary, treasurer and manager of that company, and his election as Representative to succeed his father was his first venture into public life. He is a member of the Clinton Turner Society, Masonic Lodge, Scottish Rite Consistory, Shrine and Rotary Club. Has two sons (his wife died in 1920), B. M. Jacobsen 2d, aged 19, and Maenard W. Jacobsen, aged 16.

Farouk, 18, Becomes First King Of a Free Egypt in 4 Centuries

By the Associated Press.

Cairo, Egypt, July 29.—Egypt's boy king, Farouk I, was invested today to the acclaim of 15,000,000 subjects is the first ruler of a free Egypt in four centuries.

The sovereign, 18 years old today by the Moslem calendar, took his oath of office before the Egyptian Parliament with severely simple ceremonial. There was no coronation. Egypt has no crown and Farouk himself had objected to elaborate rites.

The investiture picked up the thread of Egyptian independence broken when Turkish hordes conquered Egypt's Mameluke rulers in the sixteenth century.

Solemn and dignified in his red, white and green uniform of a field marshal, the youth rode to his investiture in the gilded state coach drawn by three pairs of horses, guarded by detachments of the royal bodyguards in brilliant white, blue and gold uniforms with red fezzes and flanked by barefoot runners.

A hush fell over the assembly as Farouk, in a clear voice, read the royal oath vowing "by Almighty God to respect and obey the constitution and laws of the Egyptian people, safeguard my country's independence and defend its territory."

That was all. Microphones carried the new King's pledge to the remotest village of his kingdom. Loudspeakers had been installed in every center of population.

1 Killed in Riot Over Yugoslav Pact With Pope

By the Associated Press.

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, July 29.—One woman was killed today in rioting at Sarajevo by demonstrators against a Yugoslavian concordat with the Vatican.

Similar demonstrations also led to disorders in Belgrade after a funeral mass for the Yugoslav Orthodox Patriarch, Varnava. His death Friday heightened his church's oppositon to the concordat, which, it charges, would give the Catholic Church "unequally high power."

Anna Bogdanowic, wife of a chauffeur, was killed at Sarajevo when police and rioting crowds exchanged rifle fire. Several other persons were injured in fighting, which police said lasted half an hour.

The demonstration occurred when the crowds stoned the office of a pro-government newspaper and stormed the home of a cabinet minister.

"Birthplace" of War.

Sarajevo was where the Archduke Franz Ferdinand, heir to the Austrian throne, was assassinated, June 28, 1914, and therefore has been known as the birthplace of the World War.

In Belgrade, long lines of weeping, praying Serbs filed past the catafalque of the dead patriarch, many of them chanting a phrase from the funeral oration, "A great patriot who died a martyr's death."

Collapse of scaffolding, injuring several mourners, and shouts from the kneeling crowd, "The police are not kneeling!" spread excitement through the densely filled streets.

Crowds Pass Bayonets.

Rigid control by more than 1,000 police preserved order when others shouted, "The gendarmes are attacking us!"

Police formed a line with fixed bayonets. The crowds surged through. Two demonstrators were injured. Police dispersed the throngs and posted heavy guards against further disorders.

The concordat was signed in 1935. The lower chamber of Parliament last week voted for ratification. The Senate will not vote until October.

Roper Approves Airplane De-Icer For Civilian Craft

An improved type of de-icer for use on civil aircraft has been approved by the Bureau of Air Commerce.

The protective devices applied to the edges of airplane wings and top surfaces of airplanes, Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper said yesterday consist of rubber "overshoes" operated by compressed air supplied automatically from the power plant.

Successive pulsations of compressed air cause the "overshoes" to expand and contract, thus breaking the ice so it will be stripped off by the air, Secretary Roper explained.

House Unanimously Asks Army Engineers for Comprehensive Plan to Control U. S. Floods.

A "COMPREHENSIVE" PLAN to chain the Nation's flood waters was requested of the Army's corps of engineers by a unanimous House vote yesterday approving a resolution prepared by Representative McClellan, of Arkansas.

Representative Knutson (Republican), Minnesota, declared the measure is the most sensible piece of flood control legislation in his 20 years in the House.

Chairman Whittington (Democrat), Mississippi, of the House Flood Control Committee said it would permit compilation of all existing plans and surveys, as well as data still to be gathered, in a single report which probably would be ready at the next session.

The McClellan measure was substituted by the House for a somewhat similar bill the Senate passed recently.

If accepted by the Senate, it will direct the Army engineers to list specific projects for each of the major streams, with their estimated cost and their value for hydroelectric development and other conservation purposes.

* * * *

THE HOUSE ALSO took final action on another resolution, that which gives the approval of Congress to continuation of an interstate compact to conserve oil and gas.

The States which are signatories of the compact are Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Colorado and New Mexico. The compact will expire September 1. It was signed at Dallas in 1935.

* * * *

Keep Congress in session "until something is done to guarantee the cotton farmer a parity price," Senator Bilbo, of Mississippi, urged his Southern colleagues . . . A House Postoffice sub-committee voted to report favorably a bill to pay $735 in back rent on the postoffice quarters at Grover, N. C.

ADD ONE ON CAPITOL HILL — REPRESENTATIVE NORMAN R. HAMILTON, of the Second Virginia District, said the Navy Department had advised him the Navy would ask for bids on the six new auxiliary naval vessels some time in October.

Hamilton said the department had promised part of the work to the Norfolk Navy Yard. The bill authorizing construction of the vessels at a cost estimated at $50,000,000 went to the White House yesterday.

Hamilton was advised by Admiral W. G. Dubose, of the Bureau of Construction and Repair, that the Budget Bureau was recommending that the third deficiency bill, now pending in Congress, carry an authorization for the department to use such funds as necessary out of the $38,000,000 construction appropriated in the regular department appropriation bill to begin the work.

* * * *

A BILL PROVIDING a premium for lifting tolls on highway bridges has been approved by the President; Senator Black, of Alabama, was informed . . . Labor unions would be injured by the Black-Connery wages-hours bill because their members "would feel they were getting everything they could expect to get without keeping up their own organizations," said Representative McReynolds, of Tennessee . . . A committee of South Carolina business and farm leaders adopted a resolution directed to the State's Congressional delegation urging its members to vote against the wages-hours bill . . . The Senate Railway Finance Committee will begin hearings Monday on the proposal for reorganizing principal Van Sweringen holding companies.

Revolt Flares Against Rebel Rule in Granada

Machine Guns, Bombs Used on Uprising in Southern Spain.

By the Associated Press.

Valencia, Spain, July 29,—Serious disturbances in Granada, southern Spanish city, were reported tonight by government sources.

They said Gen. Francisco Franco's aviators were bombing barracks and firing machine guns at civilians to restore order.

Troops and civilians were reported to have participated in an uprising against Franco's rebel regime. These appealed to government fliers for help.

New Offensive Due.

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Border, July 29 (AP).—Gen. Francisco Franco pointed a new offensive at Madrid's communications with the east coast today.

His men advanced on Cuenca, 80 miles east and slightly south of Madrid. They were not yet in a position to menace the highway between Madrid and the government seat, Valencia, on the coast, but the drive was headed that way.

Franco tried—and only just failed—to sever that road earlier in the year, on the Jarama front, close to Madrid.

West of Madrid, all appeared quiet—a lull after many days of intensive fighting in which Franco checked a government offensive, recaptured the town of Brunete, 15 miles from Madrid, and pushed northward toward Villanueva de la Canada.

Refugees Are Shelled.

Nimes, France, July 29 (AP).—Fishermen who rowed out to a blazing Spanish refugee ship after it was shelled by a submarine off Port Grau-Du-Roi today said bodies were heaped on the deck.

The submarine, unidentified as to nationality, rose to the surface, attacked the refugee-laden freighter and sank one of two tank steamers. The refugees were from Valencia. The tankers, Spanish government ships, were proceeding from Marseille, France, to Valencia.

Fishermen said the crew of the refugee ship jumped overboard after shells set it afire and took refugees off in boats. The fire was reported still blazing late tonight. Rescuers were unable to aid those still aboard. They believed that "many persons" were left aboard and feared that the fire would cause the ship to explode.

Diplomats Again in Jam.

London, July 29 (AP).—Russian, Italian and German reservations to the British scheme for isolating the Spanish civil war tonight foreshadowed difficulties at tomorrow's meeting of the 27 nations nonintervention committee.

ashore from the wrecked ships of Spanish venturers which piled upon Virginia reefs centuries ago. But whatever their origin, the ponies appeared in dwindling numbers this year.

About one hundred were sold, bringing an average of $45 apiece. The mares brought $50 each and the colts about $35.

No sooner had dawn snapped up a curtain over the Eastern Shore than the great caravan of tourists began to arrive in their automobiles, of which the Spanish grandees never dreamed.

They clattered over the Chincoteague bridge and the Cockle Creek bridge, clattering above the waters of Queen Sound. But the horses had preceded them.

Most of the steeds bought and sold today were brought here yesterday, but in the grey mist of the early morning today several dozen were driven through the water from Hog Island. The market place between Cleveland and Monfort streets was the center of buying and selling throughout the day.

Most of the purchases were made privately, with the use of the old auction block spasmodic and occasional.

The youngest buyer of a pony was Billy Winder, of Chincoteague, and his pony cost $39. The pony had white breast and intelligent eyes, typical of the breed of horses which sprang from the steeds the Spaniards brought from the Old World so long ago.

A carnival reigned in Chincoteague today and the place became a cross-section of the Nation. There were automobiles from Maine and Florida and Oregon, even Honolulu. The tourists came either to buy the ponies or see them carralled in the greatest rodeo east of the Mississipp.

Throughout the year the ponies, fed upon flat marsh grasses of the adjoining islands, never had seen man until the roundup. The roundup today began when the last contingent of horses was brought from Hog Island to Chincoteague.

Shortly after 8 o'clock this morning there appeared out at sea a moving mass of foam as hoofs churned the water; then within half an hour the ponies had been taken down Main street and alleyways, with shouts and cries as the natives drove them past the curious throngs. Colts crept close to mares.

Principal owners of the ponies were Clarence Beebe and James Powell, who made most of today's sales. Both are from Chincoteague and veterans of the pony roundup.

Top price for ponies today was $55, paid by an Eastern Shore melon grower. Low price was $30, which bought a child a pet. The sale of the ponies continued until late tonight.

And while the sale of the ponies continued, the city enjoyed its greatest holiday. Broadway rubbed shoulders with Main Street, phonographs and radios sang of an age that the parties of galleons never visioned in the new world they settled.

Milling thousands jammed the streets, restaurants and parking lots. Street corner musicians strummed mandolins, a gypsy played a music box and a dancing monkey took pennies.

Late today there was an aquatic carnival, with floats on the channel and races between picked Coast Guard crews.

The first pony race was won by Easter Mark Daisy; Joe Boy, ridden by Hamilton Whealton, taking the second. The other winner was Tony, owned and ridden by Elwood Quillen. The wild pony was ridden by a Mr. Young, of Gloucester, Va.

The 2-mile boat race was won by the Fourth District, New York, Coxswain Tuttle and crew. The captains' drill between North and South ends of the Sixth District was won by North, Coxswin Derrickson and crew. A beach apparatus drill was put on by the Ocean City (Md.) crew.

E. I. Jones, chief of Chincoteague Fire Company, introduced the following speakers: Capt. Crapster, commander, Norfolk Divson; Divison Commander Eugene Osborne; Commander Charlie Walker, Washington; Commander C. J. Sullivan, Elizabeth City, N. J., and Leslie Moore, chief botswain, Long Island, N. Y.

The cups were presented by Commander Frank Allison, of the Sixth District, United States Coast Guard.

Wages, Hours, Bill Scored by Dr. Roos

New York, July 29 (AP).—Dr. Charles F. Roos, who was director of research for the NRA, asserted today the Black-Connery wages and hours bill pending before Congress would "do more to lower the living standards . . . than any panacea yet proposed."

The measure, he said in a letter to Senator Hugo L. Black (Democrat), Alabama, one of the sponsors, "can easily cause a half million to lose their jobs within the first year of its operation."

"The NRA experience," said Roos, "shows that in 21 out of 24 industries for which data are available, decrease in hours under the NRA, instead of creating jobs, actually led to unemployment and greatly reduced levels of production; and factors outside of the NRA caused increases in the exceptional industries."

World Demand To Boost U. S. Farm Exports

similar Belgium levy has been eliminated.

Denmark and the Netherlands have acted similarly, the former ending and the latter reducing wheat import taxes. Even Poland, normally an exporting country, has discontinued export subsidies and embargoed grain exports.

Final factors are generally increased buying power and increased consumption of some commodities. France is a notable exception to buying-power gains. Tobacco is the outstanding instance of a continuing increase in demand.

Symbolic, of general trade revival, gains in United States wheat exports are forecast by world conditions. In the past two years, probably, said the department's experts, for the first time in our country's history, the net trade balance in wheat has been against the United States.

This year, however, there will be an estimated 175,000,000 bushels for the world's trade, bureau of agricultural economic experts said yesterday. World supplies of wheat are estimated now at 4,299,000,000 bushels, a reduction of nearly 225,000,000 from last year and of 490,000,000 bushels from 1933-1934.

Wheat prices yesterday at Kansas City were $1.18 a bushel. At Liverpool they were near $1.40, and demand brisk.

Canada's prairie provinces have experienced deterioration regarded as "the most serious ever recorded this early in the season," the statisticians said. The Dominion's crop is estimated at 185,000,000 bushels, whereas last year it was 229,218,000 and the year before that it was 281,935,000.

Crops in Europe and North Africa are better than last year's poor output, but still are below those for 1934-5 and 1935-6. France expects a 279,300,000-bushel crop, and Italy one of 264,600,000 bushels, as compared with 253,500,000 and 224,373,000 bushels, respectively, last year. The Spanish production, strangely enough, in view of the civil war, is due to rise from 121,490,000 bushels to 139,600,000. Germany, however, anticipates but 143,300,000 bushels, as against 162,663,000 in 1936-7.

The combined middle European production for Bulgaria, Hungary, Rumania and Yugoslavia, is estimated at but 326,929,000 bushels as compared with an output of 383,229,000 last year, while in the six Asiatic countries which produce considerable amounts of wheat, a decline from 563,490,000 bushels to 546,510,000 is forecast.

Argentina's crop, based on weather conditions to date, will be off by 27,800,000 bushels from ast year's 247,834,000 bushels, it is predicted. Australia, the other big southern hemisphere producer, will approximate last year's 150,106,000 bushels, according to advices here.

What is true of wheat, holds good, to a varying degree, for other major crops, except cotton.

Of special interest to Virginia and Maryland is the report yesterday from Federal experts that European fruit prospects, other than citrus, declined in June.

"The United Kingdom and France, the two chief markets for United States apples," said one of the Federal experts, "expect substantially smaller apple crops than the large crops of last year." But he added that average crops of apples are to be harvested in Canada, principal competitor of American growers, and other countries.

The United States has cause for optimism, however, because the apple crop is larger than last year, when but 6,720,000 bushels were shipped as against 12,239,500 bushels in 1935-36.

Large pear and grape crops are in prospect and the former has almost no foreign competition. Citrus crops here and abroad are in doubt.

The great American food staple, aside from wheat, is corn, but world trade currents affect it but little. Drought and crop reduction programs caused importations from South America this year. A corn crop of 2,571,851,000 bushels is indicated, says the department. This will halt importations, which have caused wide complaint.

Imported corn has come mostly from Argentina.

In tobacco, world demand is increasing constantly. Enlarged plantings in the Orient of American flue-cured tobacco have cut into this market to some extent.

But "the outlook for foreign demand is rather favorable," nevertheless, says the Agricultural Economics Bureau.

P. G. Minneman, American tobacco specialist at London, has reported Europe will take more American tobacco this year, due to lower stocks and increasing popularity of American tobacco, the department said yesterday.

Of flue-cured alone, Europe will import about 50,000,000 pounds more than the 202,000,000 of last year, it was said.

The American crop, of all types, will be about 1,400,000,000 pounds this year, however, an increase of 23 per cent over last year. Hence, prices may not be so favorable to growers.

THE FIFTH OF EIGHT REASONS WHY . . .

The Washington Post Grows

THE SPEED of a newspaper's growth is dependent upon its ability to know what its readers want and to give those readers the best of everything that must go into the production of an outstanding publication. Almost every one knows that THE WASHINGTON POST has doubled its circulation in less than four years. This was no accident. The reasons why are interesting. And the purpose of this series of chats with readers is simply to tell how it was done.

NO. 5—COMICS

FIRST COMIC in black and white made its appearance one Saturday in August, 1884, in the New York Daily News of that period. It was called, "A Hat Off to a Pig," depicted a more or less amusing situation, but did not employ the same characters from day to day. The first Sunday comic in color appeared November 18, 1894, in the New York World. It was the product of R. F. Outcault, then a draftsman for a current magazine and later to become famous for his "Yellow Kid," a comic "strip" using a clown and a wolfhound as its main characters. The lurid saffron used in "The Kid's" costume is said to have led Ervin Wardman to coin the term "yellow journalism," which came to typify the sensationalism of a later period in newspaper history. Following "The Kid" came "Happy Hooligan," "Lady Bountiful," "Marcelene," "Buster Brown" and other old favorites . . . most of them no longer published . . . as rival newspaper proprietors hurried to outdo one another in the newly found field. The comic situations in the majority of these early "strips" depended largely upon burlesque sequences of scenes in which some unfortunate was the victim of one or more practical jokers. There was plenty of action and the words "Zowie!" "Bam!" "Whap!" and "Whoosh!" appeared over and over again. The modern adventure "strip," the so-called sophisticated "strip" and the single-situation "panel" were yet to make their bows to enthusiastic American audiences. Today, literally hundreds of American comics are printed daily and Sunday in thousands of newspapers . . . not only here, but also in the newspapers of practically every nation on earth.

THE WASHINGTON POST, day in and day out, seven mornings a week, brings to its 100,000 readers the BEST comic and adventure "strips" available.

AUTHOR OF "APPLE MARY" . . .

MARTHA ORR, creator of "Apple Mary," is the youngest and only woman comic strip artist that we know. "Apple Mary," "Bill Biff" and little "Dennie" came into existence only a short time ago . . . but already have captured the interest of boys and girls the country over.

CREATORS OF "BIG CHIEF WAHOO" . . .

"MICKEY FINN'S" BIG BOSS . . .

"HAM" FISHER . . .

CREATOR of that fightin' fool, "Joe Palooka," Cartoonist Fisher has been recording the adventures of his now famous pugilist ever since he was a cub reporter, after the World War, for a Scranton, Pa., newspaper. "Joe," his sweetheart and his manager are the before-breakfast favorites of thousands of Washingtonians.

SIX CARTOONISTS AND A SENATOR FROM UTAH . . .

WHEN THE SIX Washington Post comic strip authors pictured above came to Washington recently to attend a Washington Post Carrier Boys' banquet, Senator King, of Utah, was also a guest. Left to right, standing: "Rube" Goldberg, of "Lala Palooza" fame; "Lank" Leonard, Allen Saunders and Lieut. Comdr. Frank V. Martinek, the man responsible for "Don Winslow of the Navy." Seated: Col. "Eddie" Rickenbacker, author of "Ace Drummond;" Senator King and "Wog" Woggon.

J. P. McEVOY . . .

FAMOUS to millions of Americans for his books, his musical comedy and Hollywood successes, J. P. McEvoy is the man who created "Dixie Dugan," Nation-wide favorite among girl comic "strip" characters, whose life and adventures as a typical American girl are chronicled both daily and Sunday for Washington Post readers.

Chinese Police Turn Guns on Japanese Fort

diately for this high-speed military expedition.

How the fighting at Tunchow and Tientsin and the probable emergency at Fengtai would affect the so-called peace of the Peiping area could not be predicted. The embassies at Peiping advised their nationals to remain in refuge in embassy quarters, feeling a general resumption of hostilities was possible at any moment.

Chinese reports that the Japanese had massacred 1,000 soldiers of the Chinese twenty-ninth army Wednesday at Nanyuan, south of Peiping, were verified by the Associated Press correspondent this afternoon when he visited the scene.

It was a ghastly spectacle. Stretched out on the field, so close that many of them touched, were hundreds of bodies of Chinese soldiers.

According to fugitive survivors, the Japanese forced the Chinese to evacuate their barracks, and when they emerged they were ambushed by troops using hand grenades and machine guns upon soldiers and civilians alike.

Slain in Autos.

There were numerous motor trucks and several touring cars laden with mutilated and dismembered bodies of Chinese stalled amid other bodies and dead horses.

The ditches beside the military air field at Nanyuan also contained slain Chinese.

In the distance roamed a big drove of Chinese army horses which, by some quirk of fate, survived.

The Japanese now hold Nanyuan and the district is under Japanese infantry patrol. Many of the infantrymen have been assigned the task of distributing Japanese flags to the surviving villagers. The flags now fly from the villagers' huts.

At 7:15 p. m. firing started at the southwest corner of Peiping's walls. Its cause was not immediately determined.

Earlier in the day, Chinese resistance to the Japanese army in this area apparently had collapsed as North China generals made a separate peace.

Sung Loses Command.

Gen. Sung Cheh-yuan, hitherto belligerent leader of the Twenty-ninth Chinese army and head of the North China administration, announced his civil authority had been transferred to Gen. Chang Tsu-chaung, considered friendly to Japan. Gen. Sung disappeared and was variously reported to have gone to Kalgan, in the northwest, or Paotingfu, 90 miles southwest of Peiping.

Gen. Sung before leaving the city turned over to Gen. Chang Tsu-chung his chairmanship of the Hopeh-Chahar political council, the semiautonomous government of North China.

Planes Devastate Tientsin.

Tientsin, July 29 (AP).—The heaviest planes in Japan's North China army today systematically and unhurriedly devastated a large area of this city, China's second largest trade and commercial metropolis.

Chinese officers charged "thousands of non-combatant men, women and children were killed or wounded."

Resisted only by hopeless rifle and machine gun fire, the planes carried out the announced Japanese determination to wipe out all Tientsin areas harboring hostile Chinese troops.

When darkness ended the most destructive and longest aerial bombardment ever undertaken by a Japanese air corps, the unscathed foreign concessions were ringed by smoke clouds rising from the city's Chinese quarters.

Nankai University, China's foremost seat of learning, not supported by foreigners, Tientsin's municipal headquarters, the tax bureau, the Peiping-Mukden and Tientsin-Pukow Railway administration buildings, customs offices, freight yards and warehousse were smoldering ruins.

The Fighting Continues.

Shortly before midnight fighting still was in progress for the East Station, nerve center of the North China Railway system and keypoint in the military situation here.

Japanese and Chinese infantry battled fiercely in the fighting light of a huge blaze in the freight yards, set by a Japanese air bomb.

The Japanese were holding the station proper, surrounded by Chinese. Other areas around Tientsin were reported quieter.

During the bombing the lives of hundreds of Americans and other foreigners were in constant danger. Many remained huddled in foreign concession cellars during the hail of steel and explosives.

The United States Fifteenth Infantry, with half of its strength in summer camp at Chinwangtao, on the coast northeast of here, took up its duty of protecting American lives and property outside the foreign concessions.

Because most American residents live in the British and French concession the troops combined with British forces in a protective cordon around the British concession and United States authorities urged all their nationals to seek shelter in those areas.

$25,000,000 in U. S. Property.

(United States registration lists number 750 American officers and men, 223 military personnel and dependents and 403 civilians in Tientsin. Most of the $25,000,000 of American investments in the Tientsin-Peiping area are there.)

The Japanese high command "regretted being forced to take these extreme measures because the areas are harboring Chinese troops." They said they were compelled to protect 10,000 Japanese residents.

Lieut. Gen. Kiyoshi Katsuki, commander of the Japanese North China Army, declared the bombardment was in keeping with the 1901 Boxer protocol, which he said prohibited Chinese troops being stationed within 2 miles of the city.

The Chinese nevertheless clung resolutely to positions they seized when soldiers identified as belonging to three of their armies—the Twenty-sixth, Twenty-ninth and Fortieth—struck simultaneously in the early morning on a broad front, with Tientsin as pivot.

Three Rail Depots Fall.

Fighting extended from here to the sea at Tangku, this city's port 20 miles westward, and to Fengtai, Japanese field headquarters south of Peiping.

The swift, sudden Chinese attack won three key railroad stations here, base of the Japanese forces, and gained a foothold in the Japanese concession. It was the center of fighting on a 95-mile front.

Fighting raged through the city's streets. Chinese rifles and slashing broadswords took heavy toll of the Japanese infantry, and superior Japanese weapons in turn inflicted fierce punishment on the Chinese.

All afternoon, Tientsin's 1,000,000 Chinese inhabitants swarmed to rooftops, jammed the streets or peeped furtively through shuttered windows, sullenly watching and hearing the Japanese blow up parts of their city.

The surprise Chinese attacks threw the Japanese organization into confusion and almost succeeded in controlling important strategical positions.

Ing Calls Japan's 'Defense' Plea Ridiculous; Charges Misuse of Boxer Protocol Privileges

In the following interview, Z. T. Ing, Counselor of the Chinese Embassy, speaks out in language plainer than that used by any ranking diplomat in Washington in many years in discussing the Far East crisis from the viewpoint of his countrymen. His interviewer, T. Lowry Sinclair, jr., of The Post staff, was born in China, lived 16 years in the Orient, and was a witness to Sino-Japanese hostilities near Shanghai.

China hopes the United States will take appropriate action for enforcement of the Nine-Power Treaty, Z. T. Ing, Counselor of the Chinese Embassy, told The Post in an informal interview yesterday.

T. LOWRY SINCLAIR.

Noncommital on controversial questions but friendly, he commented on recent statements by Secretary Hull and Japan's Foreign Minister Hirota, and expressed with warm sincerity China's utmost regard for America's fair-mindedness.

The Boxer Protocol of 1901, which gave Japan with other nations the right to keep the road to Tientsin open while foreign legations were located in Peking, now Peiping, is one of the excuses for Japan to create trouble in North China.

He declared Japan, by issue of the privilege, has increased her military forces in North China until her station in that section cannot be considered anything but a military base. It is these troops who assert that they have to protect the economic rights of Japan in North China.

Z. T. ING.

"Since China's capital has been moved to Nanking and the embassies and legations also moved there," Ing pointed out, "Japan has no right whatsoever to maintain a military force in that area."

In answer to Japan's assertion that her measures are only for defense, he said, "It is ridiculous for Japan to speak of defense, when Japan herself is the aggressor by invading China and fighting on a soil not even her own."

Referring to Secretary Hull's repeated requests for peace, Ing stated that China does not expect the United States to take sides with her against any other nation. However, America is not only one of the signatories to the Nine-Power Treaty guaranteeing China's territorial and administrative integrity, but is also its sponsor. Therefore, China naturally does expect America to take appropriate action for its enforcement.

Among the Chinese America has always been known for her fair play. Never through editorials or in any other instances has Ing known the American people to be unfair.

When asked what he thought of recent statements by Foreign Minister Hiroto of Japan, Counselor Ing replied, "I need not give you my opinions. The American people are well able to judge these for themselves. America's eyes have never been susceptible to "wool-pulling'."

South Gets First Pay Differential

By the Associated Press.

Secretary of Labor Perkins gave the South its first wage differential yesterday under the Walsh-Healy Government contract act.

Men's underwear factories in 12 Southern States must pay their employes 32.5 cents an hour, or $13 for a 40-hour week when they are working on Government orders, Miss Perkins decided.

She fixed the minimum pay for all other States at 35 cents an hour, or $14 for a 40-hour week.

The Labor chief refused to allow any Southern differential for the men's work-clothing industry, stating that "existing differences defied any regional apportionment."

The minimum wage for that industry, including the men's shirt and sport jacket divisions, was fixed at 37.5 cents an hour, or $15 for a 40-hour week.

Chicago U. Gets Palace Treasures

Chicago, July 29 (AP).—A hoard of gold and jewelry and 250 pieces of carved and incised ivories, uncovered in the palace of Egyptian rulers of 1,500 B. C., were received today at the Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago.

The valuable cache was found at Megiddo (Armageddon) in Western Palestine last March by the Institute's field expedition, directed by Gordon Loud.

"The palace, a magnificent structure with frescoed walls and floors of sea shell mosaic," Loud said, "was the residence of Princes of Megiddo who ruled a small section of the Egyptian empire from about 1500 to 1200 B. C."

integrity and sovereignty or let them set up another regime?

"The government has the responsibility of defending the national territory and protecting its people. The only thing to do now is to put into operation its comprehensive plan and lead the entire nation in a struggle for protection of the nation to the bitter end.

"Henceforth absolutely no local settlements are possible.

"Our troops have not suffered any great reverses, and even if they should suffer any we would be determined to perish with the state. Never could we compromise or surrender.

"I am sure that our people, finding the fatherland at this critical point will like one man fight to the finish. I annonuce that I have decided all necessary measures regarding the situation.

"I am confident that final victory will be ours."

London Warns Tokyo.

London, July 29 (AP).—Great Britain has given Japan to understand she will disapprove of the severance of any more provinces from China, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden indicated in Commons today.

He added that Britain is "not prepared at present to take any initiative" to settle the Sino-Japanese conflict.

Wedgwood Benn, an opposition Laborite, asked the foreign secretary:

"Will Mr. Eden make it clear to the Japanese government that the British government would not approve of the detachment of further provinces from Nanking sovereignty?"

Said Eden:

"During the last two days various declarations have been made. We very much regret this situation, because we hoped for an improvement in the Far Eastern situation generally, which cannot take place while present conditions continue."

Took Four Provinces.

Benn referred to the fact that Japan in 1931-33 lopped off four Chinese provinces and established therein her protectorate of Manchukuo.

Eden said one reason why Britain would not take the initiative to try to end present hostilities is "the fact that Japan and the United States are not members of the League of Nations."

Previously Eden informed the House that Britain hade made representations to Japan concerning the safety of British subjects in China, and as a result had received "certain assurances."

He said the British charge d'affaires in Tokyo had "emphasized to the Japanese government the serious nature of the situation and the grave dangers inherent in it."

Warn of "Interference."

Toyko, July 29 (AP).—The Japanese government will reject summarily any "interference" by another power in Japan's conflict with China, Koki Hirota, foreign minister, told Parliament today.

Replying to a questioner, Hirota said he hoped no other nation would attempt to intervene.

Official sources disclosed that in view of the ominous turn of events in Tientsin, where Japanese and Chinese troops fought bitterly all day and Japanese war planes bombed the city, large reinforcements are being dispatched to North China from Japan proper

Hitherto only small units are believed to have gone to China from the Japanese homeland.

Gen. Gen Sugiyama, the war minister, told Parliament that "Japan is prepared to meet all possibilities." He declared it would be "easy to clear Chinese troops from the Peiping and Tientsin areas, but what is far more important is the clash with the central Chinese army which may follow."

Bolt of Lightning Traced in Victim

Spokane, Wash., July 29 (AP).—A physician traced a lightning bolt through a victim today and said it seemed almost to "explode" internally.

Curtis Finney was struck by lightning yesterday as he leaned against a golf house.

Dr. J. M. Finney (no relation) said the electrical shock entered at the back.

Drop Questions On China Stand, Pittman's Plea

Warning that the best interests of the country would be endangered if President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull should discuss publicly the critical Sino-Japanese situation, Senator Key Pittman (Democrat), Nevada, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, last night called for cessation of efforts to induce the President to tell whether action is contemplated under the neutrality act.

In a sharply worded statement echoing known views of Mr. Roosevelt and Secretary Hull, and believed by many to be inspired, the Foreign Relations chairman asserted "the second the neutrality act is put in force and effect, the influence of the President in bringing about a cessation of hostilities in China would be greatly depreciated and his great power for the protection of our citizens impaired."

The statement was issued as the President and his Secretary of State were continuing their efforts, under way since the new North China threat arose, to compose the difficulties between the two governments and prevent widespread hostilities.

Meanwhile, concern of this Government over safety of its nationals in the fighting zone shifted from Peiping, where reasonably peaceful conditions had been re-established, to Tientsin, where artillery fire and bombing from the air were providing fresh peril to some 550 American civilians. The American consul at Tientsin, John K. Caldwell, was co-operating with representatives of other foreign governments in efforts to bring about a cessation of fighting.

Americans in the Tientsin danger areas were being warned to take refuge in the foreign concessions protected by foreign troops, and guards were provided to escort them through troubled parts of the city.

Plans are complete for removing the Americans from Tientsin if that step becomes necessary, Secretary of State Hull said, just as plans had been made, long in advance, for evacuation of those in Peipng had the situation there justified it.

Boxing Bear to Thrill Night Club Patrons Week of Aug. 9.

By Chanticleer

It has remained for Gardner Moore, alert boss of the doings at the Shoreham, to bag the first bear in the business of providing after-dark entertainment for the jaded appetites of Washingtonians. There may have been a bear in the public arenas before, but not within the last few years.

The Shoreham has engaged the services of Walldorf's boxing bear, Teddy Brown Bruin, by name, and a "pug" of the widest experience and most gentlemanly deportment in the ring. He will spar with his master and trainer, Gus Walldorf, for the edification of the Shoreham's Terrace patrons, the week of August 9. Teddy weighs in at 400 and Gus, 175.

You might be interested to know that Teddy fought Max Schmeling in Germany one time and Max "admitted" it was "the toughest battle of his career."

The theory at the Hamilton these hot days is that any man (or woman, for that matter) has just as hearty an appetite as in brisk winter weather. But—the trick is to give the luncheon or dinner the right touch, just the precise thing that will lure the sleeping appetite into the open. Courteous service and an air-cooled dining room help polish off the success of the Hamilton.

Peter Borras, who is your host at the Madrillon, probably is as content and happy as any restaurateur in town, but he has worked for that distinction. Pete Borras began business with the idea that food, music and entertainers should be ranked in that order of importance. The result is that people like the Madrillon because they get good food! But Johnny Shaw and his ork and a whale of a lot of service are needed to back up the cuisine in this day of dine-and-dancing.

Hungry for an old-fashioned chicken dinner? Nice idea for a cool drive in the evening; to Boulevard Farms, with your dinner served in a huge overgrown log building with the scent of pine wood in the breeze and country baked biscuits in great numbers at your elbow. Floor show and dancing later in the evening.

Relief Project Board Refuses To End Strike

Tygart Valley Homesteaders Demand Action on Waste Charges.

Elkins, W. Va., July 29.—The board of directors of the Tygart Valley Association, leaders of strikers at the Federal Government's $1,000,000 Tygart homestead project, refused today to return to work.

D. F. Comey, relief construction engineer at the project, disclosed tonight he had asked the board to order its followers to return to their jobs pending adjustment of the board's protests.

R. Z. Wilson, a member of the board, declared tonight:

Strikers Seek Action.

"We're going to stay out until we get action."

Ninety-eight men workers halted the communal work on the houses and a limestone plant, because they don't like the way the Government is managing the resettlement community that spreads over 2,500 acres of farming land 10 miles from Elkins.

The strikers could not walk out; they have plenty to do, they explained, working about their own plots of ground and on a large cooperative farm which is owned and managed by the Tygart Valley Association, comprised of homesteaders who borrowed the purchase money from the Federal Resettlement Administration.

Waste Is Charged.

L. W. Coberly, resident engineer, said: "The men are not striking for better wages. There's just a little group trying to dictate the management personnel and criticizing the managers here and the Resettlement Administration in Washington."

Waste of funds and inefficient management were charged by the board of directors of the association, who also complained that the Government proposed to let a contract for a new community house to a private company instead of letting the homesteaders do the work by Government contract.

Parley Set for Today.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 29 (AP).—Committee for Industrial Organization pickets patrolled three strike-closed packing plants today as union and company leaders planned a peace conference tomorrow.

At the same time, the territory's wholesale food jobbers, a paralyzing eight-day truck drivers' strike ended, worked feverishly to fill a rush of retail orders.

Bus Drivers Return.

Detroit, July 29 (AP).—Striking bus drivers returned to duty this afternoon in time to accommodate the home-going rush from Detroit's business district. Their return ended a one-day strike marked by violence at bus garages and confusion among commuting thousands.

A temporary agreement to end what union officials termed a "wildcat" strike was reached shortly after noon in a conference between representatives of the union and of the Detroit street railway system.

Ford Plea Rejected.

Detroit, July 29 (AP).—The Ford Motor Co., concluding its defense against charges of unfair labor practices, unsuccessfully renewed today its motion for dismissal of the National Labor Relations Board complaint.

NLRB rebuttal witnesses will be heard tomorrow.

Funeral Set Today For Paul Allen, 55

Funeral services for Paul Allen, 55, retired restaurant owner, who died Tuesday in Georgetown Hospital after a long illness, will be held at 9 a. m. today in St. Martin's Catholic Church. A brief service at his home, 147 R street northeast, will be held earlier. Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Mr. Allen was a native of Washington and ran several restaurants here. He was proprietor of a restaurant at Fifth and E streets until he retired several months ago due to ill health.

He left his wife, Mrs. Sadie Allen; two sons, Paul, jr., and Jack Allen; two daughters, Mary F. and Rita Allen; a brother, John J. Allen, and five sisters, Mrs. Bridget Handley, Mrs. Margaret Phelps, Mrs. Katie Lee, Mrs. Elizabeth Riley and Mrs. Jane Fitzgerald.

Coroner Refuses Open Verdict in Death of Trooper

Annapolis, Md., July 29 (AP).—Acting coroner Louis Strauss has refused to accept an open verdict returned by a coroner's jury investigating the death of State Policeman J. Leo Shaab, killed in a highway accident July 22.

Strauss held the verdict was in improper form and referred it to State's Attorney Roscoe C. Rowe for "such action as he sees fit."

Officer Shaab's motorcycle was in collision with an automobile operated by Lieut. Donald F. Krick, U. S. N., of the Naval Academy, on the Annapolis boulevard three miles from here. Lieut. Krick later was charged with reckless driving and released under $1,000 bond.

The jury's verdict stated that the State trooper "came to his death from a broken neck and fractured skull" suffered by "coming in contact with a car turning into a side road . . . driven by Lieut. Krick."

State's Attorney Rowe refused to comment on the case or the verdict other than to say the reckless driving charge and the naval officer's bond "still stand."

"They will be disposed of later," Rowe added, but refused to amplify the statement.

5 Typhoid Cases In Hospital; 1 Dead

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., July 29.—Five victims of typhoid fever, all residents of nearby counties, were patients at Mary Washington Hospital today, while funeral rites for a 14-year-old colored boy who succumbed to the disease were held in Caroline County this afternoon.

Dr. Thomas B. Payne, city health officer, said that not in his recollection had there been so many typhoid sufferers in the hospital at one time.

There are no cases in the city. Four of the typhoid patients are from King George County. The fifth victim is from Stafford.

Five hundred persons were given first treatment for immunization of typhoid fever in King George County at a clinic sponsored by the board of supervisors and health board Monday.

D. C. May Be Free Of Budget Bureau

With his District reorganization bill still incomplete, Representative Kennedy (Democrat), of Maryland, disclosed yesterday that one provision would put an end to the Budget Bureau's control of the local budget.

Under Kennedy's plan the Budget Bureau would be authorized only to review and make recommendations as to the District budget. The bureau's proposals would not be binding on the District heads, as at present.

Kennedy hopes to have his measure ready for introduction in the House early next week.

160 Children to Attend Charlottesville's Camp

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., July 29.—One hundred and sixty boys and girls will attend the city camp during August, it was announced today by John E. Hancock, camp director.

The camp, located at the foot of the Blue Ridge in Sugar Hollow, 19 miles west of Charlottesville, will open Monday with 40 boys registered for the first week. There will be four periods, the first two for boys, the last two for girls.

State Notables Attend Outing of Rotary Club

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, July 29.—The annual outing of the Hagerstown Rotary Club at the estate of J. Andrew Cohill, near Hancock, yesterday afternoon and night attracted one avowed candidate for Governor and two others who have been mentioned. Mayor Howard W. Jackson, Baltimore; Attorney General Herbert R. O'Conor and Senate President Lansdale G. Sasscer, were were among the guests.

D.C. Man Killed, Woman Injured In Motor Crash

Auto Strikes Pole Near Woodville, Va.; Two Hurt in District.

J. Hampton Brown, of 2827 Twenty-eighth street northwest, was killed and Mrs. Virginia Bowman, of Culpeper, Va., was seriously injured when the car in which they were riding plunged off the road near Woodville, Va., and struck a telephone pole yesterday morning.

Three other occupants of the car received slight injuries. They were Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Perrow and a colored driver, all of Culpeper. Mrs. Bowman was believed to have a fractured skull.

Two Hurt in District.

Richard Oulahan, 44, son of Richard V. Oulahan, noted Washington newspaper correspondent, suffered a fractured skull early yesterday when his automobile crashed into a stone coping around the Capitol Grounds at South Capitol street and Independence avenue.

Oulahan was taken to Emergency Hospital, where doctors last night said his condition was better, but still critical.

Knocked down by an automobile in the 1000 block M street southeast, Bertha Irene King, 12, 1231 Eleven-and-a-Half street southeast, was treated at Casualty Hospital. She received cuts on the head.

Mr. Brown is survived by his wife, Mrs. Dorothy Brown; two sisters, Miss Lottie P. Brown and Miss Lelia Moncure Brown, whose home is next door to Mr. Brown's late residence, and three brothers, Thomas Lee Brown, Martinsburg, W. Va.; Charles Douglas Brown, Warrenton, Va., and Henry Ashby Brown, Remington, Va.

Born near Midland, Va., Mr. Brown attended Richmond College, Richmond, Va., and during the war was enrolled in the Student Army Training Corps. He had been a resident of the District for the past 15 years, and at the time of his death he was employed as salesman with McCormick & Co., Baltimore.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 11 a. m. at Fort Myer Chapel, with burial in Arlington National Cemetery.

Boy Hurt in Leap Reported Improved

Sixteen-year-old Thomas Farrell, who was seriously injured when he fled from a policeman rather than return to the Industrial Home School, was reported slightly improved in Emergency Hospital last night.

Farrell, who is almost 6 feet tall and has been ill, leaped 35 feet from the top of the Sixteenth street entrance to Meridian Park when Park Policeman Henry Brown recognized him.

The youth was placed in the home two years ago by his mother who was unable to provide for him. He has no criminal record. Tommy failed to return to the home last week after a weekly visit with his mother who lives at 1236 Euclid street northwest. He had been living in the parks trying to find a job when Policeman Brown came upon him.

Boys Club Reports Attendance Gains

In a report submitted to the president and members of the board of trustees of the Boys Club of Washington for June, Charles M. Fyfe, managing director, disclosed a marked increase in attendance over the same period for 1936.

The report of the physical department of the club for June showed a total service to 12,242 members and spectators—an average service of 471 daily. Attendance of the department amounted to 4,562 for the month.

The recreational department was attend by 2,907 members, the educational department by 1,841 and the special department, by 1,096 including guests. The grand total service figure for the month amounted to 23,730.

R. B. Williams Named To Reclamation Post

R. B. Williams, construction engineer on the All-American Canal, has been appointed assistant commissioner of the Bureau of Reclamation. L. J. Foster, of the Government Reclamation Service at Yuma, Ariz., will succeed Williams as engineer on the canal. The latter is expected to arrive in Washington early next week.

Williams was born in Beattyville, Ky., on December 14, 1888, and was graduated from Montana State College in 1911. He has been in the Government service since January, 1912, serving first as a survey man on the Flathead Project in Montana. He left the Boulder Dam Project on October 16, 1934, going to the All-American Canal.

Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

Defend According to Objective.

Defenders must keep before them at all times as their "North star" the number of tricks necessary to defeat the contract. If the setting trick is clearly in sight the only sensible plan is one that will merely throw safeguards around that trick. If, however, the setting trick is problematical, safety should be thrown to the winds in favor of speculation. Consider this hand.

North, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.
The bidding:

	♠ K 9 8 5 ♡ A Q J 10 ◇ A 7 5 ♣ 9 7
♠ — ♡ 9 8 ◇ 10 8 4 3 ♣ Q J 10 6 5 3 2	North West East South	♠ 4 3 2 ♡ K 6 5 3 ◇ K Q 2 ♣ A 8 4
	♠ A Q J 10 7 6 ♡ 7 4 2 ◇ J 9 6 ♣ K

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

West opened the Queen of clubs, and East's Ace dropped declarer's blank King. At this point East could count three virtually certain winners against the game contract: the club Ace, one diamond trick and the heart King. Where to look for the fourth and setting trick was the only question. Obviously there was nothing to be done in clubs and, from the bidding, a spade trick seemed out of the question. One heart trick was certainly the limit. This left the dimond suit as the only tree that might bear fruit. If West had the diamond Jack, driving out dummy's Ace while retaining control of the heart suit, would, if, declarer had three diamonds result in two diamond tricks for the defenders.

But there was no assurance that West had the Jack, and the crux was to lead diamonds in such a way that even if declarer had the Jack he might guess badly and leave himself open to two diamond losers.

On this quite flawless theory East led—not the King of diamonds—but the deuce. Declarer hemmed and hawed and finally decided to play the nine from his own hand, hoping that East was leading away from some such combination as Queen-ten-small. As a matter of fact, no criticism can be attached to declarer for this guess—to have put up the Jack would have savored of clairvoyance.

West's ten covered the nine and forced the Ace, and later East secured his precious two diamond tricks for the defeat of the contract.

To show the difference in defense according to the objective, let us imagine that on precisely the same hand North and South had bid themselves up to five spades. Against that contract East, after winning the club Ace, and with one diamond trick and the heart King clearly in sight, would be terribly foolish to lead any card except the diamond King.

1936 Navy Pact Takes Effect as Empire Signs

British Dominions Subscribe to Treaty; Japan, Italy Out.

By the Associated Press.

London, July 29.—The 1936 London naval treaty among the United States, France and Great Britain went into force today when the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and India deposited ratifications at the foreign office.

All the major naval powers except Japan and Italy now have subscribed. The United States Senate ratified it May 18, 1936, and France followed suit June 25, 1937. Germany and Soviet Russia came within its provisions July 17, when they signed separate agreements with Great Britain.

Japan turned her back on the pact. Italy refused to sign because of sanctions against her and the Mediterranean defensive agreements during the Ethiopian war.

Successor to the 1922 Washington and 1930 London naval treaties, the 1936 pact provides no limitation of fleet strength, but restricts the size of certain ship types and guns.

It also introduced for the first time the principle of advance notification of building programs, combined with a system of exchange of information among the signatories.

The previous treaties expired last December 31. The new treaty will remain in effect until December 31, 1942. It limits battleships to a maximum of 35,00 tons, new cruisers to 8,000 tons, aircraft carriers to 23,000 tons and submarines to 2,000 tons.

The signatories may declare the agreement off if any nonsigner exceeds these limitations.

A provisional limitation of 14 inches for battleship guns already has lapsed because of Japanese nonacceptance. The United States has announced that its two new 35,000-ton battleships will mount 16-inch guns.

If practicable, a conference will be held in 1941 to frame a new pact "for the reduction and limitation of naval armament."

Bad Check Writer To Serve 900 Days For Less Than $60

For writing and uttering 13 bad checks for a total amount of less than $60, Charles R. Schroth, 42, no fixed address, was sentenced to 900 days in jail yesterday by the Police Court Judge Isaac R. Hitt.

Schroth was arrested several days ago by detectives of the check squad. Investigation disclosed he had written the checks and passed them mostly in liquor and grocery stores.

Judge Hitt sentenced him to 60 days each on 12 false representation charges and 180 days on one charge of embezzlement involving $13.40.

Police records show that Schroth has spent most of the past ten years in jail for writing bad checks. He recently served two years in Lorton for the same offense.

Drunk Seeks Loan, Kills Bank Officer

Muskogee, Okla., July 29 (AP).—A drunken man who wanted a loan shot and killed L. W. McLean, vice president, at his desk in the Commercial National Bank here today.

Police held J. C. Fast, jr., 28, of the Fast Motor Co., for investigation. Police Chief Ed Corbin said Fast was drunk. He also said H. H. Ogden, president of the First National Bank & Trust Co., reported Fast approached him at that bank and, apparently drunk, threatened him.

Prokosch's New Novel Awarded Harper Prize

New York, July 29 (AP).—Frederic Prokosch, squash and tennis playing author of "The Asiatics," has won the Harper prize of $7,500 with his second novel. Prokosch calls the prize-winner "The Seven Who Fled."

He is 28 years old, Wisconsin born of Austrian ancestry, and has studied at Haverford College and Yale, and at Cambridge in England. At present he is working on a long picaresque novel in England, on a Guggenheim fellowship. Later he plans to travel extensively.

Blast Blows Salesman In Air and Out of Shoes

Hartford, S. Dak., July 29 (AP).—An explosion blasted the shoes from a man's feet here today but left him uninjured except for bruises.

B. J. McCartney, a salesman, was standing outside an oil company station when an explosion of undetermined cause wrecked the building and sent McCartney hurtling through the air. He picked himself up, gingerly felt bruises resulting from flying tile which hit him, and calmly retrieved his shoes.

Senate Orders Cotton Group's Profits Studied

American Co-Operative Association Target of Inquiry.

By the Associated Press.

The Senate ordered an investigation yesterday of activities of the American Cotton Co-operative Association.

It approved a resolution directing the Senate Agriculture Committee to investigate three points:

"1. The activities of the American Cotton Co-operative Association in connection with the grading, stapling, reconcentration, and marketing of cotton financed by the Federal Government, by means of loans and advances made by the Commodity Credit Corporation and the cotton producers pool.

"2. The profits derived by such association and other persons and the losses incurred by farmers as a result of such activities.

"3. The membership of the association, its interlocking directorates, if any, its financial structure and operations."

The third point was added in an amendment offered by Senator McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee, chairman of a committee which once investigated the organization.

This point gave the committee broad authority to go into all phases of the co-operative to determine whether it was a co-operative actually, or "simply a buying and selling organization for the benefit of its officers."

The resolution, which Chairman Smith of the Agriculture Committee introduced, authorized the committee to spend $10,000 on the inquiry.

Senator Smith, in a statement, said "there are so many charges and rumors abroad concerning the grading, stapling and financing of this loan cotton that I thought in justice to all parties concerned that a thorough and impartial investigation should be made without fear and favor in order to dig up the facts and give them to Congress and the public."

Smith said the inquiry probably would be conducted in Washington or New Orleans. It will be held, he said, after Congress adjourns with a special agricultural subcommittee conducting the investigation.

Copeland Talks With Al Smith, Tammany Men

New York, July 29 (AP).—United States Senator Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), New York, Tammany's candidate for the Democratic mayorality nomination, conferred today with Alfred E. Smith and Tammany leaders.

Copeland was designated the Wigwam's choice after a bitter fight a week ago, led by the late James J. Dooling, whose funeral today marked the termination of a political truce.

Democratic leaders of four other New York counties and some Tammany district leaders are supporting Grover A. Whalen for the nomination.

An unofficial spokesman said there was no agreement at today's conference on Dooling's successor and a meeting of Tammany Hall's executive committee would be held Monday.

LaGuardia Front Silent.

There was no further development in the problem of whether Mayor F. H. LaGuardia would be a candidate in the Republican primaries as well as the candidate of the American Labor Party, supported by fusion groups and a citizens non-partisan committee.

The citizens' group, headed by former Judge Samuel Seabury, suspended deliberations for 24 hours to await developments among the Republican groups in Manhattan and Brooklyn.

The Church of the Holy Cross, in West Forty-second street, was filled to its capacity of 2,200 when a solemn high requiem mass was celebrated for Dooling. Thousands waited outside

Leaders at Mass

Among those at the services were former Gov. Smith, Dooling's political mentor; Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, Senator Copeland, Lieut. Gov. M. William Bray, U. S. Senator Robert F. Wagner, Whalen, whom Dooling had opposed for the mayoralty designation, and a host of judges, legislators and other officials.

A sprinkling of Republicans was noted in the throng, including Kenneth F. Simpson, New York county chairman, and Samuel Koenig, his predecessor.

Does it mix?

It is a mixing gin, we think, when you neither smell nor taste it in the finished drink

IN A PERFECT GIN RICKEY, the gin must uphold the delicate flavor of lime with smooth and tireless power—never jolt it—never run away with it. Unless gin shows this polished smoothness, it is not a mixer.

Mixed drinks are an American idea. To meet the American taste for smooth mixed drinks, Fleischmann's Gin is distilled especially for mixing—from American grain.

Health Camp Funds Swelled By New Gifts

All Beds at Bald Eagle Expected to Be Filled By Sunday.

Contributions to the District Tuberculosis Association health camp for children now total $3,509 and indications are that the camp will be filled to capacity by Sunday, Mrs. Ernest R. Grant, managing director, said yesterday.

Already 111 children are at the Bald Eagle Hill camp, which has a capacity of 125 beds. Sixty dollars is enough to finance the stay of a tubercular child there for the remaining six weeks. Fifty-one children have gone to the hill within the past few weeks as the result of voluntary contributions with which the association is supplementing the fund raised by the sale of Christmas seals.

Recent donations have included a $72 pension check from a veteran; $260 from a Washington couple who gave $140 and then an additoinal $120 after they had been to the camp to see "their first two children," and $120 from one of the city's bankers.

The association is sponsoring the premiere showing at RKO-Keith's Theater at 9 p. m. Wednesday of "The Toast of New York." In order that the children will not have to wait until the show is over, Manager Hardie Meakin already has forwarded $120 to the association.

"If the contributions continue to come in as they have the past few days, we will have a camp full this week-end," Mrs. Grant said.

Moscow Constructing Highest Skyscraper

Moscow, July 29 (AP).—Construction of what is intended to be the world's tallest skyscraper was under way today in the heart of Moscow.

Designed to rise more than 1,300 feet above the city, the building would surpass New York's Empire State building, 102 stories and 1,248 feet tall, highest in the world. It is to be crowned by a huge statue of Lenin.

Virginia Farm Debt Reduced, RA Says

By the Associated Press.

The Resettlement Administration announced yesterday that debts of 1,230 Virginia farmers were reduced $633,892 in the 22-month period ended June 30 through efforts of the voluntary farm debt adjustment committees under the administration's supervision.

As a result of the program in Virginia, $21,696 in back taxes were paid local governments, the report said.

The debt adjustment committees served as mediators between "overburdened farm debtors and their creditors," the administration said.

First Class Fare Raised By Western Railroads

Chicago, July 29 (AP).—The Western Association of Railway Executives said today that an increase from 2 cents to 2¼ cents a mile for first-class round-trip tickets on all Western railroads would become effective October 16.

Humble Oil Co. Chief Among Air Crash Dead

Amsterdam, July 29 (U.P.).—Three Americans killed yesterday in the crash of a Paris-bound airliner near Brussels were identified today.

They were Prof. William Randolph Kanton, Uniontown, Pa.; Benjamin Mun, president of the Humble Oil Co., Hollywood, Calif.; and Milton Goldbloom, Pittsburgh. Twelve others died in the accident, attributed to a thunderstorm.

Is It A Precedent?

The controversy growing out of Mrs. Roosevelt's tax-free donations to charity is serving a useful purpose. She sought advice from the Treasury and was informed that the receipts from her broadcasts would not be treated as personal income subject to taxation beyond the 15 per cent exemption allowed by law. Since the payments were made directly to designated charities, Mrs. Roosevelt was held to have donated her services as do persons who give benefit performances.

No possible criticism can attach to Mrs. Roosevelt's action. It is both unfair and misleading to suggest that she is a tax evader, since she neither gained nor lost by the Treasury ruling. The sole question at issue was whether the entire proceeds of her broadcasts might be given away or whether part of the returns would have to be paid into the Federal Treasury. That question having been answered in this particular case, however, the public would now like to know whether Treasury officials are prepared to give advice upon request to other citizens faced by similar problems.

Assistant Attorney General Jackson told the Joint Congressional Committee on Tax Avoidance that he believed Mrs. Roosevelt had not signed her radio contracts at the time her request for a ruling was made. In other words, he assumed that she sought an advance ruling as to future tax liabilities. Yet Undersecretary of the Treasury Magill had previously testified that the Bureau of Internal Revenue answered inquiries only after transactions involving income had been completed. It certainly looks as if Mrs. Roosevelt had been given the benefit of official advice denied to others in the past. Does this mean that hereafter the Treasury intends to answer hypothetical questions relating to unconsummated transactions? Or is Mrs. Roosevelt to remain an exception to its usual rule?

The Roosevelt ruling is certainly important viewed as a precedent. If generally applied, it may greatly extend the range of tax-free donations to charity. Public-spirited citizens, heads of charitable institutions, and community chests would like to know under what conditions income and earnings may be assigned to charity without deductions for taxes. What sort of activities would the Treasury officials be willing to classify as benefit performances similar to Mrs. Roosevelt's broadcasts? Would they, for example, permit profits from a particular business enterprise to be assigned to a designated charity free of tax liability? These and other queries are suggested by the Roosevelt ruling. The First Lady of the Land asked a legitimate question and received an answer. Other citizens have a right to expect equally considerate treatment.

While Depositors Wait.

A year has gone by since the Fidelity Building & Loan Association closed its doors and the shareholders of that defunct institution have not yet received a dollar. From time to time they have been cheered by reports that a reorganization would soon be effected and that they would be able to liquidate their holdings at 85 cents on the dollar. But these reports have served only to sharpen their disappointment over the continued delay.

Of course, this delay is inimical to the interests of the shareholders. From their point of view the sooner the assets of the Fidelity are transferred to a going concern, the greater the chances of salvaging a large part of their original investment. Receiverships are notoriously costly and should be terminated as soon as possible.

In the present case, prolonged indecision is particularly unpardonable since it appears to be due chiefly to a conflict between the office of the Comptroller of the Currency and officials of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. Wide difference of opinion exist as to the proper valuation to be put upon the assets of the defunct institution. There is also disagreement as to the nature of the guarantees that should be given to shareholders in the new First Federal Savings & Loan Association organized to take over the Fidelity assets. Under the circumstances it is not surprising that an impasse has developed, jeopardizing the entire reorganization plan.

It was a severe shock to confidence when the Comptroller's office discovered irregularities apparently of long standing which led to the closing of the Fidelity Building & Loan Association. Tardy intervention emphasized the need of more searching examination that would uncover losses and check unsound practices before it was too late. But instead of correcting those deficiencies, the Comptroller's office has permitted the affairs of this large institution to drift into a still more complicated situation. Confidence in the good judgment of supervising authorities is certainly not strengthened when dissension between two agencies is thus allowed to jeopardize shareholders' interests

A Law That Aids Warmongers.

The ominous situation in the Far East, where thousands of Chinese and Japanese are now engaged in bloody combat, throws into sharp focus the dangerous absurdity of our existing neutrality law.

When that law was placed on the statute books earlier this year, the motivating force was the threat of war in Europe, which had also occasioned the original neutrality law of 1935. The pseudo-historical arguments adduced from our experience of 1914-1917 in support of mandatory neutrality applied, if they applied at all, to the European situation and our possible relationship to it rather than to our policies regarding the Far East.

Two major wars have taken place in Eastern Asia in modern times and an almost uncounted number of minor clashes. We have managed, with no effort whatever, to avoid getting mixed up in those fights. There is not the slightest reason why we cannot, under almost any circumstances, stay aloof from the present and impending conflicts if it is to our interest to do so. Yet the law that was written with Europe in mind applies with equal force to all countries outside the American hemisphere.

The test impends. China and Japan are today at war. There has, of course, been no declaration of war. There may never be any such declaration, for, as a spokesman of the foreign office at Nanking so ingenuously put it, "legal warfare is impossible since the Kellogg Pact." But, he quickly added, "actual hostilities will be on a major scale."

Our Government can ignore the state of war only by evading the clear implications of the neutrality act. But if the law is applied we will find ourselves in the astonishing position of being, from the viewpoint of trade and commerce, the effective ally of Japan. That prospect is especially strange because of the fact that the overwhelming majority of Americans regard Japan as the aggressor in the present conflict.

It will be said, of course, that we cannot afford to be sentimental at a time such as this; that staying out of war is the greatest of our present needs, transcending all questions of friendship for China, historic policies and material interests. But this implies that the United States, having stayed out of all Far Eastern wars since this Nation came into being, is in danger of involvement now. An excess of fear can be as dangerous as foolhardiness.

What our neutrality law, if applied, would do is further to weaken the structure of peace in the Far East by giving aid and comfort to an aggressor and striking a vital blow at a nation seeking desperately to defend its sovereignty and territorial integrity. In the name of peace we should thus become accomplices of the warmongers.

Such a policy is destructive of our own interests. As President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull have pointed out on more than one occasion, we have a stake in peace because we are certain to feel the terrible aftermath of war even when we are not direct participants. And yet the neutrality law makes it impossible for the officials entrusted with the direction of our foreign policy to use their full discretion in fostering the cause of peace.

Through some convenient loophole the Administration may be spared the unwelcome necessity of applying the neutrality law to China and Japan. But it would be far better to admit the falsity of the premises upon which the law rests. It is still within the power of Congress to act. And it can do so by voting that "the neutrality act of 1937 is hereby repealed." Then the President and the State Department could resume that freedom of action which is necessary to help keep down the fires of war now threatening to get out of control in the Far East.

Disuniting Ireland.

The great majority of the inhabitants of Belfast gave an enthusiastic welcome to King George VI and Queen Elizabeth on their first visit to that city since their coronation. The demonstration, of course, indicated the determination of Northern Ireland to retain the present link with Great Britain and the empire.

In this respect the attitude of Northern Ireland is in sharp contrast with that officially upheld in the Irish Free State by President de Valera and his followers. They make no bones about their ultimate aim of making all of Ireland a sovereign republic completely independent of Great Britain.

With respect to this objective, Mr. de Valera can boast of a very large measure of success. Neither the British crown nor the British government now exercises even the slightest measure of authority at Dublin. Insofar as there is still a link between the Free State and Great Britain it is a voluntary one of equality within the British Commonwealth of Nations. At present the Free State does not even possess the unifying symbol of a common crown, for it has thus far refrained from recognizing the kingship of George VI.

It may be that, in the course of time, De Valera's other aim—the unification of all Ireland under one government—will also be achieved. From any objective viewpoint that outcome would seem desirable. But in view of the present temper of the people of the north, it is far from practicable at the moment. And the grotesquely bad judgment of those who used the occasion of the Belfast visit of the British monarch to carry out a number of terroristic acts will hardly cause the Ulsterites to change their minds.

With such terrorism De Valera himself, and no doubt an overwhelming majority of the people of the Free State, are certainly out of sympathy. The Free State's chief has himself had difficulties during recent years with the extreme Republican element. So he will realize that burnings and bombings serve only to preserve that gulf of fear, suspicion and hatred which keeps the two parts of Ireland apart, and which causes the northern segment to cling so tenaciously to the British connection.

On Choosing A New Justice.

One of the most important posts President Roosevelt will have the opportunity of filling is the Supreme Court chair vacated by Justice Van Devanter. There are encouraging indications that the President is considering this nomination with exceptional care. At the same time, his request for a ruling from the Attorney General suggests an unfortunate inclination to postpone the appointment until after Congress adjourns.

Mr. Cummings has been asked to decide whether a recess appointment could be made. Similar questions have been asked previous Attorneys General and some strange replies have been given. But the intent of the founding fathers does not appear open to question. They wrote into the Constitution this clear provision:

> The President shall have power to fill up all vacancies that may happen during the recess of the Senate, by granting commissions which shall expire at the end of their next session.

That arrangement is obviously intended to permit the temporary filling of vacancies occurring when Congress is not in session. All other appointments are to be made "by and with the advice and consent of the Senate." Since the vacancy on the Supreme Court "happened" during the present session of Congress, a straightforward interpretation of the organic law plainly calls for the nomination of a new justice before the legislative session ends.

Aside from the constitutional aspects of the question, however, the public interest calls for an early appointment of Justice Van Devanter's successor. Since the President has recently conducted a memorable campaign ostensibly to facilitate the work of the Supreme Court, it would be entirely unreasonable for him to handicap the court by leaving one of its posts vacant. In any event the new justice ought to be named in time to permit some preparation for the court's autumn session.

No doubt the President would agree with that generalization. If so, why should a recess appointment be considered at all? It should be no more difficult to select a new justice within the next fortnight than it would be a few weeks after Congress adjourns.

Certainly a permanent appointment to a position of this sort is much to be preferred. A justice holding a temporary commission would not be a free agent. He would stand in danger of having every decision he might make used against him by some group when his name should come up for confirmation. Moreover, the Senate would probably interpret postponement of this vital nomination as a means of presenting that body with an accomplished fact next year. In its present temper the Senate would undoubtedly resent such procedure, and with good reason.

What Makes For Longevity?

From the Brooklyn Daily Eagle.

Most people would like to live long, and in London 6,000 men and women have formed the Centenarians Club to study scientific ways of prolonging life, all hoping to reach the hundred-year mark. Already their investigations have cast doubt on the legend about Thomas Parr, who is supposed, in the seventeenth century, to have reached the age of 152. Dr. Maurice Ernst, founder of the club, reports that the most authentic case he can find is that of a French-Canadian, who lived to be 113 in the last century.

At present experts hold that at birth each person has a sort of charge of energy which determines the length of life, barring accident or infective diseases. The index known as the basal metabolism rate tells the expert how the body converts its food into energy and, although there are ways to change it, this rate remains remarkably stable. Certain Indians, it has recently been learned, convert their food into energy more efficiently than any other human known, but no one knows why.

Food scientists now suspect that careful diet cannot only increase efficiency of energy output but can actually increase the fundamental amount of energy available. These items, as yet not welded into any definite technique, bear on the always fascinating question: How can we live longer?

Antagonisms In Palestine.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Since some prominent men of our country, including some outstanding clergymen, have been induced to sign a paper protesting against the British idea of partitioning Palestine, a few further words should be added from one who has known the situation intimately for the last 20 years.

The assumption that the Jew has rights of original possession of Palestine over the Arab has no more justification in fact than to say that the Ohio Valley or Canada belong to the French because they once held it. The Jews overran Palestine in early days. They were in turn displaced by other nations. The Arab has been the last on the ground, and was promised by the British, if he helped to drive off the Turk in World War days, he should have the land as his own.

The Balfour Declaration which came afterwards, is in substance but this: "His majesty, King George, would be pleased, if it is practicable, to give Palestine to the Jews for a homeland. But it was not practicable. The British are not truce-breakers nor traitors to the Jews, when they find that to give Palestine to the Jews as a national homeland would create opposition from both Arabs and Christians, and bring on such a state of uprising among now contented millions, as the world has not seen for a long time.

These signers of this protest do not seem to realize that in Palestine now there are about one round million of Arabs and Christians. The Christians almost to a man stand with the Arabs in the contest. The reason for this is deeprooted, and I state but one fact: The Arab has no prejudice, or at least shows none, concerning the holy places of the Christian. He visits them and enters into keenest sympathy with the Christian as to their historicity. Of course, the Jew guide will not enter the Mosque of Omar, nor have any enthusiasm over Nazareth, Bethlehem. Bethany, Golgotha or the Church of the Holy Sepulcher. No one expects him to have it. He is concerned with Tel-Aviv and other Jewish colonies about which the tourist non-Jew from America has no interest.

The Arab becomes a Christian when he attends the Christian schools at Beirut and other similar places. The Jew seldom, if ever, becomes a Christian. Hence the fellow-feeling between the Christian and Arab which so few of our people in America understand. The Christian in Palestine has had little or no trouble with the Arab, because he creates no divisive feelings in the realm of religion. But the statement that the Jew and Arab have lived peacefully together and do now, is absolutely false. It is a case of most bitter antagonism. And the antagonism is an "irrepressible conflict."

Reply To Communists.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Apparently the new dialectics of the modern democratic Communist Party is able to discern a necessary contradiction between a threat to beat up and the act of beating up!

Hooliganism is a Fascist tactic and practice, and the thuggery practiced at the Belasco meeting of July 20 against members of a dissident group was not a spontaneous thing, as Mr. Chancey would have us believe, but was deliberately organized by individuals known to be sympathetic to his group, if not members. The function today of the misnamed Communist Party is to act as apologist for a "liberal" capitalism instead of exposing to the workers this form of capitalism for what it is—the desperate efforts of a decadent system to reconcile the irreconcilable.

Since when has it become an offense among those of the revolutionary persuasion to advocate revolution against capitalism in all its forms? In Spain the capitalist Popular Front government crushes all efforts of the workers to form their own soviets and to build a movement for the erection of a workers' state. Instead of demanding the freedom of workers' organizations to function and to represent their own interests against that of the capitalists, to build their own army and government to defeat Franco, the Communist (Stalinist) Party actively co-operates in the murderous work of sending militant dissident workers to the front, in crushing all mass protests and popular uprisings against the oppressions of capitalist exploitation.

In their plea for abstract democracy and their opposition to all independent working class effort Mr. Chancey and other representatives of his party expose themselves for what they are—nothing but exponents of the shallow and impossible doctrine of capitalist democracy. Where is the doctrine of the class war, where the call for a proletarian dictatorship, the slogan that all expressions of capitalism, including the latest and most hideous form, fascism, can be defeated only by a revolutionary working class movement having for its goal the overthrow of capitalism and the erection of a socialist society?

These truths are buried, they hope, with the murdered victims of Stalin's counter-revolutionary regime, in Spain and in Russia. But they hope in vain. It will take more than the American stooges of the despotic regime of Stalinism to bury them. It is a task which capitalism itself can not accomplish.

The Scottsboro Case.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Among the editorials of your valuable paper dated Monday, July 26, was one entitled "The Scottsboro Case."

I am happy to say that in your fearless denouncement of the blind prejudice, shameless injustice, the crushing of truth and the enthronement of falsehood, in the unfair trials of the nine Negro youths in Alabama, you have expressed the sentiment of thousands of fair-minded people all over the world, of all races and creeds.

Congratulations to you on the heroic stand that you have taken for right.

SARAH E. LAWTON.
Washington, July 27.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If the prosecuting witness in the Scottsboro case was a "tramp," the Hoover administration, which brought 15,000,000 Americans to the verge of starvation in the midst of plenty, made her so. Alabama never sank so low.

G. G. MOORE.
Washington, July 26.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have read your splendid editorial of July 26 and wish to commend you for your earnest and frank advocacy of justice and freedom in the case of the Scottsboro victims. You deserve the loyal support of all liberty-loving Americans.

May you continue to have the courage to cry out against the miscarriage of justice whenever and wherever it prevails.

Washington, July 26.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When I read the headline on the front page of The Post of July 25, "Four Liberated, Five Convicted as Scottsboro Trials Close," I said to those around me "What have they done to be convicted? Riding in a car with two prostitutes! Nine boys riding with whom? Tramps like themselves. What sort of a place is Alabama? Those who pretend to be in authority are brutes and savages. Civilization may have reached them, but religion, never."

Those boys who have been made to suffer six and a half years for nothing are human beings just the same as those men in the jury box and on the bench. The stain of this sin has left its indelible imprint upon Alabama and will or should make America hang her head in shame. I fear to think of those who have helped to pass sentence at any period of the trials. God is just and His "I will repay" must come. What an awful place for those of darker skin to have to live in.

Hope In Oxford Group.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There is a current in affairs, both in Europe and America, whose progress I watch with growing hope. In England, in Scandinavia, in Holland and Switzerland the Oxford Group is no longer a phenomenon, but a force which has affected the color of business, politics and even national policy. It is with enthusiasm that I am watching the tide rise, and with the hope that it will yet rise high enough to counterbalance the news of conflict which mars our front pages.

Economy In The SEC.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wish to call your attention to a few inaccuracies in your editorial entitled "Protests Against Economy" which appeared in Monday's Post.

The statement that the union is likely to acquire a reputation for being opposed to any and all forms of economy meets adequate refutation in the terms of the petition itself. I quote:

"We wish to make clear that the union stands squarely behind economy and efficiency in Government service. We are strongly in favor of any economy measures which will eliminate duplication, waste, or unnecessary governmental services. We are, however, opposed to such measures as will impair or curtail the efficient performance of essential Government functions.

"We believe that a policy which removes the incentive of Government employes by eliminating their hopes of promotion may properly be termed false economy and we wish to do all within our power to oppose such measures. It is because of our interest in the welfare of the commission and in the service it performs, as well as the welfare of its employes, that we believe the employes of the commission should not be burdened unfairly with the brunt of the so-called economy measures embodied in office memorandum No. 63."

You also suggest that the employes of the commission have not suffered the effects of the no-promotions policy. The union's memorandum demonstrates that employes of the commission have already been denied increases which they would now be receiving had it not been for the so-called economy drive. The next pay check received by efficient SEC employes admittedly deserving of promotion will not include expected increases in the nature of a just recognition of merit.

This is felt to be especially unfair since many other Government agencies have already given general promotions to their employes effective July 1. Furthermore, the morale of the employes of the SEC has suffered considerably. Our memorandum points out that a large number of employes have voiced dissatisfaction with the no-promotions policy and that many have expressed an intention to seek positions elsewhere.

Thus, while we agree that the evils of overwork which may be experienced as a result of the policy of abolishing vacancies have not as yet begun to appear in their most virulent form, we feel that the failure to receive increases and the consequent impairment of morale are actual, present and immediate evils which must be combated now.

I wish also to take exception to your statement that the SEC's program is a necessary consequence of an unbalanced budget. Even assuming that the budget should be balanced by decreasing expenditures rather than by increased taxation, the proposed saving at the expense of governmental personnel will certainly be an insignificant factor in any budget-balancing program.

Social Problems Of The Century

A DECADE ago, a group used to meet with your publisher to discuss serious questions so audaciously that we took the name, "World Savers' Club." We were challenged to name the paramount problem of that period and propose a solution. We wrote, seeking advice in choosing the chief problem, to a score or more in various fields of activity, and received replies from world leaders which we believe you will find a startling evidence of the continuity of vital problems.

What would you name as the No. 1 problem today? Here is what they said in 1924:

Nicholas Murray Butler: In my judgment, the most important social problem of our time is how to preserve personal, civil and political liberty in the face of a movement which, by the use of conformities, compulsions and prohibitions, aims to establish law-made conformity and mediocrity for all.

Upton Sinclair: I think the most imporant problem of our time is the abolition of poverty.

* * * *

Charles M. Schwab: I am inclined to think that most people are not stopping at one problem, but are trying to solve one problem after another, with a view to making the most of their lives and having as good a time as possible. That does not answer your question, but frankly, I do not know what the answer to your question is.

Samuel Untermyer: I would say, offhand, that the most important social problem of our time is the just distribution of wealth. The workers—the real producers—are not getting by any means a fraction of their share of the wealth they produce. The bulk of it goes to the parasites in industry, among which I include bankers, lawyers and the middlemen in industry, who could be dispensed with under a proper system of marketing.

Charles W. Eliot: To my thinking, the most important social problem of our times is: Shall alcoholism and veneral disease, acting in combination as they have been doing for more than a century past, and aided as they now are by birth control and the rejection by some women of motherhood as their most desirable occupation, be allowed to extinguish before long the white race, or be resisted to the utmost by the effectual means now available?

Stuart P. Sherman: In my opinion, the most important social problem of our time is the clear conception of an objective for our civilization. From a clear conception of an objective, one might formulate a practical and binding working philosophy. With a realistic and cogent working philosophy, one could go to work at producing a type of democratic character. And thus the movement of disintegration now so observable in our society—the movement toward disintegration and anarchy—might be checked

* * * *

Gifford Pinchot: In my opinion, equality of opportunity is the big problem of the time.

Edward W. Bok: To my mind, the dominating problem today for Americans is to have the United States Government do its part for the achievement and preservation of peace in the world. No other question is comparable to it.

Henry Seidel Canby: The most important social problem of our time, I think, is to prevent what the French call the petit bourgeoisie in their new prosperity and influence from vulgarizing our whole civilization. You understand that I am far from objecting to this prosperity. I am merely stating the problem.

William J. Burns: In my opinion, the greatest social problem is to prevent a further spreading of radical propaganda by the Third International of Soviet Russia, which has done more harm to this country in the past six years than any other evil I have ever known. They have spent millions of dollars spreading their propaganda in shops, factories, schools and colleges, churches, farms, the Army and Navy, and, in fact, in every activity of this country.

What is especially important in this country is that we eliminate the power of the Bolsheviks who have aided and abetted Soviet Russia. The recent overwhelming election of President Coolidge and the crushing defeat of La Follette and Wheeler have been a wonderful stride in the process of elimination of this evil.

* * * *

John Haynes Holmes: I think the most important social problem is the reorganization of industry in terms of co-operation and democracy. The most important aspect of this great problem is that of war, which I would define as the most acute problem of our time demanding settlement.

Glenn Frank: Can modern civilization morally control and socially use the results of modern science? Every other problem is subsidiary to this.

Harry Emerson Fosdick: I should suppose that the provision of international substitutes for war is as important a problem of our time as the world faces.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

Unfit For Heaven.

I USUALLY SHUN thoughts of heaven because it always has been impossible for me to imagine complete, unending happiness, and every attempt to visualize that state has splattered against the hard walls of limited view. Nor am I enchanted by the words of a clergyman who last Sunday depicted heaven as a joyous place where angels sing and dance.

My dancing days are over, and even as a ringsider I seem to be approaching the end of my time, because I find that my taste runs more and more to the quiet, oaken restaurants which have roomy chairs with arms on them and specialize in mutton chops and baked potatoes rather than frivolous food and floor shows.

I am one of those who do not care much for dancing, and, as for joy, I am afraid that the joy of contention is one of the best. The joy of ambition—a painful pleasure, to be sure—would seem to be forbidden in heaven, for I am informed that ambition was severely rebuked in a famous case a long time ago.

• • • •

THAT WOULD put me in an uncomfortable fix. I would want a job on a paper arguing with issues day after day and arguing with the boss over a new contract every few hundred million light years. But I couldn't do that in heaven, could I?

I am afraid that I am temperamentally, not to say morally, unfit to dwell in heaven, because I would be just the one to find some fault with the administration or to gossip about my neighbor on the next cloud.

Some good people are frightful prigs, and I might find myself saying uncharitable things about them, as I did, to my regret, when they were with us. I might find myself thrown among prohibitionists—a class which certainly professed to comply with the Commandments and many of whom doubtless did comply. How could I possibly get on with a prohibitionist, a member of the Ku Klux Klan or an Italian soldier who died bravely but, to my belief, despicably in an attempt to impose fascism, which I despise and hate, upon the Spaniards?

I have in mind a more or less professional gambler who died a few years ago about this time of year at Saratoga. He was the most interesting companion I ever met, and, though he believed it his mission on earth to trim a sucker in a nice, polite way, I can take my oath that he never was harsh or selfish but at worst merely mischievous and generous to the point of extravagance.

He did not hate even prohibitionists or reformers. He hated nobody but the double-crosser, and his greatest joy was to play faro. He preferred to win, and he generally lost, but he always enjoyed playing faro. If he has gone to heaven will he find a faro bank where he can twist the tail of old Tige, and if so how can he lose, because won't he know all the answers in advance?

And if there is no chance of his losing what joy will faro be to him, remembering that the element of chance was the source of his joy in playing the game?

Recently I read, following the death of Josh Wilson, an old-time Iowa newspaper reporter, a reprint of a beautiful little piece which he had written some years before, speculating on the difference to him in that billionth part of a second between his death and the entry of his soul into heaven.

I worked in Des Moines in 1913—a few months after Josh Wilson left there to go to Storm Lake to run a paper of his own—and never met him, although I knew many of his friends.

• • • •

HIS ESSAY gloated because in the flicker of an eyelash he, an humble reporter, would know the answer to a question that all the philosophers and scientists of all time never had solved. But there Josh is—a reporter cut off from his paper on the far side of a flood, with the greatest scoop in the history of the world and nothing to do but wrap it around a rock and throw it into space.

A long time ago my old man caught a big story on a fast train and scooped the town by putting five silver dollars into an envelope with his living human document and tossing it off the tailboard of the observation car at Gosport, Ind.

Maybe it was only two dollars, but the expense account said five. Anyway, the envelope hit the station platform with a clank, and the telegraph operator blew him a kiss from the distance as the train went 'round the bend, and my old man was the first on the street in Chicago with the confession of the defaulting banker or whatever it was.

I am sorry for Josh Wilson in heaven—God rest his soul!

The Once Over

News From That 1937 Fresh Air Camp.

Reports from our own Fresh Air Camp being used this season as a refuge for American businessmen indicate that results from a humane standpoint have exceeded all hopes. Businessmen, pale, prostrated and jittery, have been arriving in carload lots from all over the country, and the mere realization that they were away off in the country where no denunciations could reach them worked wonders.

• • • •

Twenty-four hours without a word of criticism! A whole day without a single cry of "Thief!" "Exploiter!" or "Snake!" An entire night without a summons to some new Senate investigation! You should have seen the light of happiness and hope spring back into their eyes when they got up the first morning and didn't see an accusatory finger anywhere.

• • • •

One of the rules of the camp is that all news from Washington be clipped from the newspapers before they are presented to the inmates, and the penalty for any question like "Well, what do you think Congress will do next?" is immediate expulsion.

• • • •

"I wish you could understand what it means to be here," writes one guest, a man who started out in life without a nickel, worked hard, finally became a successful business man and was consequently persecuted and hounded on all sides. "It is now 72 hours since anybody has thumbed a nose at me! The camp is so deep in the woods that the Government can't even reach us by innuendo. What a relief!"

• • • •

Contributions continue to pour in and many people have sent useful gifts. One man sent four barrels of headache powders, but more are needed, as four barrels will hardly cure the headache such as any one businessman has these days.

• • • •

It is very cool nights in the camp, and some of the boys could use hot-water bottles. If you have no hot-water bottles, any photo of Mr. Roosevelt or Mr. Hopkins will do, as they make the boys hot on sight.

• • • •

Have you helped? If not, send in your mite now and help a businessman get a little peace and rest. The fund now stands:

Palestine Problem

Geneva Commission Receives British Plan Today After Unusual Action by Council Head; Advice May Settle Issue.

By C. Poznanski.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Geneva.

TODAY the permanent mandates commission of the League of Nations meets for its most momentous session: It will discuss the British plan for the partition of Palestine.

The commission is an independent organ. Its 11 members are appointed by the League Council, but the majority are nationals of non-mandatory states and as long as they are members they may not hold any office making them directly dependent on their governments. They are independent not only in theory but in fact, as the work of the commission has proved. And it may be noted that the secret meetings of the commission are perhaps the only ones in Geneva whose secrecy is a fact and where leakages before the publication of the report are practically unknown.

British Urge Quick Action On Proposals.

THE FACT that the commission will consider the partition of Palestine is proof of the extreme urgency with which the British view the problem.

The normal function of the commission as defined by the League Covenant is only to "receive and examine the annual reports of the mandatories and advise the Council on all matters relating to the observation of the mandate."

This means that although the Council in considering the termination of the mandate has to ask the advice of the commission, the commission must be specially empowered by the Council to discuss the matter and to give that advice. Normally such power could have been conferred on the commission only at the September meeting of the Council. The commission would then have met in October and the Council might have taken its final decision only at its meeting in January, 1938.

This procedure seemed too slow to the British government. The Foreign Office urged that the president of the Council consult with his colleagues and request the commission at once to take into consideration the Palestine report. By applying this exceptional procedure, the Council in September will be able to take a final decision with regard to the Palestine question.

Only the Council has the authority to decide upon the termination of a mandate. This power is not based on the text of Article 22 of the Covenant, the legal foundation of the mandate system, as this loosely drafted article does not foresee at all the procedure of such a termination. The legal basis lies in the text of the mandate itself, which says: "The consent of the Council of the League of Nations is required for any modification of the terms of this mandate." The competence of the Council is completely unqualified. Legally even such drastic modifications as are contained in the British plan can be accepted.

History of Palestine Mandate Found Unusual.

THE WHOLE STORY of the Palestine mandate is a rather peculiar one.

The article which defines the statute of the so-called "A" mandates states; "Certain communities formerly belonging to the Turkish Empire have reached a state of development where their existence as independent nations can be provisionally recognized subject to the rendering of administrative advice and assistance by a mandatory until such time as they are able to stand alone. The wishes of these communities must be a principal consideration in the selection of the mandatory."

The status of Iraq corresponded exactly to the terms of this article. Iraq was ruled from the start by Irakians themselves, the mandatory power giving "administrative advice and assistance. "Syria and Lebanon under French mandate had a more limited autonomy, but there, too, the population had its share in administration and legislation.

As for Palestine, the whole power was vested in Great Britain. Article 1 of the mandate said: "The mandatory shall have full powers of legislation and of administration save as they may be limited by the terms of this mandate." The whole responsibility for the development rested therefore with Great Britain.

In theory the mandate was to be limited in time and be terminated by the establishment of an independent Palestinian state but this perspective seemed in 1920 so remote that whereas the mandate for Iraq contained special provisions for its termination, the mandate for Palestine had none.

This future Palestinian state was to be neither Jewish nor Arab; it was to be a state in which both nations lived in harmony together. The preamble of the mandate expressly excludes the possibility of a purely Jewish state, for it contained the clause: "Whereas recognition has thereby be given to the historical connection of the Jewish people with Palestine and the grounds of reconstituting their national home in that country." National home of course did not mean national state.

The first encroachment on the terms of the mandate was made as early as 1922. Although the mandate treated Palestine as a whole, in September, 1922, it was divided into Palestine proper and Transjordania—the Jewish national home being limited to Palestine only.

For that decision there was a certain justification in the terms of the mandate. Article 25 says that the mandatory power may "postpone or withhold application of such provisions of the mandate as he may consider inapplicable to the local conditions existing between Jordan and the eastern boundary." Nevertheless the exclusion of Jews from Transjordania certainly stretched the terms of the mandate, for the above-cited preamble in speaking of the national home made no distinctions.

Plan For Triple Split Indicates British Failure.

THE ACTUAL Solomonic plan of partition in three parts—a Jewish state, an Arab state to be united with Transjordania, and a third part under permanent British mandate—can not be considered as anything else than a confession of complete failure of the British mandate system.

That is the sense of the report of the royal commission which recognizes that the attempt to establish collaboration between Jews and Arabs under British protection has proved impossible, that there is a "irreconcilable clash" between the two nations.

What will the Permanent Mandates Commission do with the report? Will it purely and simply indorse the British proposal?

Happily for Great Britain, a sure opponent has disappeared There is no Italian member of the commission, for the Marquis Theodoli, who for years had been its chairman, has joined the Italian boycott of the League of Nations activities and does not attend the meetings of the commission.

But it is not impossible that some members of the commission who, as stated before, are independent, may consider that it is neither the conception nor the mandate system which failed in Palestine, but rather the British administration itself. Of course, whatever the findings, of the commission, its opinion will have only an advisory character; the Council will not be bound by them. As for the Council, in principle it will take its decision on purely political grounds, i.e., the political relations of its members with Great Britain. This will outweigh other considerations. The more so because excepting Poland, which is interested in the possibilities of Jewish emigration, none of the actual members of the Council is directly interested in the Palestine problem.

Nevertheless the findings of the commission without doubt will have a decisive influence on the vote of the Council. There are in some countries influential Jewish groups; France and Great Britain must also consider the Arab reaction. A solution rejected, as it appears to be, both by the Jews and Arabs, and condemned by a body of such a high authority as the commission could hardly be approved by a Council vote.

Thus it is no exaggeration to say that the August session of the commission will settle the future of Palestine.

RFC Sells $60,000,000 Commodity Credit Notes

By the Associated Press.

A $60,000,000 issue of commodity Credit Corporation notes has been fully subscribed, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation said yesterday. The issue consists of series B collateral trust notes, dated August 7, maturing in nine months and carrying 1 per cent interest.

The notes are secured by certain collateral notes which are in turn secured by negotiable warehouse receipts on $1,679,082 bales of cotton valued at $90,000,000.

Labor Relations

By Frank Murphy

Michigan Legislation.

Following is an extract from an article by the Governor of Michigan taken from the August issue of Survey Graphic.

UP TO THE END of June there was no real formula on the Michigan statute books for dealing with modern industrial relations. Picketing in any form did not have the sanction of legality, and it was obvious that many labor demonstrations were a protest against the lag of law behind modern industrial developments. Vigilantes, so-called law-and-order organizations, began to blossom. However, reports of their numbers are greatly exaggerated. Although some of them were perfectly sincere, all of them were far from being the nonpartisan influence that law and order through government must represent.

Public opinion has reacted against the sit-down. Labor leaders, I am convinced, are developing a greater sense of responsibility to the public and exercising more reasoned judgment in their decisions. Public opinion will react likewise against antiunion organizations that seek to take the law into their own hands. Labor excesses, when they have occurred, have been in large measure incident to the new-found power and while excesses must be curbed it must be done intelligently. I have reason to believe that the fact that as Governor I constantly strove for conciliation, and firmly avoided needless violence, has strengthened the respect for government in Michigan.

Throughout the trying times of the strikes the State Legislature, not unaware of the ominous effect of tensions and cleavages upon public opinion, was working upon a bill that, when perfected in the mid-summer session, should go a long way to heal the wounds of industrial controversies in Michigan. It is based upon the rule of reason.

• • • •

THE LAW guarantees fundamental rights to labor, industry and public. But like every law dealing with an emergent situatibn, it is bound to be criticized by extremists. It guarantees to labor the fundamental right of collective bargaining through representatives of their own choosing, and the right to strike. For the first time in Michigan it clearly legalizes picketing, but at the same time it forbids blocking a public highway or the entrance of a place of business or a residence. It empowers a State industrial relations board to set up subordinate boards by areas, plants or industries, to mediate disputes.

The board, voluntarily, or by request of either side, may encourage submission to voluntary arbitration. The act places the emphasis upon conciliation. In no sense does it regulate by compulsion. It guarantees all the rights of labor. It restricts the use of injunctions in labor disputes. But going beyond the Wagner act, which applies to industries of interstate significance, and beyond similar local acts passed by various States, it protects both employers and employes from unfair practices. It authorizes the board to investigate espionage and racketeering. Its provisions dealing with picketing and mass patrolling have latitude enough to apply to vigilante groups who may attempt to intimidate labor organization.

The provisions of the entire act are too lengthy to quote (but . . . several) are new and distinctive in American legislation. They must, however, be understood as part of a document which outlaws company unions and guarantees exclusive collective bargaining to the representatives designated by a majority. The board has the authority to decide whether the unit shall be employer, craft, plant or some other body.

Another provision of the act requires each union in the State to file the name and address of its secretary and its affiliation with other organizations.

IT HAS BEEN urged from many quarters that, since labor organizations are coming to wield great power over the lives of workmen and over the operations of industries, they ought to be held legally responsible for, their acts. There has been great pressure for compulsory incorporation of trade unions, for public supervision of union elections, for requiring that their books and membership lists be a matter of public record.

It is axiomatic, of course, that responsible leaders of responsible labor organizations should be accountable for the acts of such organizations. Irresponsible leadership has done labor more harm in the public mind than all the attacks of employers' associations. Labor must learn to discipline its forces, to hold in check impractical or untimely demands. It must keep its agreements inviolate. Only by scrupulous adherence to such a program can labor become an active and constructive force in industry. If labor's leaders fail in those respects, the public demand for drastic restrictive legislation will surely be irresistible.

Labor organizations have, generally, opposed proposals which aim to restrict their activities. The recent disclosures before the Senate committee investigating industrial espionage reveal the basis of their fears. In considering the merit of proposals for controlling labor organizations, even their proponents must concede that the analogy between the incorporation of trade unions and of a business producing goods is not perfect.

A union's assets consist of the good will of its members and such funds as it may have with which to pay strike benefits or to maintain its staff. The property of a corporation, on the other hand, consists of buildings, machines, materials and other highly tangible assets. An injunction tying up the corporation's liquid funds does not close its production operations. But a court order which ties up the union's funds absolutely disables it, preventing the performances of its functions during the period of the injunction. In Michigan, the legality of a trade union's activities hitherto depended largely upon the viewpoint of the judges involved in a particular case. The new Michigan law clearly defines labor's legal responsibilities as well as its legal rights.

• • • •

THE GOVERNMENT takes its place as an active participant with labor and employers in finding a solution to disputes. Its view is the public view. Public interest is paramount. The Government insists on peace and orderliness. It also insists on the building up of mutual self-respect. To these ends, the public is represented by continuing agencies specializing in the problems of industrial relations, covering the entire field from fact finding to mediation, conciliation, and, if necessary, aid in creating the machinery for voluntary arbitration. The Government makes available at all times the most effective possible kind of mediation agencies. These are set up on the basis of each industry if necessary, as well as on a geographical basis. Every measure and method of conciliation and mediation is at hand, always in the name of impartial government.

Macaulay

By William Lyon Phelps

His Poetry.

I have just been looking through a dozen Anthologies of English Poetry of the Nineteenth Century, and in not one of them could I find anything by Macaulay.

Now I agree with the late George W. Russell (A. E.) that narrative poetry is as a rule second-rate; because it is on one plane. But narrative poetry may be like martial music—not so great as that by Bach, but splendid and soul-stirring. While I should never include Macaulay among the greatest English poets, his verses are sure of immortality.

• • • •

When I was a freshman in college, our professor of English, Cyrus Northrop, afterwards president of the University of Minnesota, said one day in the classroom, "Gentlemen, I am somewhat behind the age in my admiration for Macaulay." And 30 years later, my senior colleague, Prof. Thomas R. Lounsbury, said to me with intense earnestness, "Macaulay's poems are magnificent; and no one should be ashamed to say so."

• • • •

When his "Lays of Ancient Rome" were published in 1842, his former enemy Wilson (Christopher North) wrote a review which might stand in its comparisons in 1937: "The Young Poets all want fire; Macaulay is full of fire. The Young Poets are somewhat weakly; he is strong. The Young Poets are rather ignorant; his knowledge is great. The Young Poets mumble books; he devours them. The Young Poets dally with their subject; he strikes its heart. The Young Poets are still their own heroes; he sees but the chiefs he celebrates. The Young Poets weave dreams with shadows transitory as clouds without substance; he builds realities lasting as rocks."

Tom McCarthy

Home of the Homestake Mine.

LEAD, S. Dak., July 27.—It doesn't matter very much where you go in Lead, S. Dak., or whom you talk with, the sum of your information will be the same. "This is one of the most peculiar towns in the world," they'll tell you . . . and they're proud of it!

TOM McCARTHY.

Put together the information you receive from Dwight Cassin, the mayor, the boy in the gas station, the grocer and the mine officials, and you have something like this:

"I told you this was one of the most peculiar towns in the world, and I'll back it up. For one thing you've probably never heard of our town, though it's part and parcel of the traditions of Deadwood, three miles away. Everybody's heard of Deadwood. It's known around the world as the stamping ground of 'Wild Bill' Hickock and 'Calamity' Jane. And yet, if it wasn't for Lead, Deadwood wouldn't exist.

"If you have heard of our town, the chances are five to one that you mispronounce its name. Most outsiders call it Lead—as in metal. It should be pronounced the same way you would say 'Lead the horse to water.' It's a mining term, meaning a 'lead' to a gold vein.

"But those things really aren't important. Here's a fact that may surprise you. We never felt the depression! We admit it! O. K. I'll explain that later.

"Then, there's another thing. We are probably the most resented town in the State. We know the farmers don't like us. They've tried to legislate us out of existence. Personally, we don't feel that we should be in South Dakota, anyway! We've nothing in common with the rest of the State!

• • • •

"ON THE SOCIAL side? Well, we've got 8,000 people here, and we haven't got a night club. Yet you can get in your car, coast all the way to Deadwood, and find a dozen night clubs, though they've only got 2,000 people there.

'Maybe that's part of the explanation of why we've never been heard of and Deadwood is world famous. Deadwood couldn't exist without us. It's been the grasshopper, and we've been the ant. Deadwood is relatively poor, yet famous. We're rich and unsung.

"The chances are ten to one that you've never heard of Moses Manuel, yet he was one of the most romantic figures that ever rode a horse across the unbroken trails of the old West. He was responsible for the founding of Lead. And he discovered the Homestake mine here, the largest gold mine in the United States.

"This fellow Manuel? Well, the reason you probably never heard of him is because he didn't talk about himself. He was absoultely without fear. Died only a few years ago, in a mine disaster. He went into Alaska before the rest of the Nation knew it existed. Came out with $40,000. Crossed the continent with a party of a hundred men, and was the only one to reach the West Coast. Went on from Salt Lake City alone!

"He discovered the Homestake in 1876, and that mine is probably responsible for half the peculiarities in this town.

"The town is slipping because of the Homestake! We never felt the depression because of the Homestake! The farmers hate us because of the Homestake! Deadwood exists because of the Homestake! And we haven't got a night club for the same reason. That last is personal. Better leave it out.

"Well, I mentioned Moses Manuel. He was a man of vision. He had no education, but he was smart. He was also tough. He fought Indians in Minnesota, doing a man's job, when he was 12 years old. Smart as he was, though, I don't think he could have foreseen the life of the Homestake mine. They've been working it more than 60 years and have taken out almost $300,000,000! That's a lot of money . . . and there's more to come. They have enough ore blocked out to carry them another ten years, even if they don't discover new veins.

"THAT, OF COURSE, is one reason we've never felt the depression. Then, too, we got a good break when the Administration increased the value of gold.

"That, also, is the reason the farmers hate us. They think we're just picking gold out of the mountain. But there's a lot more to it than that. Don't get the wrong idea. It isn't easy! It would probably be more accurate to say that we manufacture gold. That carries the idea better.

"In the first place, we're more than 3,000 feet down in the earth at some points. That costs money and that's a long ways down. In the second place, we were only getting $3.80 worth of gold out of a ton of ore before the depression. With the increase in the price, we got a break. Don't draw any hasty conclusions, though, about how we get the gold out of that ton of ore. It's a real job. If you think gold mining is easy, compare it with the ease of coal mining.

"We bring up a ton of ore 3,000 feet out of the earth. Then we grind it, regrind it and grind it again. From amalgamation we get about 65 per cent of the gold. Then we put the ore dust through a cyanide process and get some more gold. After that we take the slimy residue and process it again with cyanide plus pressure. As a result of all that we get from a ton of ore gold which used to be worth about $4, and is now worth somewhat more.

"The farmers don't stop to think of the cost of mining and processing. They've tried to tax us out of existence. All they can see is the fact that we've got the largest gold mine in the United States.

• • • •

"BUT I HAVEN'T told you, yet, about how the town is slipping. That's something interesting, though it doesn't trouble us. We're interested and we try to figure which part is going to slip next, but the way we feel about it, we could afford to move the town someplace else and let it slip!

"So far, we've lost nine business and residential blocks. As you came up the hill, you probably noticed the steep grade just as you entered the business section. That used to be gradual, but the land has slipped.

"The town is pretty well undermined, you see, after more than 60 years of digging. The shafts and tunnels have been refilled with loose rock and dirt. For a time the ground above these filled places was supported by pillars of solid ore. The miners decided to dig out the pillars and extract the gold. When they did the surface, supported only by loose earth and rock, settled down, cracking up the business district. We had to tear the buildings down and move on up the hill.

"Yes we're a peculiar town, even if we've never been heard from. We haven't a night club, because it wouldn't be good for the miners to be seen throwing their money away so close to home.

"If you want to have a good time, go down to Deadwood. There they neither spin, sow nor mine . . . but they're known around the world.

"You would like to go down in the mine? Can you sing? The last nonminer to go down there was Mary Garden!"

Ickes Given $2,500 To Buy a New Car; Asked for $4,000

By the Associated Press.

Secretary Ickes is going to get a new automobile, but it won't be the $4,000 one he asked for.

Congress has agreed to allow him $2,500.

Ickes is not the first Cabinet member to encounter difficulties in Congress concerning automobiles. For more than 30 years the legislators have dictated how much the department chiefs could pay. They shouldered this responsibility before the war, when the cry was raised that too much was being spent for vehicles.

A limitation of $750 was written into the statutes, beyond which a department could not go without special authorization.

When Walter Brown was Postmaster General, he once explained that his department bought a new car because there wasn't room enough in his old one to wear a silk hat.

When Secretary Ickes asked Congress for a new $4,000 car, his chief clerk, Elbert K. Burlew, explained that the Secretary's old one had been damaged badly in an accident. His chief, he said, had been forced to use assistants' cars.

Officials of other departments say Cabinet automobiles are traded in on an average of every two years.

Impresario, 9, Gets Credit Belatedly

A youthful Washington Impresario has been wondering if creative effort is worthwhile after all.

Claire Exley, 9, of 3615 Cumberland street, recently produced a circus and ballet. She wrote the scenario, designed the costumes, recruited and directed the cast. The show was put on at the Ben Murch Playground in Chevy Chase.

The maiden attempt of the talented young producer naturally interested the press. Photographers and reporters were on hand.

But when pictures of the show appeared the name of the producer was inadvertently omitted. The circus was referred to as part of the playground curriculum. A shot of a dancer, who actually was none other than Miss Exley, was labeled with another name entirely. It was all pretty much of a mix-up.

The Post apologizes to Miss Exley and wishes her more favorable publicity for her future productions.

Putnam Says He Still Hopes Amelia Is Alive

Newark, N. J., July 29 (AP).—George Palmer Putnam said today that he still has hope his wife, Amelia Earhart, is alive.

Miss Earhart and her navigator, Fred J. Noonan, lost July 1 while flying the south Pacific, "may be alive on a small island," he said, "and I am doing all I can to get people who inhabit that region, like Japanese fishermen, to search for her."

Brokers Loans Ease Off

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday that last week's loans to brokers and dealers on securities held by reporting member banks in New York City totaled $1,141,000,000, a decrease of $1,000,000 from the previous week. Loans for the corresponding week a year ago totaled $938,000,000.

Roosevelt to Talk With Gov. Murphy

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt arranged yesterday for a conference this weekend with Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan, whose State has been the scene of major labor disputes in recent months.

White House officials declined to disclose the reason for the conference.

"It is not expected the President will rewrite legislation with him or anyone else," said Stephen T. Early, Mr. Roosevelt's press secretary.

The 44-year-old, red-haired Michigan Governor has been mentioned as a possible appointee to the Supreme Court, to succeed the recently retired Justice Willis Van Devanter.

James Will Direct Fitting of Cruiser

Commander Jules James, now head of the Ordnance and Gunnery Department at the United States Naval Academy, has been assigned to take charge of fitting out the new cruiser Philadelphia, now under construction at the Philadelphia Navy Yard, the Navy Department announced last night.

On July 1, the Philadelphia was reported 90 per cent complete, and is expected to be commissioned by early next year.

Commander James, who will assume his new duties on September 1, is a cousin of the late Rorer A. James, jr., Danville, Va., newspaper publisher. He is a holder of the Silver Star Citation and Chevalier of the French Legion of Honor.

Soviet 'Lindbergh' Believed en Route To U.S. Over Arctic

Fairbanks, Alaska, July 29 (AP).—Soviet representatives here awaited word today of the status of another projected polar flight from Moscow to the United States which had been expected to start early today.

Authorities here as well as in New York and Washington said Pilot Sigismund Levaneffsky, the "Lindbergh of Russia," was all ready to start in a four-motored plane carrying three to five passengers.

When no word had come from Moscow by midday belief grew in some quarters that the plane might be well on its way before news of the takeoff was given out.

Similar circumstances accompanied the beginning of the Russians' recent transpolar flights to Vancouver, Wash., and San Jacinto, Calif.

A.F. of L. Effort Against Black Bill Reported

Bloc Talks Recommittal; Green Asked to Declare Himself.

Housing legislation and the modified court reform bill were alreday on the calendar awaiting action. Strong sugar blocs were opposing adjournment until a sugar control measure is passed.

Wage Outcome Close.

Fate of the program appeared to hinge on the Senate's wages and hours decision. Unexpected strength was developing for a motion to recommit, a private check showed, and the outcome appeared close. Even such liberals as Wheeler, Shipstead, Minnesota Farmer-Laborite, and Bone, Washington State Democrat, said they did not like powers granted the proposed Labor Standards board, but probably would oppose recommitment.

The first-round trouncing from the Democratic South was administered the bill yesterday by Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, who declared "there is no excuse for hasty action now," that Congress is "literally worn out," that the wages bill should go back to the committee for "adequate" study.

Then Senator William E. Borah, Idaho Republican, took the floor with a charge that "big business" would control the proposed board. Borah asked that the board's powers to fix minimum wages and maximum hours be eliminated, and that fixed standards, guaranteeing "decent living" be written into the measure.

Senator H. Styles Bridges, New Hampshire Republican, joined Borah in calling on Congress to write fixed labor-and-hours standards into law, instead of leaving the task to an administrative agency.

A mountain of modifying amendments still awaited action when the Senate recessed last night. One amendment was adopted without a record vote. Sponsored by Senate Minority Leader Charles L. McNary, it would exempt from the work week provisions of the bill canning or packing of fish, sponges, fruits, vegetables, processing of beets, cane and maple sugar, and ginning and baling of cotton. Exemption was contingent on the seasonal character of the work (if less than six months a year.)

Sixteen Democratic Senators are now ready to vote to send the bill back to committee. This list included Senators Donahey, Ohio; Byrnes and Smith, South Carolina; Harrison, Mississippi; Byrd and Glass, of Virginia; Burke, of Nebraska; George, King, Utah; Moore, New Jersey; Lewis, Illinois; Maloney, Conecticut; Bailey, North Carolina, and McCarran, Nevada.

Senators "doubtful as to how they will vote" on the bill included Bulkley, Ohio; Clark, Missouri; Radcliffe, Maryland, McKellar, Tennessee; McGill, Kansas; Adams, Colorado; O'Mahoney, Wyoming, and Shipstead.

Lewis, majority whip of the Senate, said "my present disposition is to send it back to committee, where it may be saved."

George directed repeated shafts at Secretary of Labor Perkins. He said she "long ago had the concept that the children in the South and the people in the South were without shoes" and "long ago had the fixed and settled conviction that there was no sense in a different wage in the same industry in the South, as compared with similar industries in other parts of the country."

George said Secretary Perkins "may administer this bill through labor organizations," and asked what would hapen if she sent John L. Lewis or Sydney Hillman as her representative into Southern rayon plants or cotton mills. He said he did not see how wages and hours are to be fixed "on any fair basis" by people who all their lives have been fighting on one or the other side of the question.

Borah declared the bill vested too much power in five men, and "if they should undertake to exercise the power unwisely or inefficiently, it would be disastrous."

"If they should undertake to exercise it efficiently it would take 1,000 men instead of 5 men in order to survey this entire situation, get the conditions as they say they must have them, and understand the different situations in which people work," said the Idaho Senator.

"When we establish the precedents of giving to a board the power to fix minimum wages and maximum hours you must inevitably follow it in years to fix prices in respect to other matters."

Senator Walsh warmly defended the wages and hours measure, but launched into a criticism of the Wagner labor relations act. The Massachusetts Senator said the Administration has failed somewhere to cope with "abuses" under the act.

Kendrick, Veteran Ship Officer, Dies on Steamer He Captained

HENRY H. KENDRICK.

Henry H. Kendrick, 69, 609 Eighth street southwest, oldest employe of the Norfolk-Washington Steamboat Co., and skipper of the S. S. Northland for more than 20 years, died yesterday as he had wished to die—aboard his ship.

Kendrick, who was known among seamen as the best skipper between Norfolk and Washington, had been a familiar figure on the Potomac and Chesapeake Bay since he was 14 years old.

Going with the Norfolk-Washington line when the company was formed 47 years ago, he started as an ordinary seaman and worked his way up to the most valued officer on the staff. During his years as seaman, quartermaster, second mate, first mate and captain, Kendrick missed only one sailing. That was four years ago when he suffered a stroke and was forced to miss one of the Norfolk trips.

In ill-health for the past three years, he scorned suggestions that he retire and insisted on being given an active post on his ship when it became apparent that he would be unable to continue as captain. The last few years of his life were spent as first mate of the boat he commanded for 23 years.

Members of Kendrick's family recalled that he had often expressed the hope that when his time came, he would die as he had lived, an officer aboard his ship.

Proud of his record of not one serious accident or loss of life during his many years of sailing, Kendrick brought the Norfolk-Washington line's first ship, the old S. S. Norfolk, from the construction pier in Wilmington, Del., to Washington.

Born in Charles County, Md., Kendrick attended school there and came to Washington in his early youth. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Lula V. Kendrick; two sons, Harry E. and Robert E. Kendrick, and five grandchildren, Robert and Eldridge Kendrick, 21-year-old twin brothers, and John Henry, 5, sons of Robert Kendrick, and Harry E., jr., 21, and Lillian Kendrick, 18, children of Harry E. Kendrick, all of Washington.

Hershey, Pa., July 29 (U.P.).—Advisability of organizing Nation-wide opposition to C. I. O. and A. F. of L. unions will be discussed at a "secret" conference here this week-end attended by manufacturers from virtually every State, the United Press learned tonight.

Revised Airport Bill Approved By Committee

Plan to Fill Canal Basin Eliminated in Measure Reported to House.

An emasculated May bill was reported favorably to the House yesterday by the Military Affairs Committee. The measure, as reported, would permit the closing of Military road, which now crosses Washington Airport, and the leasing of 56 acres of the Arlington Experimental Farm adjoining the terminal.

The original measure would have permitted the filling in of Boundary Channel in order to provide a longer cross-runway. This provision was abandoned to meet the objection of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, which declared, through its secretary, Thomas S. Settle, that the change would create a traffic hazard on the $7,000,000 Washington boulevard, similar to the one now existing on Military road.

The May bill also was amended to provide that the 3.7 acres constituting the Military road right-of-way should be leased to the airport company, rather than deeded to it as provided in the original measure.

Committee members said yesterday that they would seek early action on the revised measure in order to relieve the emergency which exists because of inadequate landing facilities at Washington Airport.

Opposition to the measure was expressed by the Airline Pilots Association, which declares that its enactment will hinder the development of a suitable airport at Camp Springs, Md. The Arlington County board also has indicated that the measure is unsatisfactory because it would remove Military road, one of the principal traffic arteries of the region, from use.

Samuel Stott Rites To Be Held Here Today

Bob Burns Says

They tell me some fella just wrote a book on how to handle people. He says the best way to get the most work out of your employes is to flatter 'em.

My stingy uncle had a hired man on his farm who did the work of five men, but my uncle never gave him one word of encouragement. The hired man figgered he wasn't pleasin' my uncle and he worked for 10 years at top speed, expectin' every month to be fired. Finally one day he opened his pay envelope and found that he had a dollar and a half extra.

He asked my uncle what the extra money was for and my uncle says, "Well, that's a raise—you're a hard worker and I figger your worth it." The man glared at my uncle and says, "Oh, then you've been swindlin' me for 10 years!"

Letter

One of our friends in Reclamation writes an interesting letter in which he tells how Uncle Sam's workers in the field are sometimes overlooked with so much attention centering on Washington. And we are glad that he mentions a visitor, from the field, to this city.

"To the casual observer going about his everyday business here in the Nation's Capital no thought is given of the Federal Government's vast army of employes scattered throughout the 48 States. Native Washingtonians are prone to think that in Washington alone is the majority of Uncle Sam's children. Far from it. There is less than one-seventh of the entire pay roll of Federal employes concentrated here—115,000. Some 750,000, guided by administrative orders from the seat of the Government, from a great network radiating into every corner of the land.

"Thousands of employes of the Postoffice Department, National Park Service, Weather Bureau, Geological Survey, Agriculture and Bureau of Reclamation—to name just a few—have never seen the Capitol. Uncle Sam to them is just a mythological patriarch who issues orders and sends them their bi-monthly stipend every two weeks.

"This is brought more clearly to mind by the first visit here of Mrs. Cecile Crowe, from Boulder City, Nev., where some 60 reclamation employes run the mammoth Boulder Canyon project. Employed at Boulder Dam since the start of construction six years ago when she went there from her native Utah, she is now renewing old acquaintances with several Reclamation employes now here in Washington. Among these in particular are Commissioner John C. Page and Wesley R. Nelson, whose efforts contributed largely to the building of Boulder Dam. Both spent the full period of time from the inception of the work to completion.

"In addition to the thrill visitors always get from visits here, Mr. Crowe, a vivacious young matron with the frankness and breeziness of the West about her, thinks Washington is a wonderful summer resort. And why not? For it is generally 110 in the shade in Boulder City in the summer.

"Mrs. Crowe has a brother here in Interstate Commerce, Dan Dotson, with whom she leaves for New York Saturday.

"We know she will have lots to tell the 600 employes at Boulder when she gets back about our wonderful climate and hospitality. Yes, we think quite a lot about our worthy Federal family, not only here in Washington and out yonder, where stretches the long arm of Uncle Sam."

University of Maryland Class in Housing Tours Washington Alleys And Residence Projects; Efforts Toward Improvement Explained

Post Staff Photos.

Washington's alleys and what is being done to make them livable were demonstrated to a University of Maryland class in housing yesterday by John Ihlder, executive officer of the District Alley Dwelling Authority, and Homer J. Smith, architect.

Although the job of cleaning up the city's 200 inhabited alleys was designed on a ten-year basis and has been under way only since November, 1934, there was much to show for the work that has been done.

The two completed housing projects were visited—Hopkins place, on L street southeast, where 22 families live in gleaming white homes, and the new three-story apartment house on W street northwest, into which 30 families moved on July 15. Contrast was provided by taking the sightseeing bus through some of the alleys in between.

At Hopkins place, Ihlder talked to the class about the cost of the project and its use in demonstrating the feasibility of low-cost housing.

"This meets what we consider the minimum housing requirements. Rents are $25 and $26.50 per month. In the reconditioned houses rents are $13.50 or $15.50, depending on whether there is a bathroom.

"This does not represent a subsidy of any kind. These costs cover insurance, upkeep, overhead, taxes and 3 per cent on our money. The only difference a private agency would have to pay would be possibly 5 per cent on its money."

300 Tried to Rent.

Incomes of tenants at Hopkins place vary from relief to as high as $1,600. At the new apartments on W street, incomes start at $1,500 and go up. Rents there are $25, $32.50 and $35 for apartments of two, three or four rooms, respectively. Three hundred applicants tried to get homes there. The 30 families selected were required to show that they had been good tenants previously and that they possessed "good neighbor" qualities.

"The number of applicants we had shows the terrible situation facing the colored families who wish to find homes in Washington. Most of our tenants came from one room, although they had incomes sufficient to pay for more. There have been no low-cost housing provisions for the colored population of the city."

The new apartments are of red brick and made in two sections, which face each other against a green landscaped court. Each unit has 3-way ventilation, and each kitchen is furnished with a gas stove and gas refrigerator.

30 Alleys Cleared.

On Tenty-fourth street between G and H the Authority has started its third housing project. Twenty-four units of two stories will be constructed. Demolition for the fourth project is under way in the Southwest section.

Approximately 30 alleys have been cleared since the Authority began its work. Some of them have been turned into parking places, and in some garages and workshops are operated. The housing projects are designed to show the "best possible use to make of an inhabited alley"—if it is to be inhabited.

The Authority has spent beteen $800,000 and $900,000. It was estimated that the ten-year project would cost $9,000,000.

In addition to the alleys completely cleared, the Authority is gradually "eating its way" into others and into numerous slum areas about the city.

The girls from the University of Maryland were accompanied to Washington by Miss Marie Mount, dean of the college of home economics, and Mrs. Eleanor Murphy, associate professor of home management.

D. C. Wakens To Venereal Case Menace

Increase in Treatment Is Credited to Publicity in Papers.

Statistics proving that Washington is becoming ever increasingly conscious of the venereal disease menace were revealed by the Health Department yesterday. Officials stated that the marked rise in number of cases treated at the Social Hygiene Clinic was attributable in large measure to recent newspaper publicity directed at the problem.

Coincidentally, with the appearance of Surgeon General Thomas Parran's book, "Shadow on the Land," a portion of which deplored the unorganized system of syphilis control in the District of Columbia, health officers and doctors here mapped a program which they hope will make Washington a model of eradication methods.

It was learned yesterday that plans for the new Public Health Center, for which Congress appropriated $165,000, have been sent out to the various clinics to be housed in the edifice and that it is to be located at First and L streets northwest. Work of demolishing present buildings on the site will be begun at once. It is in this center that doctors hope to locate special beds for the treatment of venereal patients, a present deficiency here which Dr. Parran attacks.

200 Beds Needed.

No hospital in Washington now provides beds for syphilic patients, although the Health Department, now controlling Gallinger Hospital, is understood to be planning a venereal ward there. With this projected ward and that in the new center the number of such beds here should approximate the 200 advocated by Dr. Parran.

The records obtained from the serological laboratory of the District's health department list 11,658 Wasserman tests for the period January 1, 1936, to June 30 of the same year, as compared to 16,872 tests, or an increase of approximately 45 per cent, for the same period in 1937. There were 3,370 new cases treated this year from January 1 to June 30, an increase of 534 over the same period last year. Officials said the number was still increasing.

"More and more the public is taking advantage of the opportunity for blood tests and treatment that is offered them by the Health Department," stated Dr. Thomas Thompson, director of the Social Hygiene Clinic," and because of the splendid articles published in The Washington Post, you have the reason for a portion of the increase of tests made and treatments in the recent year."

Treatment Given Credit.

For the fiscal year 1933, the report states that 14,565 specimens for the Wasserman test were received by the laboratory for examination. Of this total, 3,902 or 27 per cent, were found to be positive, or infected. In 1935, the percentage of positive Wassermans of the total examined dropped to 25 per cent and for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1937, of 31,095 specimens, and these included previous cases, the number of positive Wassermans was 6,725, or 21 per cent.

Commenting on this decrease of reported positive Wassermans, Dr. J. P. Porch, of the serological laboratory, said:

"This can be accounted for by the treatment for syphilis that the patients are receiving and also for the better follow-up of the cases."

The Social Hygiene Clinic, which treats patients of syphilis and gonorrhea, will be housed in the Public Health Center.

Lee Highway Is Inspected By Park Board

Members of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission yesterday inspected work thus far done on a new section of the Lee Highway, which will extend from Fort Myer to the Potomac River, and expressed themselves as "highly pleased."

When completed the new strip of highway will provide a short cut for travelers, and an added route for sightseers as well.

In order that the Lee Highway extension will not be fringed by industrial plants, the Commission will recommend today to the Virginia authorities that all property along the route be zoned Residential B, suggesting that later it be zoned either A or B.

The Planning Commission confirmed the allocation of various sums of money for the purchase of property and land for parks and playgrounds. The money for these purchases is to come out of an appropriation of $800,000 carried in the Independent Offices bill.

The commission also approved the purchases of property in connection with the Fort Drive, a thoroughfare that will link the Civil War forts that ringed Washington.

Thomas S. Settle, secretary of the commission, reported that Arlington County had taken advantage of a new Virginia law and had created a planning commission to cooperate in the work of improving northern Virginia. The county commission will meet with the Federal commission Monday.

Settle also reported the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce has under advisement the creation of a planning committee.

The Commission yesterday studied plans for a municipal airport at Camp Springs, Md., but took no action. The King-Norton bill, authorizing that site, suggested the commission approve a route for an express highway from the airport to Washington. Engineers of the commission submitted several tentative routes yesterday.

The Commission again voiced its opposition to enlarging the Washington-Hoover Airport by filling in the lagoon between the flying field and the Mt. Vernon Boulevard.

Today the Commission will again tackle the question of where the Thomas Jefferson Memorial is to be located.

Social Security Ouster Of 2 to Be Arbitrated

William Savin, director, Family Service Association, 1022 Eleventh street, has been designated by the National Labor Relations Board to act as an independent arbitrator on the cases of William Stumpf and William Schultz, former Baltimore Social Security Board employes, who complain they were dropped for union activity.

Appointment of the arbitrator followed agreement by the Baltimore S. S. B. Union and Frank Bane, executive director of the Social Security Board, for a hearing of the cases. The arbitrator will decide only whether the men were discharged because of their activity in the union—which is affiliated with the United Federal Workers of America, a C. I. O. unit. Savin said the hearing would be held in Baltimore.

District Wage Board to Explain Effect of New Law at Meeting

20,000 Women, 5,000 Employers Invited to Hear Details at Labor Department Hall Next Wednesday.

Twenty thousand women and 5,000 employers have been invited to a general mass meeting at the Labor Department Auditorium next Wednesday to acquaint themselves with the workings of the minimum wage law.

The Minimum Wage Board, recently recreated by decision of the Supreme Court, announced yesterday the purpose of the giant meeting is educational. The Auditorium holds only 1,700.

Mrs. William Kittle, chairman, will preside and explain to the working women of Washington what their rights are under the new law. A second purpose of the gathering will be for the women to begin preliminary selection of their representatives to sit on the wage conference board.

This is the first meeting of its kind in the history of Washington, Gwn Geach, executive secretary of the Minimum Wage Board, said yesterday.

The public will be represented by three members (appointed by the Minimum Wage Board), the employers will be represented by three (chosen by the board out of nine nominations), and the employes will be represented by three (also chosen from nine nominees).

The conference will begin taking testimony about September 15, it was learned yesterday. At that time witnesses will appear telling of living costs, employed finances and workers' wages. Out of this testimony rates of pay for Washington's women workers will be fixed.

Employers in the city have been requested to name nine candidates for the conference. It is understood nominations of employer executives have been going forward and that the names of the nine from which three will eventually be chosen will be in the hands of the Minimum Wage Board by August 15.

The meeting next Wednesday will be held at 8 o'clock at the Labor Department auditorium, Constitution avenue between Twelfth and Fourteenth streets northwest.

States Cannot Get U. S. Dry Law Aid

Treasury officials said yesterday Herman Oliphant, Treasury general counsel, has ruled that no States have dry laws which entitle them to Federal assistance in enforcing them.

The opinion said that to receive Federal assistance, a State must define itself as "dry" within the meaning of Federal statutes and must either prohibit all importation of intoxicating liquor or permit importation only upon specific permit.

The opinion was written in response to a query on whether Oklahoma could receive Federal assistance. Oliphant said Oklahoma was a dry State, but permits importation of liquor for nonbeverage purposes and does not require importations be licensed.

Man Held After Friend Dies of Blow by Brick

Thomas Davis, 31, of 1320 New Jersey avenue northwest, was held at the Second Police Precinct last night in connection with the death of his friend, James Ellerby, 32, colored, of the same address, of injuries suffered when he was hit on the head with a brick July 21.

Police said the two men engaged in an argument on July 20 and 21 and that Ellerby went to Freedman's Hospital for treatment to head injuries. He left the hospital, apparently recovered, but returned on Monday and died last night.

District Harbor Project Plans Being Speeded

Supplementary plans and specifications for improvement of the Washington Channel water front are nearing completion, Maj. Walter D. Luplow, Army Engineer for the Washington area, announced yesterday.

General plans for the improvement of the water-front area already have been prepared by the Army Engineers. The supplementary items include timbering for dock framework, floodlighting for proposed yacht basins, boat power service lines, hoists, floats where tenders may be landed, driveways and the sodding and planting with shrubs of land surrounding the basins.

C. A. Chaney, senior structural engineer in charge of preparation of the plans, said yesterday that specifications call for the use of 100 different kinds of material.

Meanwhile the Bureau of the Budget has been considering an item of $389,000 in the third deficiency appropriation bill which is to be contributed from District funds toward the $1,650,000 channel improvement program.

Maj. Gen. Edward Markham, chief of Army Engineers, has declared that none of the $1,261,000 contributed by the Federal Government would be allocated for construction until the city's contribution is available, even though work calling for the use of District funds is not scheduled to start until the third year of the eight-year development period.

Russian Pastor Tells of 'Horrors' Under Soviet Rule

"Horrors" endured by a Christian minister and his family under the Soviet government in Russia were described last night by Paul Voronaeff at a group meeting in the Kendall Baptist Church.

Young Voronaeff, whose parents, he said, are now in a Siberian concentration camp, came to the United States a year ago. Two brothers had paid a ransom for his release, he asserted.

Claiming to have passed through a "living hell" in four Soviet prison camps because of his religious convictions, Voronaeff has lectured throughout the country under the sponsorship of the Association of Christian Youth movement.

D. C. Barbers Outing Arranged for Sunday

The Associated Master Barbers of America, Local Chapter 396, will hold an outing at Marshall Hall at 12:30 p. m. Sunday. Athletic events, a soft ball game and a beauty contest for single girls will be the principal features. Music will be furnished by George Gaul's orchestra and entertainers will include Paul De Marco, Washington tap dancer.

Action Group Joins in Drive For D. C. Ballot

"Progress through suffrage" was the motto advanced by the Citizens' Committee for Progressive Action as they gathered last night in the Sylvan Theater to join in the campaign to obtain the vote for District residents.

Last night's suffrage meeting was the second within the past week. Preparatory steps toward formation of a suffrage organization were taken last week by representatives from citizens' associations and business men's groups. Headed by Wilbur Finch, the group named itself the District of Columbia Suffrage Association and planned their next meeting for September.

Leaders of the gathering last night planned action along slightly different lines, aiming at suffrage as a means toward later improvement in housing conditions, wage and hour measures and improved recreational and educational facilities for the District. They contemplated co-operation with the groups which already have started work toward suffrage for the District. Efforts to obtain suffrage followed their recent activity in combatting the "red rider," they said.

Sophie Tucker Swaps a Trunk For Real Home

But That Trunk Locks Up the Memories of Long Years of Trouping.

By Sophie Tucker.

Hollywood, July 29 (U.P.).—I thought everybody knew what "living in a trunk" meant. I guess they don't. I guess its vaudeville talk and theatrical talk. The lingo's fading faster than the performers.

"What's this business about Sophie Tucker living in a trunk?" Judy Garland piped up a few days ago. "What's the idea of this story saying you've been living in a trunk for 30 years and now you're in a home of your own with real closets? Who lives in a trunk, Aunt Sophie? What's this trunk business?"

I'll tell you what a trunk is. A trunk used to be a performer's home. When vaudeville was hot and when stock companies flourished, the performers went all over the world. They kept the little things that made up their daily lives in those trunks. They lived in their trunks. They never parted from them.

Home After Three Decades.

I put mine away yesterday. "I've got a home of my own," now, after three decades of living in a trunk. I can send out my laundry any time I want to—I don't have to wait a week, to make sure the show will last and I won't be out of town by the time the laundry's finished.

I love my home. I love having closets to hang my clothes in and dresser drawers of my own. I love this California—this Hollywood. But I love my trunk, too.

I knelt beside it a long time after I had put it away. I crouched over its battered old lid up in the attic—I used to eat off the top of that lid in dressing rooms, at one night stands. And I opened the lid because I couldn't help it and I had to see what was inside once more.

Trunkful of Memories.

"Once more"—for the thousandth time! As if I didn't know my trunk's contents! The little relics of long ago—the faded, anxious letters from my folks in those first few months when I had run away from home to go on the stage. The first clippings I ever got. The first mash notes. The first fan letters. The first command performance note from European royalty.

A program—and an old flower pressed in it, from my first footlight bouquet. A dancing slipper with a run-down heel. A box of caked, worthless grease paints. A yellowing bundle of songs. The dress I wore on my first night at the Palace; the dress I wore in "Broadway Melody of 1938" for M.-G.-M., just a few weeks ago.

And all my memories and all my loves and all my hopes. All my life has been bound up in that trunk. It has been my home. It's lock is always open. It's key is always in my heart.

I have a home of my own, now. The trunk has, too.

Robert Taylor Has Pal at M-G-M

Robert Taylor has discovered a former pal from Beatrice, Nebr., working at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer as a make-up artist.

Taylor walked onto the set where he is co-starring with Eleanor Powell in "Broadway Melody of 1938" and was greeted; "Hello Arlington."

The hello came from Ted Larsen native Nebraskan, former resident of Beatrice and Taylor's former schoolmate. The regular make-up man was ill, and Larsen was substituting.

Years ago, when Taylor was in school and Larsen was conducting his insurance business in Beatrice both were members of the American Legion Little Theater. Larsen played leading roles, and Taylor invariably played small parts.

Larsen left his business in Beatrice and went to California. He studied to be a beautician and worked for some time as a make-up artist in another Hollywood studio. He never made himself known to Taylor.

Finally, the opportunity to work at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer presented itself and Larsen seized it.

Film Comedian Is Shocked—and How!

Comic Cliff Edwards in nursing a singed scalp as a result of having too much electricity in his hair—a quarter million volts of it, in fact.

The mishap occurred on the "Black Lightning" set at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer where Dr. Francis Maxstadt, electrical engineer, was demonstrating man-made lightning in a sequence of the film.

The 250,000 volts of high-frequency current was supposed to arc from a Tesla coil to the roof of a miniature house in which an electrode was concealed, while Edwards was to stand beside it.

The accident was due to defective nonchalance, not to an engineering miscalculation. Edwards couldn't stand still. He moved his body, attracting the lashing serpent of electricity. Although high-frequency current is not fatal in any amounts, it is hot.

Garbo Shares Box Lunch With Extras

On location at San Pedro for scenes in her newst picture, "Mme. Walewska," the star joined the long line of extras at noon and received a box lunch.

Strolling to the end of the pier, she mingled among the waterfront sailors to partake of her noonday repast.

Becoming intensely interested in a water-taxi plying back and forth to a large steamer, she soon struck up a conversation with her new found friends. Upon an invitation for a ride, along with Director Clarence Brown, Assistant Director Charles Dorian and Cameraman Karl Freund—the remainder of her "cardboard feast" was enjoyed while cruising about the harbor.

Upon docking, Miss Garbo turned to the bewildered sailor, who had since learned the M-G-M star's identity and graciously thanked him.

Nelson B. Bell About The Showshops

Hollywood, It Seems, Has an Inexhaustible Supply Of Potential Star Material for the Future Years

New Magazine Discloses Hordes of Young Aspirants, Waiting on Sidelines for Opportunity; Debutantes to Take Part in "Gilded Age" Premiere; Local Boys Catch on for the New Healy Film.

THE cry that the training school for the stage actor and the future great of the living theater has been largely destroyed by the decline of vaudeville, the virtual disappearance of "stock" and the enormous shrinkage of "the road" is constantly being raised by those primarily concerned in the conservation of existing resources, and the creation of new, to insure the perpetuation of the traditional theater. They point out, and not unreasonably, that there are enough schooled actors at the present time to cast both the Broadway so-called "legitimate" productions and Hollywood's unending succession of screen plays. They wonder where their new talent is coming from.

BELL.

No such perplexity seems to confront the film colony. I make this statement on the strength of having received a gratuitous copy of the first issue of a new cinema publication known as "Screen Juveniles, a 36-page, monthly magazine of ample page dimensions, devoted exclusively to the consideration of the youngsters who are enjoying prosperous Hollywood careers, or hope to be doing so soon.

It was inevitable, of course, that the first issue of such a "fan" journal should have made some mention of Shirley Temple, Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland—a veteran trouper who, at the age of 13, has been performing before the public for 10 years—Deanna Durbin, the Mauch Twins, Douglas Scott, Shirley Temple's first "leading man," of comparable age, in "Wee Willie Winkie"; Edith Fellows, David Holt and others of the established juvenile players whose names are familiar to all followers of the films. The most surprising result of a cursory examination of the new magazine, therefore, is the partial realization of the number of kid players who are hovering about the edges of the sound stages and the outdoor locations, awaiting their turn to be called before the cameras and microphones.

Because a majority of these embryo successors to the youngsters who already have made their marks are unknowns at this time, even a partial recitation of their names would be pointless. It is evident, however, that the dancing schools in and around Los Angeles, as well as the studios devoted to voice training, must do a thriving business. Whole classes of potential actresses, singers, dancers and whatnot are awaiting their calls from the Central Casting Bureau. How many ever will receive them, of course, is problematical.

It is no less problematical how many of the present crop of juvenile stars will survive the devastating tests of adolescence and maturity. Will Shirley Temple and Mickey Rooney, for example, emerge as great adult stars, or will they fade quietly from the picture—and the pictures—as so many before them have done? Will Deanna Durbin, even though coached now by no less distinguished an artist than Leopold Stokowski, go on to be another Grace Moore or Lily Pons, or will she, too, sink into oblivion after the first flash of an amazing childhood endowment of voice? Time alone can answer these questions.

But the point is that the cinema seems to have an inexhaustible reservoir of talent upon which to draw through the years, while the living stage has none. Perhaps the ultimate outcome will be that the present method of procedure will be exactly reversed—the stage will find itself borrowing from the screen, instead of vice versa.

Candidates for the chorus of the "Going Native" revue to be staged at Loew's Capitol Theater next month under the direction of Gene Ford are called for rehearsal at the National Theater at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning. Director Ford makes known that definite selection of specialty acts and chorines for the revue has not as yet been made. More girls, over the age of 18, however, are needed for the chorus. New applicants also are requested to present themselves at the National on Saturday morning.

That "gilded age" premiere of "The Toast of New York," featuring Edward Arnold, Frances Farmer and Cary Grant, it may now be said, will partake largely of the atmosphere and quaint garb of the period in American history with which the picture deals—the era of rehabilitation immediately following the War Between the States, during which the foundations were laid for such fortunes as the Vanderbilts', the Goulds', the Morgans' and other native money dynasties that have endured intact through the years.

Instead of flood lights and powerful spots, such as characterized the premiere of "The Road Back," for instance, there will be kerosene flambeaux illuminating the facade of RKO-Keith's; in place of a steel-helmeted brass band, a small group of more subdued musicians will furnish the "atmospheric" music preliminary to the showing of the picture.

The atendants who will grace the occasion are to be chosen in large measure from among the ranks of Washington's debutantes, who will be dressed in the crinoline fashions of the '60's. These are only minor details of the evening's celebration to be observed next Wednesday night, but they will give you a rough idea.

The "gilded age" premiere will be sponsored by the District of Columbia Tuberculosis Association, Mrs. Ernest R. Grant, director. Mrs. Grant is cooperating actively with the theater management to make this one of the outstanding evenings in the Capital's motion picture history.

A letter dated July 27, from Paul Garner at the Hotel Padre in Hollywood, brings word that the team of Garner, Wolfe and Hakins have rejoined Ted Healy in the role of "stooges" to appear in a Warner Brothers film production to bear the title of "Hollywood Bandwagon." The team of Garner, Wolfe and Hakins will be remembered by the faithful as a "nut" act that first was brought to town on the "big time," I believe, by Jack Pepper, vaudevillian and one-time master of ceremonies at the Earle Theater. Later on, the boys were not quite so successful in an engagement at the same house, but the objection was to their material—supplied by outside sources, one suspects—rather than to them. Since the youthful Mr. Garner is a Washingtonian and his family still are resident here, the good luck that has befallen the team should be of friendly interest to many who had wondered what might have become of them.

From the corner of a penny postage card, mailed from Richmond, Va., by the Johnson Publishing Company, there peers at me the pleasant countenance of Barrett C. Kiesling, one of the wheelhorses of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, who, it seems, has just written himself a book called "Talking Pictures—How They Are Made; How to Appreciate Them," which the Johnson firm will publish.

Mr. Kiesling is the M-G-M emissary who visits Washington every year, chaperoning brief cases of publicity material that a horse couldn't jump over or a Sandow lift. His last visit was in the capacity of doctor emeritus of everything pertaining to his company's production of "Romeo and Juliet," at which time Mr. Kiesling made himself a speech to a distinguished audience of educators, savants and mere newspaper people at a handsomely appointed Willard Hotel luncheon. What Barrett doesn't know about talking pictures probably would fill a much smaller book than the one he has written. It will be a pleasure to read it—I hope.

Grasping-at-a-Straw Note.

If someone would only say something about not caring a fig about the opening of Louis Bernheimer's new Newton Theater last night, it would afford a fine opportunity to hammer out some sort of a crack about a fig Newton. Oh, well, just let's forget all about it!

Film Time Table

Look Out! The Wheel Is Crooked!

Claire Trevor here seems to be in the clutches of two of the screen's toughest young men in the persons of Lloyd Nolan, left, and Akim Tamiroff. This would be in "King of Gamblers," opening today at the Warner Brothers Metropolitan Theater. The story reveals the inner workings of the slot machine "racket." Mr. Tamiroff appears in the title role.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDLER

Hollywood, July 29.—If anything gives me a severe pain in the neck, it is to hear some umpteen-thousand dollars a week movie star rant about his sacred right to personal privacy—and in the next breath upbraid the hired press agent for allowing a mere diplomatic crisis to crowd his picture off the front pages. Grace Moore, for instance — Her Royal Highness of Song consistently refused to be bothered by interviewers over a period of five months and then, seeing the publicity that her rival, Jeanette MacDonald, was getting, she proceeded to assail the long-suffering publicists of Columbia for not getting her more "space."

GRACE MOORE.

Or, consider the more amusing case of Katharine Hepburn. Katie blasted all reporters to perdition because they wouldn't let her walk the Boulevard unnoticed—and just to avoid notice, I suppose, she insisted on running around in the most amazing pair of denim overalls that have ever been draped on a human carcass. And somehow, it alwayh struck me as odd that Marlene Dietrich, appearing in a man's suit at some swank affair where all of the other ladies wore silk and satin gowns, should complain because the gentlemen of the press persisted in taking her picture. Personally, I have no objection to any star having an ultra-private life. There are even some stars whose public lives could be completely private, without my shedding a tear. But it would be nice if some of our pampered darlings would try being consistent now and then.

In spite of all its pretended sophistication, Hollywood is the most naive town on earth—and I have never seen the fact more convincingly demonstrated than today in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer cafe. Carole Lombard had come to M-G-M to pay the boy friend, Clark Gable, a visit, and they entered the cafe together. Such a craning of necks you have never seen! Everyone in that huge room stopped eating and stared. Until Clark and Carole were seated, you could have heard a pin drop; afterward, for a good five minutes, the place buzzed like a beehive. And the Gable neck was very, very red.

Being in one of those speculative moods when the exact number of bricks in a wall become desirable information, I did a problem in mental arithmetic this morning and discovered that the film shot in an average day's work by a movie company runs only three minutes on the screen after it is edited. Imagine what a calculation like that must do to the blood-pressure of a banker who has millions invested in pictures.

Rumor has it that Bob Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck will never marry—but I would be willing to give long odds that the two are in love—and head over heels, too. At least a dozen times I have seen them in a Beverly Hills bowling alley. Barbara indifferently bowls a game or two and then retires to the gallery where she sits patiently waiting while Bob, who is slug-nutty about the game, bowls for another hour alone. And any woman and will tell you that that is love!

Met Joan Crawford today and immediately noted that exalted, nothing-must-stop-me-now expression which with her always betokens a new ambition. She confided that she is "preparing" for a radio career. She has converted the little theater in her home into a recording room, installed microphones and recording apparatus, and is making transcriptions of her favorite dramatic roles for practice. Her inexhaustible ambition and energy always amazes me. She is a human dynamo—but like most dynamos, she is too electric to be restful.

Young Singer in Her Screen Debut

Suzanne Larson will make her first screen appearance in "This Is My Wife." The young singer, who was placed under contract while still a grade school pupil, can reach B above high C, a rare vocal accomplishment. She plays a straight dramatic role. Michael Fessier produces and Errol Taggart directs.

Trains Jumper.

Elissa Landi has bought a new horse and will train it as a jumper. The actress has already put it over the 4-foot bar.

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

New York, July 29.

COMFORTS: Monday night, for the first time in more than six years, four of the Scottsboro boys slept in a room which had no barred windows and which offered clean and comfortable bedding. They slept in the home of John Terry, assistant to Sam Leibowitz—the attorney who secured their release and thereby achieved the most notable triumph in the history of the criminal bar . . . The lads felt uncomfortable in comfortable beds, and so Olin Montgomery, Willie Robison and Eugene Williams huddled together in one bed . . . Before retiring, they stated that they desired but one luxury—a real, hot bath, different from the cold showers of the Alabama jails . . . All night long Terry kept turning on the hot water. It was ice cold!

• • • •

WEALTH: Grace Moore is still on a house-building spree. Miss Moore has a home in the south of France, one in Beverly Hills, a ranch in the Encino Valley, and now she's building another home at Arrowhead . . . In the meantime, her husband, Valentine Perrara, is living at the beach—in a trailer.

• • • •

FAME: Col. Bill Hayward, father of Leland Hayward, went to Florida recently and on his arrival was interviewed by the press . . . "Are you THE Col. Hayward?" one reporter asked . . . Hayward beamed and nodded . . . "You mean you're Col. Bill Hayward?" the reporter repeated . . . Hayward placed his thumbs under his suspenders, and expanded. "Yes," he acknowledged . . . "Then," the reporter concluded, "you're the father-in-law of Margaret Sullavan!"

DEFEAT: E. Duryea Dowling, producer of the new Ziegfeld Follies, went to the William Morris office in Hollywood to hire one of their movie song writing clients for the show. He discussed terms with Johnny Hyde, who demanded for the client a $1,000 advance. "This is the picture business," Hyde explained. "It's a whole lot different from your show business" . . . Dowling protested that he was authorized to advance only $500 . . . While they were discussing the $500 difference, Hyde received a phone call: "Roy del Ruth? Yes, we handle him. Yes. He has six weeks off now . . . Is it a good picture? Okay, but we want $75,000 for him. Okay? It's a deal" . . . "Now," said Dowling, as he made a graceful exit, "now I understand."

WONDER: Hannen Swaffer, in the London Daily Herald last week, wrote :"I remember taking Leonard Lyons, the New York columnist, around some shows one night, just to let him glance at various entertainments that London provides. When we looked in at the Windmill Theater, we saw one scene in which a nude Joan of Arc was shown being burned at the stake. 'Am I in the West End of London?' he said, 'or am I at a Minsky burlesque in Times Square?' " . . . And last year, when I took Swaffer to Minsky's, he asked: "Am I at Minsky's burlesque in Times Square—or am I in the West End of London?"

ENTERPRISE: Erskine Gwynne, the socialite, published "The Boulevardier," a Paris magazine, but did the editing in New York. Gwynne is reviving "The Boulevardier," but is making it a New York publication. When Robert Benchley was approached for a subscription he replied: "Sure I'll subscribe, on one condition—that Gwynne goes to Paris!"

PRIDE: Fannie Brice is telling this story of a high diver who wanted her to get him a job with Billy Rose's Cleveland exposition. "Two weeks ago I made a 100-foot dive, did a jackknife, front-flip, then triple somersault—into five feet of water," he boasted . . . "That's nothing," Fannie belittled. "Last week Billy hired a diver who made a 150-foot dive, did a flying Dutchman, one-and-a-half, then a back-flip into three feet of water" . . . "Well," the diver returned, "yesterday I made exactly that same dive, from 200 feet up" . . . "Into how many feet of water?" Miss Brice asked . . . "Into water, nothing," the diver screamed. "Into a wet towel."

• • • •

LOVE: Freddie Bartholomew's aunt and guardian told interviewers that their total finances were $300—that this was a result of the settlement made with his parents . . . When Freddie's mother arrived in Hollywood last year, she was closeted with her son and tried to effect a reconciliation. "But why didn't you come and see me before I became a movie actor?" the youngster asked her . . . "Because we couldn't afford the fare," was the explanation . . . "But, mother," the lad countered, "you could always afford a ha'-penny stamp."

Congratulations!

Coming at the best possible time, cablegrams from London critics congratulating him for his performance in "Night Must Fall" were delivered to Robert Montgomery as he prepared to make up for the first scene in "Love, Live and Learn," his next picture for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

The Newton Is Picture House Of First Rank

Last Night's Dedication of Brookland Theater Greeted by SRO

By Nelson B. Bell.

Advantageously located at the corner of Twelfth and Newton streets northeast, the Newton Theater, newest link in the chain of residential motion picture houses operated in Washington and vicinity by Louis Bernheimer, was opened to the public last night at 7, with appropriate ceremonies and a fine screen bill.

Strategically situated to serve a rapidly growing neighborhood community, the Newton is one of the handsomest outlying picture theaters in the Capital. Occupying long footages on both streets, it makes use of its extensive ground area to seat 1,100 people comfortably on one floor. The entrance to the theater is cut diagonally across the corner of Twelfth and Newton streets, affording easy box-office access from both directions. The entrance foyer leads directly into a richly furnished lobby of modified modernistic design, softly illuminated with indirect lighting and made inviting by deep-cushioned divans and potted palms.

The auditorium proper is elliptical in shape, the side walls curving gracefully to the proscenium and giving an immediate impression of spaciousness and comfort. The modernistic motif, in subdued form, is carried out here in the lighting fixtures, color scheme and wall panelling. The walls are done in a dark brown, relieved by effective touches of blues and greens. Every trace of the bizarre effect of ultra-modern design, and decoration has been omitted from the plan and color scheme of the Newton, which, in this regard, has nothing to outgrow or live down. The soft-pile carpet harmonizes with the walls and deep-toned panelling, in slightly lighter tones. Every seat in the house has perfect-sight lines to the screen.

Last night's dedicatory exercises were inaugurated with "The Star-Spangled Banner," led by a Leon Brusiloff string ensemble. The program then was in charge of M. M. McLean, president of the Michigan Park Citizens Association. The speakers introduced included John L. Fowler, secretary of the Brookland-Woodridge Business Men's Association, and John J. Hurley, president of the Michigan Park Business Men's Association.

Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, of the District of Columbia, was prevented from being present by press of official business on Capitol Hill. He sent as his representative, however, Elwood Seal, of the Corporation Counsel's office, who delivered felicitous remarks in welcoming the Newton to the growing list of the National Capital's outstanding residential picture theaters.

The Newton was designed by John J. Zink, well known Baltimore theater architect, who already has several Washington theaters to his credit—none more beautiful than this. It will be open evenings only, except on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, when matinee performances will be given.

Last night's inaugural bill was featured by "I Met Him In Paris," starring Claudette Colbert, with Melvyn Douglas and Robert Young, and included three short subjects—News of the Day, Sybil Jason in "The Little Pioneer," a Broadway Brevity in natural color and a Popeye cartoon comedy, "Lost and Foundry." The same bill will be repeated today.

A standing-room audience turned out last night to welcome a playhouse of which Brookland and its environs may well be proud.

Goodman Delays Bad-Check Hearing

Arraigned in police court yesterday charged with giving a bad check in payment for a $1,290 automobile, Donald W. Goodman, 32, of the 3900 block of Benton street northwest, was granted a continuance until August 5.

Seven charges of false representation also were placed against the man who was returned here from Baltimore Monday. He demanded a jury trial on these counts and the cases were continued for assignment.

Detective Sergt. Chester Stepp brought Goodman back here for trial after he was taken into custody by Baltimore police. A representative of Parkway Motor Co., appeared in police court against Goodman yesterday.

California Man Held in 'Theft' Of Own Child

Admits Taking Daughter From Mother; Wide Search Ends.

Sought throughout the country on a charge of "stealing" his own daughter, Harry L. Anderson, alias Robert Anderson, 31, of Berkeley, Calif., was arrested here yesterday.

Traffic Policeman A. A. Schmidt took the man into custody when he recognized Anderson's sedan parked near Thirteenth and I streets northwest. A lookout had been sent here for the car several days ago.

When he was taken to police headquarters, Anderson admitted to police he had brought his 2½-year-old daughter, Doris Elizabeth, here after he took her from her mother's home in San Luis Obispo, Calif., June 3.

A graduate of California University and an electrical engineer, Anderson said a California court awarded the child's custody to his wife last year. He said he wanted his daughter with him.

After leaving California, Anderson told police he managed to make his way across the country doing odd jobs. He was working in a linoleum shop here when he was seized.

Police located Doris Elizabeth in a home on Hudson avenue in Takoma Park, Md., where she was being taken care of by a housewife.

Charge Not Kidnaping.

The child was brought to police headquarters yesterday. Clad in a yellow play suit she silently sat on Inspector Bernard W. Thompson's desk and with a tiny fist in her eye refused to answer any questions. She later was taken to the Receiving Home.

Her father was taken to the First Precinct station and held as a fugitive from justice while police notified the child's mother, Mrs. Carmel Anderson and California authorities.

Inspector Thompson said the charge placed against Anderson is not a kidnaping charge but was put into effect in California to cover such cases.

Literary Society in D. C. To Memorialize Burnett

The Fauntleroy Literary Society of the District of Columbia will meet Sunday at 2:30 p. m. to pay tribute to the memory of Vivian Burnett, who was the inspiration for "Little Lord Fauntleroy" and who died last Sunday at Manhasset, N. Y., after rescuing four persons from drowning.

The meeting will be held at 1219 I street northwest, where Frances Hodgson Burnett lived when she wrote the story with her small son as the title character. A wreath will be placed under the bronze marker which was placed on the home by the society in 1936.

Il Duce Reviews Adriatic Warships On 54th Birthday

Riccione, Italy, July 29 (AP).—Premier Mussolini celebrated his fifty-fourth birthday today with a review of the first squadron of the Adriatic fleet anchored at this, his favorite, summer resort.

The review, however, was not considered by Il Duce as a celebration but as part of his job as minister of the Italian navy. Il Duce does not celebrate the fact that he is getting older.

Twice a grandfather, Mussolini is a young man in vigor and health. He still keeps up the strenuous pace he set for himself when he became premier almost a decade ago as head of a young men's government.

This year the vacations have been more frequent, although brief. From time to time he spends from a few days to a week on the Adriatic and then returns to his office in Rome's sweltering heat.

Sugar Bill Vote Order Refused By Roosevelt

act, which expires December 31, 1937.

Florida and Louisiana, cane-sugar States, have insisted throughout the duration of the Jones-Costigan act that their quotas were too low; Hawaii, Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico—the "offshore" producers and refiners—have pleaded for equal recognition as Americans, and the beet-sugar States have battled against according Southern cane areas further quota increases.

Refined Imports Fought.

Further, American refiners have fought against allowing offshore producers to refine sugar before shipping it to this country.

It is understood Secretaries Hull and Wallace favor the present bill, with certain revisions, but feel obliged to back up Secretary Ickes in his stand that offshore producers and refiners must have a more neary equal recognition than the bill grants.

Hull, however, has fought reduction in refined sugar imports from foreign producers such as Cuba, on the ground that such reductions would operate against the reciprocal trade agreements.

The situation makes the position of Chairman John J. O'Connor (Democrat), of New York, head of the House Rules Committee, unusually important.

Struck by 'Wild Woman' Fair Patron Asks $1,600

Los Angeles, July 29 (AP).—Those "wild women" at the pier concession in Venice, Calif., are really wild, Homer C. Pierce, young dental technician, contended in a $1,600 damage suit filed today.

The wild woman in question, Pierce charged, leaped up the side of her cage and struck him on the head with a piece of rubber hose, "greatly injuring him internally and externally, temporarily and permanently, inflicting cuts and bruises and causing shock to his nervous system."

ment denying he had given the amended legislation his approval.

Senator Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, stated on the Senate floor the bill as amended met all objections of the Administration, and he hinted the President also had acquiesced.

Representative Celler (Democrat), of New York, has been raising the loudest objections to the rider in the House.

A House parliamentarian stated last night that the House will not have an opportunity to vote on the rider alone, however, but will have to vote the whole conference report either up or down.

Members of the House managers predicted that the rider would be adopted regardless of opposition as 42 States now have laws which would be affected.

Treasury officials, on the other hand, expressed concern lest the bill cause the Government to lose revenue and encourage bootlegging.

Unless the conference report is called up in the House today under unanimous consent, it will go over until next week as the House will not be in session tomorrow.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Husband Asks Help in Convincing Wife of Necessity for Self Control During "Transitional Period."

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Generally speaking you land on the male of the species like a ton of brick and probably he deserves it. But once in a while there might be justification for cracking down on the female of the species. Take my case: I have been married for over 20 years and have two children. Just now, my wife who heretofore had been the personification of loving-kindness, devotion and thoughtfulness, is passing through that difficult transition which all women experience in middle life. Sympathizing with her ordeal, I have tried most sincerely to be patient and considerate. But life in our home has become a virtual hell on earth and her doctor tells me it will probably continue for months and gives me the absurd advice to pay no attention to it all.

• • • •

Always before a quiet and cheerful individual, my wife has become the opposite extreme. Nothing is right, nothing is bright, she is suspicious of everyone's word and act and particularly of mine. Being an ordinary man, I have made my share of mistakes and perhaps more. Every single one of these has been cast up to me and enlarged upon, time and time again and in the loudest tones at all times of day and night, so that our neighbors have complained more than once. They have been re-hashed in the children's hearing, in what seems a deliberate attempt to show what a terrible creature their father is.

• • • •

My wife's physician tells me I must not introduce or discuss any controversial subjects which might irritate her. Hence, when she brings up this kind of talk and I try to change the subject, she charges me with refusal to talk. I am instructed to pay no attention to her crying spells. Hence, she says I am hard-hearted, care nothing for her, etc., etc. She has threatened to kill herself and I have had to restrain her, but the physician says to pay no attention even to such attempts. Also, she has threatened me and even the children.

• • • •

Having lost everything in the depression, I suffered a nervous collapse myself, and hence I am one of those unfortunate individuals who suffer from "nerves." Just recently I changed jobs and, naturally, my work is carefully watched by my new employers. With such conditions at home, my state of mind is far from what it should be and my professional connection is jeopardized . . . I never know what condition I am going to face at home of evenings and it is not improbable I may lose my job if this continues. In that event, my own nerves will get the best of me again.

• • • •

My wife's physician says, and I have proved more than once, that she can control these spells if she half tries. Therefore, my only object in writing to you is to urge you to give a bit of sound advice to women on the virtue and necessity of self-control during this unfortunate period in their lives. Sincerely, HARASSED HUSBAND.

Helpful Reading Matter.

DEAR HARASSED HUSBAND: In the August issue of Pictorial Review (combined with Delineator) Maxine Davis has a splendid article dealing with this very problem. It is titled, "Life Does Not End at 50: The Story of the Menopause." Everything that the most enlightened layman could possibly contribute to a sane and helpful consideration of this subject is contained in Miss Davis' article, which I do not hesitate to pronounce a masterpiece of careful workmanship. By all means get the magazine and give it to your wife. Also, get from library or bookstore a copy of Dr. Marie Stopes' "Change of Life in Men and Women," published a year or two ago.

• • • •

Both Miss Davis and Dr. Stopes paint a reassuring and more or less identical picture of physical and emotional difficulties which women may expect to encounter in life's transitional period. In telling what to anticipate and how to cope with it, these writers (to use the words of Miss Davis) "dissolve . . . fears as surely as the lighted nursery lamp transformed dread objects to their ordinary substance." They show that bootless fears unwarrantedly entertained are primarily responsible for the hysteria, the melancholia and the perversity of women who react, as your wife is reacting, to this perfectly normal experience in an unnecessarily abnormal way.

• • • •

After reading these authors, it may occur to yourself and your wife (and with reason) that she is not receiving the proper medical care. One who is subject to recurrent loss of nervous and emotional control quite often is suffering from functional disorders which can be corrected by proper medication following expert diagnosis. Your wife's is probably a case for a specialist, rather than a general practitioner; and if you would like the name of a specialist skilled in the diagnosis and treatment of glandular (the so-called "functional") disorders, I shall be glad to give it to you, if you will provide me with a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

M. H.

Midseason Jacket of Light Weight Fur

Fur Jackets for Midseason Herald the New Fall Styles

By Ethel Ehlen.

The Post Fashion Editor.

THE VOGUE for fur jackets which promises to prevail this fall and winter has been taken up by designers for midseason. These versions are fashioned of flat furs, are usually collarless, and of the short, boxy interpretation. They are particularly smart and comfortable for vacation cruises, boat trips and mountain holidays. If a conservative styling is selected, one that is not definitely of the sports type, a fur jacket of this sort is equally appropriate for daytime and evening.

Many of the advanced style features found in the winter fur coats have been borrowed for these midsummer editions; such as broad shoulders, loose flowing cuffs, tuxedo-effect front, slight swagger back. Made of light-colored furs, they are a striking contrast to black and dark midseason frocks of silk crepe or sheer wool. They also top knitted costumes with smart nonchalance; or two-piece suits of light-weight wool.

They are a practical purchase, as they can be worn until late in the fall (or whenever it is time to don a winter coat); for business, afternoon or informal evening occasions. The midsummer fur jacket is a grand solution to the problem of vacation coat buying, if you are in need of a wrap that will be smart and comfortable, and that can be worn on into the fall and next spring. The Washington stores and shops are showing a variety of interesting styles in clever fur jackets in varying length (and prices), especially planned for midseason and vacation wear.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York July 29.

AMERICA'S crop of lady poets is smaller than it has been in many years—at least, as far as meets the public eye. Sara Teasdale writer of superb love verse, and Elinor Wylie, the beauteous singer, are no more with us. But now comes Edna St. Vincent Millay with her new book of poems called "Conversation at Midnight."

ALICE HUGHES.

Poking through it, I find it a long haul to the days when Edna was a hungry, vivid little critter on the brink of Washington Square, and she and her sisters, Norma and Kathleen, were the three graces of Greenwich Village. Then youth was in the ascendant, and Edna's poetry was pure song. Now, in middle age, the bardess is at last caught up with ideas, and her new book is a long conversational discussion—shot through, here and there, with real Millay music.

It is ripened, mature and interesting Millay in this book that comes from the woman who spends her days in her Connecticut garden, and everyone will want to have it. But the essence of youth, probably, goes into truly memorable poetry—and Edna St. Vincent will be remembered for the song of her difficult but wonderful Village days; especially that horribly over-quoted "My candle burns at both ends; it will not last the night." You finish it, if you can bear it!

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—We all went down to the pier and waved bye-bye to the incomparable Beatrice Lillie, whose chores in "The Show Is On" were over at last. Auntie Bea—or Lady Peel, as she is rightly called in England—is making a fast dash to Blighty, after which she returns to our friendly shores to make a movie in Hollywood.

• • • •

Most of the troupers like to work in the summer theaters, but many of the big stars prefer to look up at the sky. Katharine Cornell, for instance, is taking her holiday at Martha's Vineyard, off the Massachusetts coast, while Tallulah Bankhead is resting in Connecticut. . . .

• • • •

Usually I can take baby shows, or leave them alone, but one just transpired here that I simply had to take. It was a Chinese infant contest, with no less than 60 black-haired, slant-eyed entrants, and it was well worth a visit to teeming, screaming Mulberry street—even in this weather. . . .

• • • •

Since we New York ladies are now permitted to serve on juries we are getting some instructions about how to act while decorating (?) the box. Already classes on proper jury deportment have been started at a local hotel. Here was the first lesson taught the eager pupils. "Don't flourish your lipstick in the judge's face, or make eyes at counsel." Well, that would seem to be fundamental enough—but what in the heck sort of women does the professor take us for, anyhow!

This column appears Sunday and daily.

TODAY'S HEALTH TALK

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

Typhoid, Typhus Die Out.

It was a hundred years ago that Dr. William Wood Gerhard, in Philadelphia, pointed out that the symptoms and the character of typroid fever were peculiar to itself and unlike other fevers with which it was then confused. Before his work, nearly any continued fever was called typhus. Typhus fever is a distinct entity and entirely different from typhoid.

Gerhard did not have the advantage of being able to isolate the germs of the two diseases which can easily be proved to be different. He had to rely on the physical changes in the body produced by the two diseases. He pointed out that the spots of inflammation and the ulcers in the intestine in typhoid fever did not occur in the other disease. "It is as impossible," he wrote, "to change typhoid into typhus fever, as it is to change the eruption of measles into the pustules of smallpox."

This was clear thinking and revolutionary thinking for his day.

Ills Almost Disappear.

Both typhus fever and typhoid fever virtually have disappeared by now. Typhus fever went out shortly after Gerhard's time, when more humane and hygienic methods of handling prisoners in jails (it was nicknamed "jail fever") were introduced. Overcrowding on ships was also reduced and this action contributed to the decline of typhus.

Typhoid, however, continued its reign for many years after Gerhard. It was one of the dreaded intestinal infections of this time of year. Fifty years ago at this season you would have heard of one or two of your friends down with typhoid every week.

By contrast, I have before me the record of the number of cases of typhoid in the large cities of the United States in 1936. In 18 large cities there was no death from typhoid fever last year. Not one. The actual number of cases is not recorded, but as the mortality of typhoid is about 10 per cent, it might be urged statistically that less than ten cases of typhoid occurred in these cities. That is quite an achievement. No large city had more than ten deaths, which means by the same reasoning that no large city in the United States had as many as a hundred cases of typhoid fever in 1936. In 1900 there would not have been less than a thousand!

What has brought this about? The recognition that typhoid fever is a water-borne disease and the regular supervision of the water supply. Next the practice of preventing typhoid individually by vaccination. This should still be carried out. While traveling in Europe recently, I was surprised to find that one member of my party never had had typhoid inoculation. She drank nothing but bottled water from then on—by orders.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Wallis Inspires Autumn Changes In Girdle Fashion

New York (AP).—The Duchess of Windsor's figure and clothes have inspired fall fashions in girdles.

Her wedding dress with its draped bustline and long, curved, slender diaphragm has influenced the design of new "corselette" frocks for fall and necessitated girdles of the same line to create the right profile.

Moreover, designers say, the duchess' slender silhouette has convinced women that they need not lose their figures when they pass 40, and has focused attention on clothes for petite short women—often hard to dress.

The new girdles are designed with a slender curved diaphragm, a flat or concave midriff and a molded hipline. No bulges. For slender figures there are separate girdles and brassieres; for heavier women, all-in-one models that mold the figure from bust to hips.

None of them is heavily boned. Instead, designers have worked with elasticized fabrics which mold and hold the figure. Most of the models combine elasticized side sections, which stretch two ways (sideways as well as up and down) with satin front and back panels stretching only one way.

New brassieres have been designed to banish the old "pincushion look." They mold the bust to a fairly high, divided and rounded line.

Six at Dinner Party Is Enough; More Dangerous, Says Gourmet

Unconventional Suggestions for Perfect Meal and Ideal Kitchen Are Given by M. F. K. Fisher, Author and Exponent of Civilized Dining.

By Malvina Lindsay.

AFTER campaigning for years for the limitation of all social gatherings to the number of eight persons, I have naturally been elated to discover an authority on the art of eating who maintains that six is the ideal number for a dinner party.

"Six can dine well at a table," says M. F. K. Fisher in her book, "Serve It Forth," recently published by Harper and Brothers. "More, even one or two, are dangerous, and beyond ten deadly."

"What is worse," she asks, "than the rigid right-left conversational jollity of an annual feast of some modern 'service club,' thick with the noise of too many people eating too much food cooked in too large quantities?"

This unique book, though designed primarily for the gourmet, yet offers many practical suggestions toward the general cause of civilized dining. For instance, here is the perfect meal as the author sees it:

It should have "simplicity above all."

It should have newness in what is served.

It should have "mutual ease." "For that reason," says the author, "I prefer not to have among my guests two people or more of any sex who are in the first wild tremors of love. It is better to invite them after their new passion has settled, has solidified into a quieter reciprocity of emotions. (It is also a waste of good food to serve it to new lovers.)"

It should have women among the guests—preferably interesting ones. "It is, though," says Mrs. Fisher, "very dull to be at a table with dull people no matter what their sex."

It should be served only to persons who enjoy and appreciate food in its finer nuances and who possess the "rare gift of sitting."

The Ideal Kitchen.

Concerning the ideal kitchen, Mrs. Fisher has some interesting and unconventional ideas. Such a kitchen, as she visualizes it, would have none of the "June bride's first little home" about it.

"There are many small things I am sure about," she writes. "No shelf papers; no sharp edges or protruding hooks or wires; no ruffled curtains; and no cheap colored stove, mauve or green or opalescent like a modern toilet seat.

"Instead of these I would have smooth shelves of some material like ebony or structural glass, shelves open or protected by sliding transparent doors. I would have curved and rounded edges, even to the floor, for the sake of cleanliness, and because I hate the decayed colors of a bruise.

"Instead of curtains I would have Venetian blinds, of four different colors for the seasons of the year. They would be, somehow, on the outside of the glass.

"And the stove would be black, with copper and earthenware utensils to put on it. It would be a wood stove, or perhaps electrical with place for a charcoal grill.

"There are many other things, too, that would be very pleasant, like a little side kitchen in which to make the ices and salads and tart that should not be near the heat and high flavor of roasting meats, and racks let down from the ceiling for the pots and skillets to lie on, and a radio or an automatic phonograph to make dull tasks agreeable. I would want the sinks and the table tops made to my own height, too, and not for some mythical short-legged cook.

"All these, though, are relatively unimportant. There are only three things I need, to make any kitchen a pleasant one as long as it is clean.

"First, I need space enough to get a good simple meal for six people.

"Then I need a window or two, for clear air and a sight of things growing.

"Most of all I need to be let alone. I need peace.

"Taste-Blind" Americans.

"From there—from there, on the sill of my wide window, the plan is yours. It will include a herb-yard surely, and a brick courtyard for summer suppers. And an apple orchard perhaps. A far sea view?"

A gourmet herself, who has delved into the art of cookery of all ages and many countries, Mrs. Fisher is hopeful that Americans will awaken to a more cultivated relish of food. She says:

"In America we eat, collectively, with a glum urge for food to fill us. We are ignorant of flavor. We are, as a nation, taste blind.

"Cautiously we blink at a faint glimmer in the gloom. It seems, just now, that we have become conscious of a few subtleties. There is a faddish demand for roomy salad bowls, for pepper mills, which may bring permanent light to our national palate. Already an occasional shame-faced protest is heard against calling a California wine 'dry' sauterne, or a mild titter over some such synthetic gastronomy as prompted an advertisment saying, 'this is a vintage year for maple syrup.'

"These feeble but encouraging signs must survive as best they may, however, while 10,000,000 men rush every noontime for their ham-on-white and cherry coke. Those 10,000,000 men may die taste blind as well as stomach ulcered, unless they are shocked into recognition of their own powers of enjoyment."

Ageless Quality In Some Women Due to Outlook

Elizabeth Bergner Defines It as Keeping Mind Young.

By Carolyn Abbott.

SOME WOMEN remain ageless. Ninon de L'Enclos, who is reputed to have had suitors at 80, of course, remains the classic example of this type. But in more recent times there have been other women, actresses, artists, feminine leaders of various kinds, whose spirits have defied age.

Maud Adams was one of these. No one will ever think of the impersonator of Peter Pan as becoming an old woman, no matter how many years she may attain. A more recent example of the same type of femininity is Elizabeth Bergner. Although still young—in her early 30s—she has already mastered the art of looking even younger. In her pictures she has convincingly appeared as 20, 17, 15—even younger.

Make-up has nothing to do with this achievement, according to Miss Bergner. It is due, she says, to remaining "mentally young."

Bergner's mind, her whole outlook, is enthusiastic, vibrant and youthful. How could her face and body reflect anything but enthusiasm and youth? Internationally famous, with the world at her feet, she remains personally as natural and unaffected as a child.

Here, then, is her formula: Keep your mind young, your outlook fresh and unspoiled, and your face and body will reflect it.

Except on the stage or screen, Bergner uses no make-up. A daily all-over ice massage is her only beauty rite. She walks miles whenever she can. She likes to turn somersaults. She adheres to a simple diet. She gets plenty of sleep, sometimes remaining in bed for an entire day when she feels need of extra rest.

A simple regime for eternal youth? At least, it has worked for Bergner.

COOKING HINTS

Jellies, jams and butters should not be overcooked. If they are their flavors will be impaired and they will become too thick. They will also thicken when they cool.

An unusual appetizer may be made by cutting dill pickles into two-inch slices, hollowing the centers and filling them with cottage cheese mixed with minced parsley, onion and green pepper.

A summer confection which combines the ice cream and cake idea may be made by placing a frozen layer of ice cream or sherbet between two layers of white, sponge or angel food cake. The combination may then be covered with whipped cream.

A heavy streak at the bottom of a cake usually is due to incomplete blending of ingredients. This is especially true when only egg yolks are used in the batter. To avoid the streak give the batter an extra beating.

To make a tasty dish for supper or luncheon cut leftover meat loaf into one-inch pieces and add it to cooked macaroni, rice, lima beans, potatoes or peas mixed with a cream sauce or leftover gravy.

Housewife Who Has Run Out of Ideas for Meat On Menus Is Advised to Substitute in Summer

Mustard and Beer Used in Toasted Snacks Recipe.

Other Suggestions Provide Combination With Vegetables.

By Rebekah Blake.

THIS IS a good time to substitute cheese for meat in your menus. It is lighter and a good suggestion for the housewife who has run out of meat ideas for summer meals. Bright cheese slices brought to the table on an attractively arranged platter will add a gay note to your summer supper and this plateful will be well received, whether it is to accompany the salad course, the vegetable course or the apple pie at the end of the meal.

If you are out of ideas for luncheon today, when your next-door neighbor may drop in, serve toasted cheese snacks. Their savory flavor is something to talk about and the simple preparation will give you plenty of time to talk.

Toasted cheese snacks are prepared in the oven and do not require the careful watching true of those made in the broiler. The generous spreading of the bread with prepared mustard and then soaking with beer are the secrets to the success of this sandwich.

Toasted Cheese Snacks.

4 slices white bread
8 tablespoons prepared mustard
1 cup beer
½ pound American cheese
4 slices bacon

Spread bread slices thickly with mustard, lay on a baking sheet and brown lightly in the oven. Take out the baking sheet; sprinkle bread slices with beer until it is all used; cover with slices of cheese ¼ inch thick; lay 2 half slices of bacon on each. Return to oven and cook until cheese is melted and the bacon is done.

Cheese is an excellent accompaniment for fresh vegetables, which are now so plentiful. A hot cheese sandwich and tender green asparagus tips combine to make a most nutritious and appetizing luncheon or supper plate.

Luncheon Sandwich Plate.

8 slices of bread
½ pound American cheese
Cooked asparagus

Toast bread lightly on both sides. Spread with cheese and place in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until the cheese melts. Pile asparagus on one slice and top with a band of cheese about ½ inch wide. Return to oven to heat asparagus, about 15 minutes.

A cheese ring combined with cold fruit salad is a meal in itself and appropriate and enjoyable for luncheon, dinner or supper in the summer. The fruit salad may be bought, canned, or may be made by using fresh fruits that are now in the local markets.

Roquefort Cheese Ring With Fruit Salad.

3½ cups milk
2 tablespoons gelatine
¼ cup cold water
¼ pound Roquefort cheese
2 packages (6 ounces) cream cheese
Salt to suit taste

Scald the milk, remove from heat and stir in gelatine which has been softened in the cold water. Combine Roquefort and cream cheese, add two tablespoons of the liquid mixture, and blend to smooth paste. When gelatine mixture begins to congeal, whip until light and beat in the cheese. Season and pour into a wet ring mold; chill until congealed. Unmold on chilled serving plate and heap in center a fruit salad. Serve with French dressing.

French Dressing.

3 tablespoons lemon juice
3 tablespoons salad oil
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons cream
Salt to suit taste

Beat all ingredients together and pour over fruit. The cream tends to prevent the dressing from separating.

Chartreuse of Vegetables With Cheese Sauce.

1 bunch of beets
1 bunch carrots, scraped and sliced
2 pounds spinach, cleaned
1 teaspoon grated onion
4 to 8 tablespoons butter, melted
⅛ cup cream
1 cup freshly grated sharp cheese
Salt and pepper to suit taste
Worcestershire sauce, if desired

Clean beets without breaking skin, and leave root and part of stem attached. Cook beets, carrots and spinach separately until tender in boiling water. Peel beets, slice and butter generously. Drain and butter carrots. Drain spinach thoroughly; add onion and two tablespoons of butter. Arrange some of beet and carrot slices on bottom and sides of buttered plain mold; pack in spinach and rest of vegetables and place in slow oven while making sauce.

Place two tablespoons of butter and the cream in saucepan and heat to boiling point. Turn flame as low as possible, add cheese and stir rapidly until melted; do not boil. Add seasonings and serve at once over vegetable mold which has been unmolded on a hot platter. Yield: Six servings.

While meat prices are high and the weather is warm, substitute cheese for meat in your daily menus. It is an appropriate accompaniment for fresh vegetables and fruits. American cheese, fresh asparagus tips and bread may be combined to make an excellent luncheon or supper dish.

New Methods of Canning

DELICIOUS home-canned foods for jiffy meals and company treats! How quickly you can fill your shelves using modern canning methods.

You'll keep cool as a cucumber, making uncooked chopped pickle. Simply put 2 quarts chopped tomatoes, 1 quart diced celery, ½ cup chopped onion, 2 chopped red peppers, seeded, in a sieve to drain. Place in a sterilized earthenware jar and sprinkle with these spices—½ teaspoon ground cinnamon, ½ cup mustard seed, ½ teaspoon ground cloves, ½ teaspoon ground ginger, ½ teaspoon ground mace. Scald together 1 cup sugar, 2-3 cup salt, 2-3 cup grated horseradish, 1 quart vinegar. Pour this mixture over vegetables. Stir thoroughly, keep closely covered.

Now that tomatoes are plentiful, put up the family's favorite tomato juice. It's such a quick process that before the kitchen's heated you're done. Wash, drain, cut up tomatoes. Simmer only until tender. Press through a fine sieve. Bring juice to a boil. Pour in sterilized jars and seal with sterilized rubbers and lids while still boiling hot.

Tomatoes add zest to delicious canned vegetable mixtures. And of course you'll want to put up Creole tomatoes, snappy with peppers and onions. You'll find directions for these in our 40-page booklet, New Ways of Canning Fruits, Vegetables and Meats. 108 delectable time-and-money-saving recipes. Handy chart shows how to prepare, how long to process fruits and vegetables. Pressure, steam-cooker, oven, open-kettle and hot-water bath methods fully explained.

Send 15c for our booklet, New Ways of Canning Fruits, Vegetables and Meats, to The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Canapes Enhance Hostess' Standing

A tray of spicy canapes to serve with cool beverages does much to enhance your standing as a hostess. You will take a bow for any of these:

Stuffed Dill Pickles.

Scoop out the centers of dill pickles and fill the hollow with a paste made of cream cheese mixed with cut ripe olives and seasoned with celery salt and a dash of paprika. Chill and slice cross-wise. Mashed hard cooked eggs may be substituted for the cheese.

Chicken Liver Paste.

Mash to a paste ½ cup cooked chicken livers and blend with 2 tablespoons butter or chicken fat, ¼ teaspoon onion salt, dash of pepper and sprinkling of celery salt. Can be kept in refrigerator until time to use. Spread on thin crackers or toast points.

In Summertime Young Man's Fancy Turns to Mustard

Every season has a characteristic food smell. In the fall there is the sweet-sour scent of pickling, in the winter the rich fragrance of spice cakes and plum puddings. Spring coaxes the appetite with young fruits and vegetables and summer stirs the salivary glands, despite all record temperatures, with the tantalizing tang of mustard.

The summer popularity of mustard is well founded. It compliments most of the seasonal foods—the smoked meals such as ham, and the hot dogs and the fish and cheese which are backbone of the roadside trade as well.

Some families prefer a mustard spread that is freshly prepared before each use. Dry mustard is mixed to a thin paste either with cold water or with mild vinegar. As the flavor and piquancy of this mix are at their best after a half hour's standing, it should be made in advance.

Legation Party Honors King Farouk I of Egypt

By Dudley Harmon.

Crowning of the King of Misr, Lord of Nubia and the Sudan and sovereign of Kordofan and Darfour—otherwise known as King Farouk I of Egypt—was celebrated last evening with a super-gala reception last evening at the Egypning with a super-gala reception at the Egyptian legation.

Last night's party represented a cross section of Washington. Everybody was there, from ambassadors and ministers to news photograpahers, who popped up clutching candid cameras or flashlight bulbs. The invitations stipulated "decorations," so the members of the Diplomatic Corps present positively sparkled with glittering medals and scarlet ribbons.

Members of the legation staff had gone to enormous pains to see that last evening's party was a success. Little colored lights were strung on the first floor, flowers—mostly tea roses and gladioli—were everywhere, and the food was something out of the Arabian Nights. There was an Egyptian salad christened "Tehema," stuffed Egyptian vegetables, and for less exotic palates, creamed chicken and rice, several American varieties of salad, ices, ice cream, cakes, and bon bons.

Toasts to the new King—his portrait hung in the drawing room—were drunk in the finest of champagnes, and besides this drink there was every possible kind one could ask for, served from a buffet.

Elaborate Food Served to Guests

Members of the legation staff had gone to no end of trouble to make this an elaborate party. When the guests stepped into the ballroom, they found it had been entirely redecorated for the occasion. The floor was covered with arabesques in Moorish style and the windows were hung with heavy silk curtains.

The green flag of the legation was hung from the doorway to emphasize the importance of the event. The building itself, a white stone structure on Sheridan circle, is one of the handsomest legations in Washington. The reception last evening was held on the second floor, which is approached by a white marble staircase carpeted in red velvet.

At the head of these stairs stood the host, Anis Azer, Charge d'Affaires during the absence of the Minister, who is in Egypt. Wearing numerous ribbons, he was assisted in receiving by Mme. Youssef, wife of Hannan Youssef, Egyptian Consul General in New York.

The guest list last evening ran the gamut of Washington society, from diplomatic to just plain residential. There was Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador, who was accompanied by several members of his staff, including Philip Broadmead, First Secretary, and Noel Trentham, Financial Counselor.

Mrs. Borah, wife of the Senator who never attends evening parties in the Capital, was an early arrival, wearing a summer chiffon patterned in flowers. Senator Arthur Capper was there, as was another from "up on the Hill," Representative Byron Scott of California, who was accompanied by his sister, Miss Edith Scott.

The be-medaled diplomats present last evening included Dr. Hans Thomsen, Counselor of the German Embassy; the Greek Minister, Demetrios Sicilianos; the Chinese Ambassador, with his two pretty daughters, who wore the costume of their country; Joao Ramos, Charge d'Affaires of the Portuguese legation; Mr. and Mrs. Francis Irgens, of the Norwegian legation, the latter in a crimson satin gown; and Mme Boncesco of the Rumanian legation, in peach colored satin.

Mrs. Harold Hinton, in a lovely frock, arrived with her husband, a member of the New York Times bureau. Others glimpsed during the evening were William McEvoy, Mr. and Mrs. John Caswell, Mrs. Caswell wearing a crimson lace frock; Mrs. Fred Britten; former Representative and Mrs. Nathaniel Dial, Gary Owen, and Mrs. Gerald Linke, with her sister, Mrs. Buchanan.

The press was well represented at last evening's party, among the journalists being Drew Pearson, with Mrs. Pearson, who wore black with a square decolletage; and Harold Horan.

Parties given in Washington for kings are usually more fun than those held for presidents of foreign countries, and last evening's was no exception. The dancing lasted later than that at most diplomatic receptions, which usually end just on the dot, and many stayed on until the small hours of the morning.

Virginia Street To Be Wed Aug. 14

Announcement was made in New York yesterday of plans for the wedding there August 14 of Miss Virginia Street, of New York and Watch Hills, R. I., and Ivy L. Lee, jr.

Miss Street is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Nelson Street. Mr. Lee is the son of the late Ivy Lee, public relations counsel to the Rockefeller family and press adviser to many widely known persons. Mr. Lee, jr., is a member of the publicity firm of Ivy Lee and T. J. Ross.

Miss Ryon Married To Joseph L. Dyson

Miss Hazel Louise Ryon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pinkney Ryon, of Ritchie, Md., was married Tuesday to Joseph Laurie Dyson, son of Mrs. Frank Dyson, of Washington. The wedding took place at St. Thomas' Church, Croome, Md.

Miss Lillian Ryon, the bride's sister, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Vincent Ryon, sister-in-law of the bride; Miss Mary Dyson, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Rita Sandekuher and Miss Margaret Fredericks. Francis Dyson, the bridegroom's brother, was best man.

The couple left on a wedding trip following a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

Mr., Mrs. J. J. Dillon To Sail for Europe

Mr. and Mrs. James J. Dillon will leave Washington on Sunday for New York City, to sail for a European vacation on the Cunarder Georgic on August 7. Landing in Cobh, Ireland, they will motor through the Free State, visiting Mr. Dillon's sister in Dublin, and cousins of Mrs. Dillon in England. Crossing the channel, they will make a brief stay in Paris before returning to New York in mid-September.

Since their marriage at St. Patrick's Cathedral, in New York, Mr. and Mrs. Dillon have resided in New York, Atlanta, and Washington. The former is an attorney for the Department of Justice.

Plan Luncheon Party.

Zeta Beta Chi, World Caravan Guild, will give a luncheon and swiming party tomorrow at 2:30 at the Maryland Club Gardens.

Chicago Girl Wed At Nantucket, Mass.

Miss Margaret Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leeds Mitchell, of Chicago, was married at Nantucket, Mass., yesterday to Barrett Wendell, 3d, also of Chicago and grandson of the late Francis Lee Higginson, Boston banker.

The maid of honor was Miss Nancy Montgomery of Stamford, Conn., and other attendants were Mrs. Horace H. Soule of Brookline; Mrs. F. Lee H. Wendell of Chicago, and Miss Sidney Todd of Long Island.

Mr. Wendell's best man was his brother, F. Lee H. Wendell and the ushers included Leeds Mitchell jr. Brewster Perry and Chauncey Hutchins, all of Chicago.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Fred H. Bennett at the First Congregational Church in Nantucket. After a reception, the couple left on a wedding trip.

Allard Gasques Have Guests at Dinner Here

Representative and Mrs. Allard Gasque had guests dining with them at the Shoreham Terrace last evening, including Mr. and Mrs. Fred Richardson and their daughter, Miss Phyllis Richardson, of Fairfax, Va.

Allard Gasque, jr., has come from the Citadel School in Charlestown, and Tom Gasque from Augusta Military Academy to join their parents.

Underwood & Underwood.

Anis Azer, Charge d'Affaires of the Egyptian Legation; Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador, and Mme. Youssef, wife of Hassan Youssef, the Egyptian Consul at New York, as they chatted last night at the celebration of the crowning of King Farouk I.

Mrs. Whitney Gets Film Role

Noted Horsewoman Will Star in Story With Saratoga Background.

While Mrs. John Hay Whitney will not be the Scarlett O'Hara of "Gone With the Wind" in the movie version of the story, as has been rumored, she most definitely will be the heroine of a high-jumping horse opera soon to be filmed in Hollywood.

When the directors and producers saw her atop a horse, they decided a story with Saratoga implications and background was the one for her. So she has signed up for an equine epic in which she will be the girl in the saddle.

Mrs. Whitney, who now is dashing into the public eye with her movie venture, has always been more or less reticent about attracting it through the social route and in the past has preferred her farm, "Llangollen," near Middleburg, to the golden horseshoe at the Metropolitan.

As everybody knows, she has beautiful dark eyes, small, clear-cut features and the sort of slenderness for which Hollywood stars diet.

It is only a couple of years since John Hay Whitney, her husband, supplied the money for the technicolor movie, "Becky Sharpe," and he has continued to invest heavily in this industry.

Whittens Will Visit In New Hampshire And in Nova Scotia

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Whitten are leaving next week by motor for Sugar Hill, N. H. They will spend a few days there visiting their daughter, Francine, who is in camp, and will then go to Nova Scotia for a visit. They will not return to their home on Thompson circle until early in September.

Mrs. Whitten has been spending most of the summer in Washington after her return from England, where she went to see the coronation. Before that she was in Nassau for several weeks with Mrs. Campbell Pritchett.

Charles Goddard To Wed Ohio Girl

Miss Anna L. Sibila of Cincinnati, Ohio, has selected August 8 as the date of her marriage to Charles H. Goddard of Washington. The ceremony will take place in the chapel of the National Soldiers' Home in Dayton.

Miss Sibila is the daughter of V. Raymond Sibila, Assistant Utility Officer of the National Soldiers' Home. Mr. Goddard is with the Procurement Division of the Public Buildings Branch of the Treasury Department in Washington.

Australian Guests Leave Washington

Burdens of Dictatorship Sadden the Onlooker, Mrs. Becker Says; Dedicated Tablet to Memory of Von Steuben in Germany.

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

A trip to the European countries makes us cherish the freedom of our own, says Mrs. William A. Becker, president-general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, who is on her first visit to headquarters here since her return from abroad two weeks ago.

There is a depression of spirit, due to the burdens of dictatorship, which leaves one sad, she says, although in Italy and Germany the people state with pride that "everybody is working."

"The world is searching for a utopia; for justice and security," said Mrs. Becker. "One country tries one method, another something different, and if the present means do not accomplish the end, others will be tried. I wish every American could see what is going on now in Europe and learn to appreciate his own country more."

Mrs. Becker went first to England to see the coronation, which was the chief objective of her trip. Later she was presented at the Court of St. James and on her visit to Rome was granted an audience with the Pope.

Her cousin, Lord Methuen, a member of Parliament and also an artist, made crayon sketches of the coronation as he viewed it from his seat in Westminster Abbey. He now is reproducing them on canvas in a painting which probably will be the only record of its kind of the event. Lord Methuen's family estate is Corshan Court, near Bath, with its old manor house, built in 900, which Mrs. Becker visited.

Visits European D. A. R. Chapters

There are D. A. R. chapters in London, Paris, Berlin and Rome. While Mrs. Becker was in Germany, the Berlin Chapter dedicated a bronze tablet at the postoffice in Magdeburg, site of the birthplace of Gen. Von Steuben, who trained troops under Washington. It was an occasion given wide recognition in the German press, and one in which not only city officials, but also representatives of the Nazi government participated. Mrs. Becker made one of the chief addresses, and U. S. Ambassador William E. Dodd also was a speaker. Miss Geist, sister of the American vice consul in Berlin and president of the German Federation of Women's Clubs, was among those present at the ceremonies, as were the American Consul General, Douglas Jenkins and Mrs. Jenkins.

There are two chapters in Paris, both of which have been active in historical research as to the part of French heroes in the Revolution. It was through the work of these chapters in co-operation with those in this country that the tablet in memory of French and American heroes of Yorktown was dedicated a few years ago.

The London Chapter is engaged in welfare work, helping to support a hospital for crippled children there and teaching the children toy-making. The one in Rome is chiefly a center of social activity for its members.

Finds Italian Cities Changed

She was greatly impressed with the changes which have taken place in Italy during the last ten years under Mussolini's regime. The streets are clean. All of the school children wear smocks; none are in rags as before, and there has been marked progress the coming season.
in both hygiene and culture, she says.

The reclamation of the Pontine marshes, 200,000 acres, outside of Rome, which have been divided into 50-acre tracts for World War veterans, was one of the projects in which she was most interested.

A new hospital for tuberculosis patients was another government enterprise by which she was impressed. It is all operated by electricity. Even the doors and windows open by the pressure of a button. She spent three weeks in Italy, dividing her time chiefly between Rome and Naples.

Feminists Mark Triumphs With Dinner Tonight

Mrs. Wiley Will Preside at Celebration in Belmont House.

MRS. HARVEY W. WILEY, former national chairman of the National Woman's Party and now national secretary, will preside tonight at a dinner in the garden at the national headquarters, Alvah Belmont House, in celebration of several important victories for the equal rights amendment and of the repeal of Section 213 of the national economy act.

The program will include speakers from the Woman's Party and from various other national organizations campaigning for the equal rights amendment, now before Congress.

Mrs. Edwina Austin Avery, chairman of the government workers council, National Woman's Party, which led the campaign for repeal of Section 213, will tell something of this triumph. The government workers council is to hold a celebration one evening next week. Miss Dorothy Dunn, legislative chairman of the National Federation of Business and Professional Woman's Clubs, which has just joined the campaign for the equal rights amendment, will also speak. Miss Ella Werner, district legislative chairman for the Soroptimists, will represent her organization.

Dr. Rosalind Moore Bain will represent the American Association of Women Dentists, of which she is the immediate past president. Dr. Florence Eberhard will speak for the Osteopathic Women's National Association, and the National Association of Women Lawyers will be represented by Miss Laura Berrien, its vice president.

Woman's Party speakers will include Mrs. Burnita Shelton Matthews, of the national council, and Miss Anita Pollitzer, vice chairman and congressional secretary, who spoke at the Business and Professional Women's biennial convention, and Helen Hunt West, editor of Equal Rights and acting chairman of the congressional committee, all of whom have just returned from Atlantic City.

The tables will be arranged in the beautiful garden of the historic old mansion, which for more than a century has been known as the Lord Baltimore House.

The Wallace Chiswells Return from Europe

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Chiswell returned Sunday night to their apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel from an extended stay in Europe, where in England, they attended the coronation ceremonies in May.

They have with them now as their gust, Judge Donald E. Long, of Portland, Oreg.

"Madame Chairman" . . .

By Suzanne.

MRS. WARREN WHEATON, better known as Anne Wheaton to the newspaper world, will be guest of honor at a luncheon at the Willard Tuesday, which is being given by members of the Women's Press Club. The occasion is a farewell party as she is soon leaving for Philadelphia to reside.

For years, she has been an active member of the Press Club and has done her bit at the annual "stunt party" for one or two seasons taking charge of the banquet arrangements as chairman of the House Committee. She is director of publicity for the National League of Women Voters, and although she has resigned because of leaving Washington, her resignation has not yet been accepted.

• • • •

Speaking of members of the Press Club, Mrs. Buckley Griffin —otherwise known as Isabelle Kinnear Griffin—with her husband, is driving up to Camp Farwell, Vt., this week-end, where their daughter, Charmian, has spent several weeks. On their return, accompanied by Charmian, they will go to Bethany Beach. Mrs. Griffin is chairman of the house committee of the club for the coming year.

• • • •

Lillian Athey, editor of National Nature News, spoke Monday night at the dinner of the Association of Bank Women at the Highlands. Winifred Burwell, who is president of the group, holds down a second presidency as head of the Washington Zontians.

• • • •

The recent Zontagram, of which Miss Athey is associate editor, contained a letter from Mary Lindsley, a former member, who was manager of the Dodge Hotel until 18 months ago when she went to Williamsburg to take charge of the Inn. With Zontagram's permission, here it is for all her friends to enjoy:

• • • •

It has been a great joy to see a number of Zontians down here in Williamsburg this spring. Mabel Strider—and Jane and May and Esther and Nannie Meem—I have enjoyed all your visits! We had breakfast out on the terrace—and in that peaceful surrounding could talk things over to our heart's content.

My home in Williamsburg has been quite fascinating to me. Just now I call the place "Hollyhock Lane"—for I am surrounded by them. They lean over the fences and gather in the corners—and make a brave and colorful showing which I just love. The house itself is the kitchen to Market Square Tavern. There is a living room with a wonderful fireplace—and upstairs a bedroom and bath. It has been cozy and peaceful and delightful.

I wish you might all see our new inn. It has been great fun getting it ready to open—and then keeping the wheels turning 'round. If it gets too hot in Washington, come down here. With our air conditioning we are most comfortable.

Now I am planning to turn to "new pastures." The work in Williamsburg has been hard—long hours—and the demands just as difficult the twenty-fourth hour of the day as the first hour. So the doctors have decreed that I must have a long rest, and I shall be leaving this interesting and fascinating work before long.

Best wishes to you all. I do hope the rest I am going to have will mean leisure to see more of my Washington friends in the coming months.

Mrs. McFadden To Be Candidate

Seeks Presidency of Md.Democratic Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Frances McFadden, of Mount Rainier, formally announced her candidacy yesterday for presidency of the United Democratic Women's Clubs of Maryland and was unanimously indorsed by the executive board of the Southern Maryland branch of the organization at a luncheon meeting at Upper Marlboro.

Prominent in women's democratic circles in Prince Georges County, Mrs. McFadden is president of the Southern Maryland group and of the Chillum District Club.

Plans were made for the annual convention of the Southern Maryland Clubs to be held next October in Charles County.

Delegates at the meeting were Mrs. Guy Bell, Bowie; Mrs. Walter Grimes and Miss Bessie Phelps, Oxon Hill; Mrs. John S. White, Blandensburg; Mrs. Marguerite Miller, Brentwood; Mrs. Irene Conners, Capitol Heights; Mrs. Lillian Kutsch, Lanham; Mrs. Charles Early, Brandywine; Mrs. Robert S. Meade, North Beach; Mrs. Maude S. Gardiner, Chaptico; Mrs. Harris Matthews, La Plata; Mrs. Thomas P. McDonogh, La Plata, and Mrs. Viola S. Lyons, Sunderland.

Arts Club Members See Shakespearean Comedy

THE ARTS CLUB garden last night was the scene of "the most lamentable comedy and most cruel death of Pyramus and Thisbe" as an audience of club members and their friends, witnessed the presentation by The Washington Players, as "preview" for their Sylvan Theater performance in August. Shakespeare's story of the clowns' enactment of a play within a play, was augmented with a series of charming fairy scenes, also chosen from "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

Earlier in the evening a dinner with Dr. Robert E. Motley and Mrs. Gerald Flood of the drama committee, as hosts, and with Mrs. Maud Howell Smith as chairman, was given in honor of the director of The Washington Players, Miss Bess Davis Schreiner, and Mr. J. Edmond Veitch, who played the role of Bottom, the Weaver—otherwise the heroic Pyramus. Many attended the dinner and others came in for the play later. Among them were Lewis Lofton Moneyway, president of the Arts Club, who had a party of guests; Mr. and Mrs. Gerrit Miller, jr., and a party; Mr. Warren Ferris and party, Mr. Warren E. Emley and party, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Summy, Miss Clara Saunders and Miss Marie Saunders.

Players From Baltimore There

Among the prominent guests of the evening also were Miss Angela Keir, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Kline, jr., Miss Barbara McBriarty and members of the Vagabond Players from Baltimore.

The fairy prologue, with dances by the Misses Alice Louise Hunter, Marjorie McGann and Carol and Catherine Shea, introduced the fairy king and queen, Oberon, played by John Van Sikken, and Titania, played by Miss Frances Dewey. Incidental music followed the episodes, played by Dr. Raymond Liebsohn, first violinist of the Washington Civic Orchestra, and Mrs. Edith H. Hunter at the piano. Miss Christine Irish sang the lovely finale, "Through the House," taken from Mendelssohn's Midsummer Night's Dream score.

The clowns, in addition to Mr. Veitch, who easily dominated the cast, were Kent Dyer, as Quince, the carpenter; Harry Crow, as Smug, a joiner; Herman Riess, as Flute, a bellows mender; Joseph Custer, as Snout, a tinker, and Paul W. Murphy, as Starveling, a tailor.

Miss Margaret Leidig, a member of the Washington Players as well as of the Arts Club dramatic committee, attended to such vital matters as stage properties, and the lighting, a most important function,—even with the real moon shedding its radiance on the idyllic scene

Ugly Does Her Part as Usual

And mention should be made of another member of the cast, who, though for the most part inarticulate, has played her role in every performance of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" at the Washington Monument, and who played last night. Ugly, an Irish terrier, owned by Miss Katherine Tierney, had the part in August, 1934, when the Washington Players first produced the fairy play, and has played in every presentation since that time.

Incidentally, there are three members of the "Midsummer Night's Dream" cast who have played their original roles for four years also. They are Miss Adele Whiteside, who plays Helen (she did not appear in the play last night, as the lovers' scenes were omitted); Mr. Dyer and Mr. Veitch. Other members of the present cast have played in all of the three previous annual Sylvan Theater productions, but their roles have been changed.

Y.W.C.A. Stages One-Act Play

"THIRTY MINUTES TO GO," the one-act play by Theodore Tiller, jr., which won first place in the District of Columbia contest in 1935, was presented last night as the closing event of the Girl Reserve Camp Stay-at-Home program at the Y. W. C. A. The performance was given in Barker Hall with parents and friends of the young players as well as members of the Y. W. C. A. board, staff and committees in the audience.

The players had been trained by Eugene Kressin, comedian of Roadside fame, who was assisted by Miss Mabel Cook, executive of the Girl Reserve department.

After the performance a dance was held on the roof garden of the Y. W. C. A. and attended by the girls and boys of high school age.

Moose Group Votes to Issue News Bulletin

Columbia Women Plan to Publish Booklet Every Month.

ISSUANCE of a monthly news bulletin for Columbia Chapter, Women of the Moose, was proposed last night at Moose Hall by Mrs. Wade H. Mitchell, publicity chairman, at the first meeting of the committee, for the current chapter year, and was unanimously approved.

The bulletin, under her plan, will contain a complete program of chapter activities for the coming month, detailed information as to meetings and plans of the various committees, a message from the senior regent and from the national officers of the order, as well as other special items of interest. It will be mailed to the members monthly.

The committee includes, in addition to its chairman, Past Regent Mrs. George B. Clark, assistant chairman; Miss Margaret Mitchell, secretary; Mrs. Hall Rada, treasurer, and Mrs. H. J. Clark, who was appointed as assistant bulletin editor.

The bulletin will be mimeographed by the committee on a machine owned jointly by the lodge and chapter. The draft for the August issue, which had been prepared, was approved by Senior Regent Mrs. Robert Baldwin, who attended the publicity committee meeting.

The committee voted to obtain funds for its use through the sale of home-made candy after meetings of the chapter and committees, and also to study the Women of the Moose Digest, national publication of the organization, at each monthly session.

From Virgin Islands.

Montague's Modesty Cost Cox $500

By Shirley Povich.

Wilfred H. Cox—Wiffy Cox—who has cured more slices than Swift & Co., was sitting in his Kenwood Club golf shop yesterday and saying sure, he knew this fellow John Montague, alias La Verne Moore, who had Hollywood big shots giddy about his bold bets and feats on the golf course.

POVICH.

"That guy's modesty cost me 500 bucks," said Wiffy.

How?

"Well, I was out there on the coast back in the winter of 1934-35 and everybody was talking about Mysterious Montague, and what a whale of a golfer he was. He was playing around with Bing Crosby and that big fellow Hardy of the Laurel and Hardy comedy team, and they were nuts about him.

"They began to claim that he could beat any of us pros on the winter circuit and said they'd put up a $3,000 side bet on him against any pro we'd pick to play this Montague in a 36-hole match. They were serious, too.

"But this Montague couldn't fool us. This pro golf is a hard business and no guy who isn't known can break in on a gang like ours over night and beat a good pro golfer. We saw him play. To us he looked like just another fair country club golfer. He wasn't any pro, and we figured he would be a chinch for the guy we selected to play him.

"I put up 500 bucks of the bet myself. Horton Smith put up $500 and inside of a half hour, we pros had that $3,000 covered. We'd pick the man to play Montague and glad to do it.

"And then he started crawling. Said he ought to have a three-stroke handicap. That was all right with us, and we said we'd give it to him. Then he pulled out of it altogether. Said he didn't like all the publicity. It's easy now to see why. With that stick-up job in New York hanging over his head, he didn't want any pictures in the paper. So we had to call the whole thing off."

Incidentally, Whiffy, who did the pros pick to play Montague?

"Well, you see, I had just won the $10,000 Agua Caliente Open out there and was pretty hot stuff. Fact is, I'm the guy they picked to play Montague before he ran out on us."

At that, though, Montague could sock that golf ball, Cox said. He could wham it down the middle for 300 yards most any time he teed off, Wiffy said. He guessed that's what captured the imagination of Crosby and Hardy and the rest of the film folk who adopted Montague and are now standing by him during extradition proceedings.

"But no wonder he could whale that ball," Wiffy was saying. "Did you ever see the wooden clubs he used. Here, look at one of these drivers in the shop. I'll measure the face of it for you. An inch and five eighths deep. Well, that Montague's wooden clubs were monsters. Three inches deep across the face, weighed 18 ounces; this one only weighs 13, and that guy had an extra gob of lead in the head.

"He was a fair putter, too—a good putter, in fact, but he was kind of screwy with his irons. I'll never believe he shot those 66's and 67's they say he had. I saw him play Gene Sarazen and Gene beat him by five strokes with a 71. That's what he looked like to me—a 76 golfer.

"And that business of knocking birds off telephone wires with a brassie—of course that's pure bunk. Those fellows who write stuff like that ought to be ashamed of themselves. I hear Montague killed a bird once by luck and the story came out that he was aiming at it. That's how those things usually get started."

They'll never extradite Montague to New York on charges of sticking up a cafe in company with two other men back in 1930, Cox believes. Too many of his Hollywood friends have gone to bat for him with the Governor of California and out there the film folks have a way of getting what they want.

"I don't blame 'em, though, for liking that Montague. Just as nice a personality as you'd want to meet. Smiles all the time and is genial and can talk on any subject and he isn't loud-mouthed. Where he got his dough is a mystery, but that's none of our business. It's easy to like him and he's got some real friends out there."

Wiffy said he wished he had the same publicity Montague has been getting for the past couple of years. "I'd clean up a hundred grand on an exhibition tour in six months, and if Montague doesn't go on the road after he gets out of his trouble, he's a chump. He couldn't miss making a fortune."

Bill Strange Advances In Junior Net Tourney

Delafield, Wis., July 29 (AP).—Billy Strange, of Neenah, Wis., advanced to the semifinal round of the boys' division today in the Western Junior and Boys' Tennis tournament by defeating Ray Bartlett, of New Orleans, La., 6—0, 6—1, in a quarterfinal match.

In the boys' doubles, Strange and Bobby Jake, of Milwaukee, won a second-round victory over Leonard King and Jack Bremmerman, of New Orleans, 6—2, 6—3.

Yanks Down Tigers, 7-6; Win Series

Dickey's Homer in 9th With 2 Out Decides; DiMaggio Gets One.

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 29.—The Yankees did it with home runs today and whipped the Detroit Tigers 7 to 6 to take the odd game of their recent series.

Afflicted once again with faltering pitching, murderers' row produced on its specialty, particularly the four-base wallop Bill Dickey parked in the Tiger bullpen with two out in the ninth inning to break a tie and win the ball game.

Featuring the Tigers' attack was a homer by Rookie Chet Laabs with a mate on base in the second inning.

Warneke Nears Title As Home Run Hurler

St. Louis, July 29 (AP).—"Home Run" Warneke! That's the title the St. Louis Cardinal pitcher may have by the end of the 1937 season unless he rids himself of his "home run" ball.

So far this year 24 four-baggers have been made off Lon's deliveries. The "big day" was July 10, when Les Scarsella, Bill Myers, Chick Hafey and Ival Goodman, of Cincinnati, pounded him for circuit blows.

Sopwith Boat Beats Ranger In Trial Race

Endeavour I Also Wins Over Yankee and the Rainbow.

By the Associated Press.

Newport, R. I., July 29.—Endeavour I, which three years ago failed to lift the America's Cup, today defeated Ranger, the sloop with which Harold S. Vanderbilt will meet Endeavour II, T. O. M. Sopwith's second challenger.

Ranger, in suffering her first defeat, also trailed Gerard B. Lambert's Yankee, which finished second two minutes behind Endeavour.

The Vanderbilt boat trailed Sopwith's first challenger by about three minutes. Chandler Hovey's Rainbow was a poor fourth, ten minutes behind the victor.

It was not expected tonight Vanderbilt would race Ranger tomorrow, on the eve of her meeting with the British invader. This would leave Yankee and Rainbow as the old challanger's opponents.

Almost four hours were required for the yachts to negotiate the first 3 miles of today's course, which took them up Vineyard Sound, then across Block Island Sound. At the 3-mile point they were compelled to anchor until the breeze sprang up. Endeavor I and Yankee felt it first and took a lead which they held until the finish gun.

The summary:

By the Associated Press.

Sea Bright, N. J., July 29.—Wilmer Allison, a tenacious Texan who wouldn't be beaten, and Bobby Riggs, of Los Angeles, gained the finals of the fiftieth annual Sea Bright invitation tennis tournament today in a pair of thrilling five-set struggles.

Allison, whose current comeback campaign has resulted in triumphs at Spring Lake and Longwood, defeated Frank X. Shields, former Davis Cup star, 1—6, 6—4, 3—6, 6—1, 7—5.

Riggs disposed of Jiro Yamagishi, of Japan, the last foreign threat in the grass court classic, 6—4, 3—6, 6—1, 2—6, 6—3.

In the women's singles, Blonde Alice Marble, of San Francisco, and Stocky Jadwiga Jedrzejowska, Polish net queen, set the stage for their fourth meeting through straight-set triumphs in the semi-finals.

Miss Marble, national champion and winner here last year, was extended in the first set by Mrs. Marjorie Van Ryn, of Austin, Tex., but prevailed 9—7, 6—1.

The 33-year-old Allison, beset by injuries which caused him to default his scheduled semifinals match in the men's doubles, drew on his wealth of tournament experience to blast the hopes of Shields in their marathon duel.

In the fifth and deciding set, the former national champion rallied after Shields had taken a 4-2 lead in games, ran through the next three to gain the advantage and was within two points of victory on six occasions in the decisive twelfth game before he finally broke through the Californian's vaunted service to win.

Riggs out-maneuvered Yamagishi to earn a berth in the final. He set the pace throughout the match, slowing down the play when the acrobatic Japanese champion tried to crowd him at the net.

Miss Bundy took a 4-1 lead over Miss Jedrzejowska before the husky foreign girl rallied to run out the set in six straight games.

Miss Marble was down 3-5 to Mrs. Van Ryn in the first set, but pulled out in the sixteenth game to win it.

After today's matches, Allison revealed he strained a ligament in his already aching back when he tumbled into the net in his last game against Shields.

John McDiarmid, of Chicago, and Arthur Hendrix, of Lakeland, Fla., reached the final round of the men's doubles by defeating Robert Harman, of Berkeley, Calif., and Gil Hunt, of Washington, D. C., 6—2, 10—8, 3—6, 6—4.

They will meet Elwood Cooke, of Portland, Oreg., and Martin Buxby, of Miami, Fla., Cooke and Buxby gained the final when Allison defaulted today.

Ritzenbergs Win in Public Parks Tennis

Win Over Goldsmith and Bradley; Finals on Tap Tomorrow.

By Bob Garrison.

The possibility of an All-Ritzenberg representation of the District in the National Public Parks tournament in Pittsburgh, August 16, moved one step nearer reality yesterday when Allie and his elder brother, Hy, moved into the semi-final round of the local Public Parks Doubles championship tourney in progress at the Rock Creek courts.

Allie, still in the junior ranks, who reached the semifinal round of the singles play Tuesday, is a heavy favorite to defeat Joe Baker in their match this afternoon at 4 o'clock, and at least an even-money choice to defeat the winner of the other semifinal clash between Ray Stocklinski and Mel Tarpley in the finals Sunday.

Aided by his brother's unorthodox game, Allie will be facing a tougher proposition when he and his brother play the Ray Stocklinski-Harry March team in the doubles finals tomorrow afternoon, but the possibility remains.

In yesterday's matches, Allie and Hy, playing way off their usual game, managed to down Harry Goldsmith and Bob Bradley in a loosely played three-set match, 3—6, 10—8, 7-5, while the No. 4 seeded team of Mel Tarpley, former Miami University player, and Maurice Goubeau, former Maryland net captain, was being eliminated by Harry March and Ray Stocklinski in another marathon affair, 6—1, 8—10, 8—6.

After taking the first set from the Ritzenberg brothers before either could get hold of his game, Bradley, former Harvard University ace, and Goldsmith appeared to tighten, losing points at every crucial period. They led, 5—3, in games in the second set, but were caught at 5 games all, eventually dropping the set, 10—8, and the last, 7—5.

Hy, usually a marvelous retriever and vollyer, was a total loss to the team in the first set and Allie's overhead game was not much more help as he batted several lob shots to his feet. But, after grabbing the second set after a hard fight, they began to click with sufficient accuracy to defeat their opponents, who, through poor co-ordination, began to crack. Bradley, anxious for victory, voiced loud protests when points were scored against his partner.

March and Stocklinski were no more on their game than the Ritzenberg boys. Although they swept through the first set, 6—1, they experienced great difficulty thereafter in escaping defeat. They dropped the second set after holding a 4-2 lead. March's service was broken twice as Tarpley's excellent vollying and overhead play put them to rout in the eighteenth game when Stocklinski's service was broken.

In the third set games were even until Tarpley, after leading 30-love, had his service broken in the thirteenth game, to give March-Stocklinski a 7-6 lead. March quickly finished the set before darkness, by serving a love game in the deep dusk to end the match with an 8-6 set victory.

Bees Score 2-1 Victory Over Reds

Take Series Final as Turner Stars With Four-Hit Effort.

Wes Ferrell Loses Duel to Southpaw

Nats, Held to Five Blows, Are Hitless After Fourth Inning; Doubles by Appling and Peit Win Game in the Fifth.

By Shirley Povich.

The end came peacefully. Lee held the Nats in a batting stupor all afternoon, parceled out only five hits to 'em, and beat 'em 2 to 0. On the impetus of that performance, Lee's White Sox teammates clambered back into second place in the league standings.

Down to defeat with them, the puerile Nats dragged Wesley Cheek Ferrell who was giving young Lee a valiant battle out there on the pitching mound. Ferrell held the Sox to eight hits and shut 'em out for eight of the nine innings, but the two runs they scored in the fifth were two more than the Nats could get for Ferrell.

Took Lead in Fifth.

Given that 2-0 lead in the fifth inning, this fellow Lee who beat the Nats three times last year and who already has three 1937 triumphs over the Yankees to his credit, made those two runs stand up beautifully.

Johnny Stone led off the fourth inning with a single for the Nats and that was the last hit that the Chicago left-hander allowed. The only two men who reached base against him after that point were Wes Ferrell and Joe Kuhel who mooched a pair of passes in the fifth and sixth.

The Nats rang a couple of false alarms in the early innings when they threatened to score some runs for Ferrell. Joe Kuhel and Buddy Myer singled with two out in the second but Rick Ferrell left 'em on base. And after Buddy Lewis and Cecil Travis put a pair of singles together in the third with two out, Lee escaped damage by grace of Kreevich's catch of Simmons' line drive.

The only other chance the Nats had to avoid a shoutout was in the fourth when Stone's single to center began the inning, but with Stone on third, Second Baseman Jackie Hayes made a scintillating stop of Rick Ferrell's smash and nothing came of the inning.

Ferrell Stingy With Hits.

Ferrell had permitted only two hits when the fifth rolled around and brought the Sox their winning margin. Lucius Appling walloped a two-bagger into leftfield and with one out Tony Piet thumped a double to center to score him. The Sox crowded a third hit and a second run into the inning when Lee, himself, personally, slammed a single to center.

But there wasn't much alarm among the 5,000 Griffith Stadium customers at that point, because the Nats had averaged 17 hits in their last six games and apparently were due to start making some runs. They ended up overdue, because they didn't get any runs at all despite the fact that Ferrell was keeping them in the ball game right up to the finish.

It was pretty sad.

Frankhouse Holds Leaders; Stripp Leads Victors' Attack.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 29.—The Brooklyn Dodgers pounded the league-leading Cubs with a 13-hit attack today and won their only game of the series 10 to 2 behind the effective pitching of Fred Frankhouse.

Frankhouse held the Cubs to one run through the first eight innings, and then allowed the Cubs' only other score in the ninth on his own error.

Curt Davis, Clyde Shoun and Roy Parmelee went to the mound in order for the Cubs, but neither was effective.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BROGUE, $19.80, $6.40, $4.20; VESPASIANO, $3.50, $3.20; TINDER BOX, $3.80.

BROGUE worked his way into contention steadily, saved ground coming into the stretch, came to the outside of the leader and was up in the concluding stride to wear down VESPASIANO. The latter, quickest to begin, was steadied along in pursuit of the pace after being outrun, moved up steadily when called upon, showed in front a stride or so before reaching the finish and just failed to last. TINDER BOX displayed good speed from the start, only to weaken in the last furlongs.

SECOND RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 2:54. Off 2:55. Winner, H. Bieber's br. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLY ME, $9.00, $5.80, $3.60; HALLIES PLAY, $9.80, $6.20; LIMIT, $3.60.

FLY ME was unable to keep pace early, obtained clear sailing on the inside when bettering his position, responded gamely to pressure and was along in the closing few strides. HALLIES PLAY, prominent all the way, came again at the end to outlast LIMIT for place. LIMIT moved up on the inside, went to the front when reaching the stretch, but was unable to stave off the closing bids of the first two.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:24. Off 3:29. Winner, E. T. Burke and H. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BRISTLE, $13.40, $5.40, $3.40; HAPPY HELEN, $6.00, $3.60; PRINCE DANNY, $2.80.

BRISTLE moved up steadily on the inside after rounding the far turn, wore down ALL FORLORN for the command in the stretch and hard ridden, lasted to hold the fast-closing HAPPY HELEN. The latter was slow to settle into her best stride, but came with a rush through the stretch and was traveling the fastest of all at the close. PRINCE DANNY had speed from the start, was much used in chasing the pace and weakened in the drive outlasting ALL FORLORN for third.

FOURTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 4:01. Off 4:03½. Winner, F. R. McDuff's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TRAGEDIAN, $15.60, $6.20, $4.00; EASIEST WAY, $5.60, $3.40; TELLING YOU, $3.80.

TRAGEDIAN went to the front straightening out on the backstretch, was rated along under slight restraint and drawing clear, held sway to the end. EASIEST WAY went into contention on the inside nearing the far turn, moved up gamely, was brought to the outside after passing the furlong pole and closed with good energy. TELLING YOU, outrun early, closed a good gap and finished with good energy.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,100; claiming. The Rho Pi Phi. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 4:33. Off 4:35½. Winner, J. P. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CAMPILLO, $7.40, $4.60, $3.00; MANSCO, $7.80, $4.40; LADFIELD, $3.40.

CAMPILLO was steadied along within striking distance of the early pace until leaving the backstretch, went to the front before reaching the stretch and hard ridden through the closing furlong was never seriously threatened. MANSCO, unable to keep up during the early running, came fast through the stretch, getting up in the last strides to wear down LADFIELD for the place. The latter came with good courage in the last quarter mile.

SIXTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good from Bahr gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 5:06. Off 5:07½. Winner, Mrs. E. I. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HOUSEKEEPER, $8.60, $3.20, $2.80; FRANCINE C., $2.80, $2.40; STANDARD TIME, $3.00.

HOUSEKEEPER went into contention with a rush after going the opening furlong, was steadied along back of FRANCINE C. until reaching the stretch, went to the front when called upon and drew clear in the last sixteenth. FRANCINE went into the start, disposed of BLUE GROTTO and although holding on willingly, was unable to withstand the bid of the winner. STANDARD TIME, unable to keep up early, moved up gamely when called upon, but was unable to reach the first two.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 5:39. Off 5:40. Winner, C. W. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HOURSEND, $7.20, $3.80, $3.00; JAMES RIVER, $9.60, $7.60; SAINTED, $13.60.

HOURSEND, well up all the way and under slight restraint for the first six furlongs, wore down SAINTED for the lead when reaching the stretch and drew clear. JAMES RIVER, reserved early, moved up steadily in the last three furlongs and came with good energy in the stretch run. SAINTED had speed from the start and made a game bid to go along with leaders when challenged, but was not good enough.

EIGHTH RACE—One and three-sixteenths miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 6:13. Off 6:13½. Winner, W. Two-dollar mutuels paid—XANDRA, $5.80, $3.40, $2.80; PASS SHOT, $3.40, $3.00; HIGH DIVER, $4.20.

XANDRA was under steadying restraint while following the pace, worked her way up steadily in the last half mile, came to the outside when reaching the stretch and wore down PASS SHOT to draw out readily in the last furlong. PASS SHOT moved up steadily on the outside in the run down the backstretch, disposed of HIGH DIVER for the lead, but was unable to withstand the closing challenge of the winner. HIGH DIVER outran his field to the first turn, was rated along in front, weakening in the last three-sixteenths.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BROGUE, $19.80, $6.40, $4.20; VESPASIANO, $3.50, $3.20; TINDER BOX, $3.80.

BROGUE worked his way into contention steadily, saved ground coming into the stretch, came to the outside of the leader and was up in the concluding stride to wear down VESPASIANO. The latter, quickest to begin, was steadied along in pursuit of the pace after being outrun, moved up steadily when called upon, showed in front a stride or so before reaching the finish and just failed to last. TINDER BOX displayed good speed from the start, only to weaken in the last furlongs.

SECOND RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 2:54. Off 2:55. Winner, H. Bieber's br. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLY ME, $9.00, $5.80, $3.60; HALLIES PLAY, $9.80, $6.20; LIMIT, $3.60.

FLY ME was unable to keep pace early, obtained clear sailing on the inside when bettering his position, responded gamely to pressure and was along in the closing few strides. HALLIES PLAY, prominent all the way, came again at the end to outlast LIMIT for place. LIMIT moved up on the inside, went to the front when reaching the stretch, but was unable to stave off the closing bids of the first two.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:24. Off 3:29. Winner, E. T. Burke and H. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BRISTLE, $13.40, $5.40, $3.40; HAPPY HELEN, $6.00, $3.60; PRINCE DANNY, $2.80.

BRISTLE moved up steadily on the inside after rounding the far turn, wore down ALL FORLORN for the command in the stretch and hard ridden, lasted to hold the fast-closing HAPPY HELEN. The latter was slow to settle into her best stride, but came with a rush through the stretch and was traveling the fastest of all at the close. PRINCE DANNY had speed from the start, was much used in chasing the pace and weakened in the drive outlasting ALL FORLORN for third.

FOURTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 4:01. Off 4:03½. Winner, F. R. McDuff's b. g. 3d Cavalry Wins In Tourney, 12-4

Baltimore, July 29.—Outplaying the War Department after the first two periods, the Third Cavalry of Fort Myer, Va., rode to a surprisingly easy victory in the semifinal of the Southeastern Intra-Circuit polo tournament of Stevenson today, winning by a score of 12 to 4.

The losing team held its own in the first and second chukkers, but third Cavalry hit its stride in the third and continued through the remaining periods to pile up a one-sided score. War Department actually scored only three goals, the other point being awarded them through the handicap system.

The victorious four played the best polo of the tournament. Their passing was smoother and general team work superior to that of their rivals. Capt. Hines, No. 2 for the Cavalrymen led in the scoring with four goals and each member of his team made at least two.

Foxx's Homer Gives Boston 5-to-3 Victory

By the Associated Press

Boston, July 29.—Jimmy Foxx's third homer in three days and his twenty-sixth of the season gave the Boston Red Sox their winning margin against the St. Louis Browns today, 5 to 3, and enabled the hose to take the series, two games to one.

Foxx's blow came in the seventh inning with one mate aboard with Bill Trotter pitching and sent the Sox ahead, 5 to 0.

Dusek Defeats Hader in Mat Bout at Arena

Ernie Dusek, of the ducky Omaha Dusseks, pinned Hater Jack Hader, arch-villain after 32 minutes of the super-colossal, spine-tingling, slambang final of a hectic wrestling program last night at Griffith Stadium.

Fram the opening of the bout when Hader responded to Dusek's proffered hand shake with a Max Schmeling right until the finish, when Rudy finished the gentle grimacer with a combination kangaroo kick and a submerged airplane spin the action was increasingly hot and furious.

In other bouts Ed Meske and George Handlebar Mustache) Kondylis) worked to a 39-minute draw, Abe Coleman, mighty mite, slapped down Ralph Garabaldi in 14½ minutes with a body press.

National Savings Beats Milwaukee Beer, 3-1

Allowing only four hits, Connie Royer, of National Savings Bank, won a pitching duel from Reggie Brown, of Old Milwaukee Beer, 3-1, in an Industrial League clash yesterday on the East Ellipse. The hitting of Leftfielder Cabell accounted for two of the Bankers' runs.

Post Notes on Fishin' . . . . By Bill Ackerman

Bluefish have arrived at Piney Point and are being caught at the rate of 20 to 30 per boat, according to Capt. L. M. Spriggs. The fish, weighing three to four pounds, were taken both trolling and chumming. Those planning an expedition to the Point are warned, however, that neither chum nor soft-shell crabs are available for bait.

The Potomac is clearing in fine shape and with no storms in the Monocacy or Goose Creek sections should let anglers get go'in' good by Saturday.

ACKERMAN

Changeability has always been the prerogative of the ladies, but for the past ten days "Ole Man Ribber" has claimed it, too. Tuesday Post notes made the statement that the water was still roily (this from a partial report from around Washington), only to be brought up short by Laddie Clark proving that some sections had been clear all the preceding week. He fished at Seneca Dam on Sunday with two companions and caught four and a catfish. Ever since Sunday, any kind of prediction has been impossible, getting muddy one day and clearing the next, until Thursday, when, because of the kindness of Bill Leech, it looks as though our opening statement might hold some fact.

Do you know Bill Leech? If not, you should. He's a regular fellow, a good sportsman and a real fisherman. Knows his river and in addition has the means of keeping in close touch with the headwater country. He is adding his help to the many others, who do a great part in keeping this column informed as to conditions on waters seldom visited.

That might sound odd to some, because many who call or write for news have the idea that it is obtained first hand. An impossibility, when you give it a little thought; in reality, a collection agency that has taken several years in the building, and which often prohibits us getting all we want of the sport that for so many, many moons has been placed above all others.

A note from Frank Bell, commissioner, Bureau of Fisheries, calls attention to the recent changes in some of Florida's angling laws.

The first is the new State-wide closed season on black bass that extends from March 15 to May 20, givng this fine game fish over two months to spawn undisturbed. There is no doubt that it will result in a material increase and an abundance of sport for the angler.

The tarpon law, which included the sailfish, was also passed. It provides that an angler may catch any number of tarpon in Florida waters, but all but two must be returned uninjured. It is unlawful to sell, offer for sale, purchase or exchange tarpons, or to transport the fish into or out of the State, with the exception of the angler's possession limit of two, carried only as baggage.

"Fish From Hell," an unusual, highly spectacular short on fishing is to be shown all next week at the Rialto. For those who have never seen what the big fellows are made of—see it by all means.

A huge shark, a several-ton manta or devil fish, the capture of an 800-pound tuna and the battle between a 15-foot swordfish and a great whale, is just part of this new reel, taken on the Mexican coast and termed by all who have fished it as an angler's paradise.

For the week-end, Piney Point is producing only fair catches of rock by trolling, but the hardheads are plentiful and large, as are the spot. Capt. Somervell, at Irvington, Va., is having good luck with the weaks and hardheads, and all the boats in this section are catching some blues. Capt. R. B. Shelton, out of Reedsville, is getting them every day on the Middles by chumming. His highest catch has been 26, up to 10 pounds in weight. And right here let yourself be reminded, these captains know their stuff, and the Middles isn't the only place they are picking them up. In fact, there are several places between the dock and the buoys that are probably accounting for the most of the fish. If you want to contact him, call Reedsville 55111.

The Gooses is producing catches far beyond the ordinary. The catch of Al Martin, Al Nolan, John Wayne and John Nolan this past week, well worth noting because of the size. Twenty-nine weaks and 159 hardheads that weighed 657 pounds, for nearly a 4-pound average.

Solomons is good, but busy. If you want a boat on Saturday or Sunday, it must be reserved ahead. Have you ever tried going in the middle of the week? For some reason or other the catches are always better. Particularly with the rock, for these fish are easily driven down and with too much activity around, won't come up again.

Macks' Errors Give Indians 5-to-4 Victory

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, July 29.—Slipshod fielding in the ninth inning cost the Athletics a third straight victory over Cleveland this afternoon. Two infield errors by Parker and Finney gave the Indians two runs and a 5-4 triumph.

Homers Give Phils 11-7 Win Over Pirates

Camilli and Grace Connect for Circuit Clouts; Mulcahy Pounded.

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, July 29.—Dolph Camilli and Earl Grace contributed a pair of home runs today that overcame a Pirate lead and gave the Phillies an 11-7 victory in the final game of a series of three. The Pirates won the first two.

The Phills' first sacker drove out his circuit clout in the fifth with the bases loaded and Grace got his in the eighth with one on base.

Hugh Mulcahy started for the Phils but was driven from the mound in the second, when the Pirates scored all their runs. Bill Brubaker started the rally with a home run and 11 Pirates faced Mulcahy and Orville Jorgens, who relieved him, before the side was retired. Jorgens and Johnson finished for the Phils.

Sandlot Pick-ups

By Jack Munhall.

The recently completed Boy Scout Jamboree was successful and a very fine manifestation, but its after-effects are causing sandlot baseball officials no end of worry . . . The Boy Scouts were granted, among other space for their tents, maneuvers, etc., 12 baseball diamonds and 5 softball fields and the understanding at the time was . . . that the diamonds and fields were to be reconditioned on or before August 1, to remove deep ruts caused by Army trucks, obliterated baseline markings erased by marching feet and continuous rains et al . . . Well, the Jamboree was over July 9 and as this is written the tents still stand . . . in mute mockery to countless youngsters eager to play, and to league officials attempting to draw up schedules . . . Why? . . . because of a lot of red tape . . . which will not permit said tents to be removed until a thorough check has been made by a now-almost-a-month-tardy Army inspector . . . Meanwhile sandlot baseball is at a virtual standstill in its busiest month and observers are of the opinion that these diamonds will not be available again this year unless immediate action is taken.

Time marches back . . . Nomination for one of the best junior teams ever developed in the vicinity is made for the Vic's All-Stars of 1926 . . . who were managed by that noted developer of young baseballers . . . Vic Guazza, sr. . . . Remember DICKIE FITZGERALD, OTTS ZAHN, FRED BREW, DANNY KESSLER in the infield . . . BILL MOORE, VIC GAUZZA, JR., and JODY BARRY in the outfield . . . DICK LANAHAN as its ace pitcher . . . and WHITEY PFEIFFER, HAWK-EYE CORNELL and JOHNNY RISLER as catchers . . .

Others who played were . . . JOHNNY EVANS, TONY PENALLA and PAUL FITZGERALD . . . All rose to be outstanding players . . . some have gone as far as the minors . . . and some are still to be seen on local teams . . .

Bethlehem Steel Quarter Best in 7 Years

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 29.—Directors of Bethlehem Steel Corporation today declared a dividend of $1.50 per share on the common stock and reported largest quarterly net income since 1930. The last quarterly payment, made in June, was $1. The regular payment of $1.75 a share on the 7 percent preferred stock and 25 cents on the 5 per cent preferred stock also was declared.

Net income for the second quarter totaled $10,022,874 equal to $2.56 a share on the common, compared with $3,431,391 or 49 cents a share in the second quarter of 1936. Earnings the previous quarter totaled $8,293,833 or $2.01 a share.

Steel production averaged 92.9 per cent of capacity during the second quarter compared with 87.1 per cent during the previous quarter and 66.2 per cent in the second quarter last year.

In the first quarter of 1930 earnings were $10,077,486 or $2.60 a share on the common.

Republic Profits Slashed by Strike

Cleveland, July 29 (AP).—Republic Steel Corporation reported today net earnings of $487,251 for the second quarter, in which a strike closed some of its plants, compared with $5,567,064 for the first quarter, when no strike was in progress. The report included Republic's subsidiaries and was after deduction of all charges, including estimated Federal income tax and surtax on undistributed profits.

The Nation's third largest steel producer said its net profit for the first half of 1937 totaled $6,054,315 compared with $3,022,094 for the corresponding period last year. A company statement said:

"The substantial rate of operations and earnings of the corporation was interrupted by the steel strike, which affected principal plants of the corporation. The strike, which began in the latter part of May and continued actively into the first week in July, centered on the plants of Republic because of its determined efforts to carry on operations," Republic said.

Youngstown Sheet & Tube, the Nation's fifth largest steel maker, reported today second quarter net profit of $2,022,112, compared with $4,886,020 for the first three months. The second quarter profit was after all charges but without deduction for Federal surtax on undistributed profits.

Inland reported Tuesday net profit of $3,178,383 for the second quarter, compared with an all-time record of $5,008,774 in the first quarter.

Hershey Chocolate Corp.

Hesrshey Chocolate Corporation and subsidiaries, Hershey, Pa., for the quarter ended June 30, reported net profit of $658,819, equal after preferred dividend requirements to 58 cents a common share, against $662,134 or 58 cents in the like 1936 quarter.

Parke, Davis & Co.

Parke, Davis & Co., drug manufacturers, Detroit, Mich., for the June quarter, reported indicated net profit of $1,816,794, equal to 37 cents a common share, against $1,799,205, or 37 cents in the like 1936 quarter.

Loose-Wiles Biscuit Co.

Loose-Wiles Biscuit Co. and subsidiaries, for the June quarter reported indicated net profit of $147,103, equal to 18 cents a common share, against $288,309, or 45 cents, in the preceding quarter, and $339,987, or 55 cents in the June, 1936, quarter.

$60,000,000 Drop in Excess Bank Reserves

Gold Stocks Rise to 12.433 Billion, a New High Record.

Excess bank reserves dropped to near the $800,000,000 level during the week ended July 28. These idle funds of member banks in the Reserve system declined $60,000,000 to $810,000,000 for the week, the Federal Reserve Board reported last evening. The decrease followed a $90,000,000 drop last week, prior to which excess reserves had increased $210,000,000 in four weeks.

Excess reserves provide the base for the Nation's credit, and the supply of such funds thus exerts a powerful influence on credit conditions. In the past, Reserve officials have estimated $800,000,000 of excess reserves is adequate to maintain "easy money" conditions.

The decline for the week ended July 28 was traceable in part to $44,000,000 increase in Treasury deposits with Federal Reserve banks. This increase, which brought Treasury deposits to $228,000,000, presumably reflected a shift of funds from member banks to the Reserve institutions.

The board reported a $12,000,000 decline in money in circulation during the week to $6,424,000,000, or $301,000,000 over the same week last year.

Gold stocks rose $29,000,000 to a new record peak of $12,433,000,000.

Brokers' Loans Drop $1,000,000 for Week

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday that last week's loans to brokers and dealers on securities held by reporting member banks in New York City totaled $1,141,000,000. The week ended Wednesday and the total represented a decrease of $1,000,000 when compared with the previous week.

Loans for the corresponding week a year ago totaled $938,000,000

Corn Tumbles To New Bottom For This Year

Wave of Selling on Stop-Loss Orders Carries Price 4 Cents Lower.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 29.—Collapsing abruptly 4 cents a bushel the corn market late today struck a new bottom level of prices unreached heretofore this season

The fall of corn values took place in a storm of selling orders that were largely to stop losses on the part of previous speculative buyers. Leading traders said the corn market was inevitably adjusting itself to a feed situation which has gone from famine to plenty

At the close, corn futures were 1⅞ to 4 cents under yesterday's finish; September, 93⅜; December, 70@70¼; May, 71⅝. Wheat, 1¼ to 1½ down; September, 1.17@1.17⅛; December, 1.18⅞@1.19; May, 1.20⅝. The Market

Stocks Work Lower as Trading Diminishes; Steel Shares Are Resistant..

New York, July 29.—On diminished trading volume the bulk of the stock list flattened out and closed with fractional losses. Foreign currencies were dull and steady. Commodities were somewhat uncertain. September wheat finished 1⅝ cents down at 117¼ cents a bushel. Stock turnover of 650,000 shares was the smallest of the month.

Except for rays of light here and there on individual corporations, shed by publication of quarterly reports, the markets had little to digest. Most stocks that moved out of a narrow range responded to something or other affecting them exclusively: earnings, stock offerings, dividend changes and the like. The dog days are coming along without any appreciable change in the general situation this month.

Comparative peace on labor fronts still is regarded as mostly a truce, and trouble easily could break out once the Government gives a clearer indication of how it is going to jump on proposals to change the Wagner act, or if the Black-Connery wage and hour bill is passed. That measure alone, if passed, or so long as it remains a threat in Congress, is well suited to keep business enterprise from breaking out of bounds. Such considerations won't prevent corporations from producing all they can sell, but it naturally will restrain expansion involving the expenditure of large amounts of capital.

New Capital.

Most of the new capital raised in recent months has gone for replacement of working funds paid out in dividends under the undistributed profits law. With a few notable exceptions, as the Steel Corporation, little large scale plant expansion has taken place. Even for U. S. Steel the improvements were made as a means of increasing efficiency and thereby reducing costs, rather than to lift the productive capacity of the mills as a whole.

What influence the fighting in Spain and the new war in China is having on markets is difficult to say. The danger to this country is considerable in both areas, and the disturbances act as a drag on reviving international trade, but markets probably have become hardened to those risks. It is still the prevailing view that the autumn will bring some recovery from the summer recession in business.

Bonds were dull, with some weakness in low-grade railroad issues. Railroad shares also were far from buoyant, laboring under the disappointing June earnings reports, the threatened wage increases, and other campaigns against the solvency of many of the systems still out of the hands of receivers and trustees. The thrusts at the rails from various sources, with the goal of Government ownership and operation probably the moving force in many cases is helping to offset the favorable fact that traffic is still on the rise and that it promises to be better this autumn than it has been in several years.

Rail Shares.

Only fractions were lost by most of the railroad shares. Central held around its previous closing price. Chesapeake & Ohio gained a little. Public utility securities could draw little interest and most of them worked lower. The dullness of the market was illustrated by Telephone's performance. No sale took place until toward the close of the fourth hour of trading.

Chrysler and General Motors moved in opposite directions. Chrysler managed to look firm, but General Motors continued to labor under a cloud of lower earnings and uncertainty over its dealings with the C. I. O. In miscellaneous groups, Lowes extended its rise into new high ground on confirmation of rumors that a good sized extra dividend is on the way. Munsingwear, with a report published today, sank to a new low price on a 3 point fall. Royal Typewriter on the curb broke 8 points on a poor profits statement. The various classes of West Penn Electric rose 1 to 4 points.

The steel group held firmer than any other section. Leading steels hardened moderately. U. S. Steel common ranged above its previous closing price with a good fractional gain most of the day. National and Youngstown improved. Bethlehem, with an earnings statement to be published after the close of the market, rose nearly 2 points. American Rolling Mill, aided by a good showing in second quarter operations, advanced on larger turnover. Wheeling rose sharply.

Lively Auction.

There were plenty of bidders, some representing principals as far away as Turkey, at the auction of the chief remaining assets of the Internationl Match Corporation, bankrupt. A Turkish gentleman named Mustapha Yesis tried to buy in some of the Turkish assets and laid down 25 $1,000 bills, which were returned to him after his highest bid had been topped. The International Match Realization Co., of Bermuda, got the bulk of the choice assets at a price of $7,250,000, which was more than the $6,500,000 it offered June 16 for certain assets. This realization company represents debenture holders, scattered throughout the world, who would not join in the formation of a company under American laws with the risk of discriminatory taxation; hence the Bermuda charter. The stock of Federal Match and Union Match, bids for which were raised $1,000 at a time, finally went to Irving Reynolds, an attorney representing persons unknown, for $996,000 after the Bermuda company had bid as high as it felt justified in going.

SEC And Secrecy.

Zeal for secrecy on the part of the Securities and Exchange Commission seems to be growing more intense. Three months ago the SEC asked a selected list of nineteen brokerage firms members of the New York Stock Exchange, to report on the condition of clients' accounts, showing the number of "free" accounts and those in the "restricted" class, i. e., under-margined. Results of the first report were published exclusively in The Sun on June 9. The second report was published exclusively in The Sun on July 12. The third report, showing condition of accounts as of July 20, has been made, and the composite results soon will be sent to the brokerage firms reporting, but apparently the SEC has been using a little frightfulness ti insure secrecy.

Deficit.

The Treasury daily statement for July 26 reveals that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation had returned $30,000,000 more to the Treasury, presumably the proceeds of the sale of Triborough Bridge bonds, increasing to $60,000,000 payments of this kind it has made this month. The $30,000,000 payment July 26 cut the Treasury's deficit for the month from $204,000,000 to $179,000,000. The sad part of it is that the deficit has to be reduced by the sale of capital assets instead of by curtailment of expenditures.

Powder.

Hercules Powder recently advanced to anticipate the need of an additional stock offering. It fell 4 points today with the news of the offering, which incidentally will involve rights worth about 7¾. The stimulus given mining by our gold and silver policies has been a great boon to the powder companies.

Baldwin.

At long last, as they say, the Baldwin Locomotive Works has asked the Stock Exchange to list when issued securities under the recapitalization plan. Listing presumably would greatly relieve the unpleasant situation whereby arbitraging has taken place in securities selling at a great price disparity, with costly results to numerous individuals and to at least three brokerage firms.

Foreign Exchange.

By the Associated Press.

Leading European monies gained against the dollar yesterday.

In New York the pound sterling rose ¾ of a cent to 4.97⅞ cents. In earlier London trading the dollar closed lower at 4.97¼ to the pound.

New York quotations for the French franc were lifted .00¼ of a cent to 3.75 cents. Improvement followed yesterday's decision of the French government to tighten restrictions on speculation in francs for delivery in 90 days.

In Paris earlier the dollar had finished at the equivalent of 3.747 cents to the franc.

3 Cigarettes a Day For Everyone in U. S.

Americans are smoking more cigarettes than ever before. Treasury reports showed yesterday that 78,094,812,102 cigarettes were produced in the first half of this year. It was a new high and an average of 604 cigarettes, or more than three a day, for every person in the country.

By Thomas M. Cahill.

A delegation headed by President Robert E. Buckley, of the National Permanent Building Association and the District of Columbia Building and Loan League, will attend the convention of the United States Building and Loan League in Los Angeles, October 6-8. This meeting is of particular local interest in that Secretary Edward C. Baltz, of the Perpetual Building Association, now first vice president of the national league, is scheduled for elevation to the presidency.

Other local building and loan officials who contemplate attending are Carl J. Bergmann, treasurer of the Washington Permanent Building Association and a past president of the local league; Arthur G. Bishop, chairman of the board of Perpetual Building Association; Samuel Scrivener, a director of that association; George Emmerich, of the Northern Liberty Building Association, and C. Clinton James, attorney of the Columbia Permanent Building Association, who is chairman of the legislative committee and a past president of the national league.

Credit Manager's View.

In the monthly review received by the Washington Association of Credit Men from Manager Henry H. Heiman, of the National Association of Credit Men, the latter states that resistance to the drastic decline which business has shown recently, despite labor troubles, provides testimony to the strong fundamental which has been and still is current.

The recent decrease in general business is traceable, he thinks, to three prominent causes: seasonal influences that are generally operative in the summer, labor disturbances and their implications and a natural reaction to the optimistic advance buying in earlier months.

Mr. Heimann reminds that electric power production at the end of the half year was 10 per cent ahead of the 1936 period and that automobile output early in July was exceeding last year's total. Altogether, he notes that capital goods activity early in July was approximately 15 per cent ahead of 1936.

In the past few months, he recalls, coincident with the rise in residential building, there has been a decided increase in construction costs, both as to materials and labor. In some sections, these have risen by 10 to 15 per cent. Injudicious advances in building costs, he predicts, will have one inevitable result, and that is a decline in demand. He warns that firms active in the construction or related fields should watch this trend closely.

Building permits in the Fifth, or local, Federal Reserve District, in June, were lower than the total for June, 1936, this being the first decline reported by the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, Va., in more than four years. Total of permits for last month was $7,602,196, as compared with $8,558,629 in the month last year.

Bank's Subscription.

Secretary Edward C. Baltz, of the Perpetual Building Association, who is also vice chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Winston-Salem, N. C., announced this week that the bank had subscribed for $3,500,000 of the new issue of $28,000,000 Federal Home Loan Bank's 1¼ per cent consolidated debentures dated July 1, 1937, and maturing July 1, 1938. The new debentures are priced at 100 3-16 to yield 1.04 per cent. The subscription made by the Winston-Salem bank is for the benefit of building and loan associations here and elsewhere in the bank's territory.

Jeffress Joins Gillet & Co.

Announcement has been made that Newton Jeffress, formerly with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, has become associated with Gillet & Co., Inc., with Washington offices in the Woodward Building. Gillet & Co. was established in 1920, and conducts a general investment securities business. Charles R. Connolly, manager of the local office, is an officer and director of the company, having been connected with it since 1928. The main office of the company is at Baltimore and it has branches in Philadelphia and Williamsport

Banking Notes.

Edgar N. Brawner has been elected a director of the National Bank of Washington to succeed his father, the late Henry N. Brawner, jr. He is a vice president of Chestnut Farms and Chevy Chase Dairy corporations.

The Bank Women's Club's monthly dinner was held this week at The Highlands. Miss S. Winifred Burwell, club president, presided. Mrs. Lillian Cox Athey was a guest of the club and gave an interesting talk on her work as a nature writer. Her book, "Along Nature's Trail," is just off the press. She is also editor of National Nature News and a syndicate column on the same subject.

Edward L. Hillyer, a vice president of Union Trust Co., has left for a vacation in Europe. Mr. Hillyer is a past president of Washington Stock Exchange.

Richard D. Bond, representing Poor's Publishing Co., in Washington, Maryland, Virginia and Delaware, has been visiting at the company's editorial offices at Wellesley, Mass., and also attended the firm's annual convention in Boston.

Assistant Vice President C. J. Gockeler, of Hamilton National Bank, will spend his vacation at Ventnor, N. J.

Stock Issues Through SEC Set a Record

Half Proceeds of All Issues Ear-marked to Pay Indebtedness.

The Securites and Exchange Commission published yesterday its tables showing the total amount of registration statements for new securities which became fully effective in the first half of 1937 under the securities act of 1933. The tables show that: (1) Gross proceeds were 15 per cent below the first half of 1936, but three times higher than in the first half of 1935; (2) Both in percentage of the total and in aggregate amount, estimated net proceeds to be used for plant expansion and working capital was the highest for any first half year since registration began under the securites act; (3) Effective registrations of common and preferred stock issues were the highest for any six-month period under the act.

For the first half of 1937, registration statements for securities with estimated gross proceeds of $2,286,506,000 became effective under the act. This compared with $2,664,947,000 during the first half of 1936. The smaller aggregate of effectively registered issues is a reflection, in part, of the less favorable capital market conditions that prevailed during the period.

Some Issues Withheld.

Despite the withholding of a substantial amount of contemplated financing, effective registrations of common and preferred stock issues were higher in amount during the first six months of 1937 than in any previous half year under the securities act. From January 1 to June 30, 1937, a total of $806,344,000 of common stock issues and $371,829,000 of preferred stock issues became fully effective, together representing 51.5 per cent of total effective registrations during the period.

The main use proposed to be made of cash funds was the repayment of indebtedness, toward which $799,667,000, or 50.5 per cent, of the half-year's net cash proceeds were to be applied. In addition, $176,720,000, or 11.2 per cent of the cash proceeds, were proposed for the retirement of outstanding preferred stock issues, a parallel action to the registrants' direct offer of exchange of $88,277,000 of securities registered during the half-year for other outstanding preferred issues.

Approximately $270,393,000, or 17.1 per cent, were to be added to the registrants' working capital and $121,058,000, or 7.7 per cent, were to be used for expenditures for additional plant and equipment. About 10.8 per cent of the proceeds was to be used for the purchase of securities for investment, mainly by investment and trading companies, and the remainder of 2.7 per cent for various other purposes.

Bank Clearings For Past Week Turn Upward

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 29.—Although bank clearings for the current period fell slightly below those of the week preceding, the aggregate was considerably larger than in the corresponding week of 1936, when it dropped abruptly from the previous week.

Total clearings for 22 leading cities for the week ended July 28, as reported to Dun & Bradstreet, was $5,451,538,000, compared with $4,637,981,000 in the like period of 1936, a gain of 17.5 per cent. This contrasted with a loss of 0.3 per cent in the similar comparison for the week preceding.

At New York, the aggregate was $3,321,633,000 against $2,719,540,000 for the same week a year ago, an increase of 22.1 per cent. Excluding New York, the turnover amounted to $2,129,905,000, compared with $1,918,441,000 in the corresponding 1936 week, a rise of 11.0 per cent.

Clearings at leading cities, together with percentage gains and losses compared with those of 1936, follow:

(000 omitted.)	Week July 28, 1937.	Per cent change.
Boston	$206,924	4.4

Washington Clearings.

The Washington Clearing House reports total clearings of $20,747,171.17 for the week ended July 28, which compares with $18,065,215.12 for the corresponding period last year, an increase of 14.8 per cent. Compared with a total of $25,842,778.32 for the previous week, clearings decreased 15.8 per cent.

Kreuger Investors Get Nothing for Stock

New York, July 29 (AP).—Echoes from the past of the late Ivar Kreuger, the "match king," were heard today at a Federal referee's bankruptcy sale when the remaining assets of the International Match Corporation—the American keystone of Kreuger and Toll's world-wide manipulated empire of monopolies and high finance—were sold at public auction.

Twenty-seven cents on the dollar to bondholders and creditors, and nothing for those who held around $150,000,000 in stock—this is the record to date, and there will be only a few cents more, if there is any more. Assets sold today before Referee Oscar W. Ehrhorn brought $8,246,000. With a previous liquidating dividend paid out by the International Match Liquidating Corporation, the total was brought to 27 per cent.

Class I Railroad Net 2.76% on Investment

Class I railroads of the United States in the first six months of 1937 had a net railway operating income of $297,341,777, which was at the annual rate of return of 2.76 per cent on their property investment, according to the Bureau of Railway Economics of the Association of American Railroads yesterday.

In the first six months of 1936 their net railway operating income was $238,016,427, or 2.22 per cent, on their property investment, and in the first six months of 1930 their net railway operating income was $369,416,251, or 3.46 per cent on property investment.

Sale Houses 66

HARRISON STREET
JUST WEST OF CONN. AVE.
$15,500.

Harrison st., just west of Conn. ave., $15,500. There is no more attractive street in all of Chevy Chase, D. C., than this one. The house is an unusually comfortable one with 11 rooms and 2 baths. The lot is large and well planted. If you need a bit more than the average space this is a fine value in an outstanding location.

If you would appreciate a fine example of New England Colonial architecture, happily located on a wide lot, generously shaded by full-grown forest trees, see this one. The natural beauty of the setting has been enhanced by winding dry stone walls, rock gardens, terraces and an outdoor living room featuring a fountain and lily pool. You will find everything about the house in keeping with its unusual and lovely setting. The large panelled living room and dining room overlook the garden and the kitchen is the "last word." An attractive cocktail room or den and lavatory complete the first floor. Upstairs are four bedrooms, two baths and attic. The basement features a two-car garage, maid's room and bath and recreation room. If you want a really fine home, reasonably priced, see this one at $21,000.

$700 is all the cash required to buy this practically new semidetached brick house in a fine Northwest section. The rooms are large, the streets and alleys are paved, it is a high location with an almost constant breeze. Owner leaving city has put price right for quick sale.

Chevy Chase, $9,950. This is unquestionably one of the best values we have offered in this lovely country club section for months. The house, just west of Connecticut ave. on a well-landscaped lot, 65 feet wide, is a particularly pleasing early American style. While the house is several years old, the equipment is modern and there is everything necessary for luxurious living, including a two-car garage. If you have experienced difficulty finding an attractive home in a refined neighborhood at this price, let us show you this one.

Fire Kills Five Aboard Steamer Near Baltimore

Many Others Are Thought Dead in Bay Disaster.

were en route to Langley Field, Va. They said they had enlisted in the air corps and were to be stationed at Langley.

Further supporting the explosion theory were accounts given by persons watching the flaming ship from points along the shore. One of these was Elmer H. Jackson, jr., of Annapolis, who described the burning as a ball of flame that shot high into the air and enveloped the vessel.

"Ball of Flame" Rose.

"We saw the glow rise off the decks of the ship and shoot high into the air with a big flare that seemed to spread around the ship.

"It was just as dusk was falling that it happened. We hadn't noticed the boat until we saw the rising ball of flame. We heard no explosion, but we were pretty far away.

"It looked as though the vessel was trying to run aground. They seemed to be trying to put out lifeboats.

"All around you could see other bay craft changing their courses and making for the stricken steamer."

A large fleet of rescue craft was mobilized immediately at the scene. Under orders from President Roosevelt at the White House, five rescue boats were put out from the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

In Washington, the Coast Guard sent out the cutter Apache, then at anchor at Fort Washington, and two more cutters and a patrol boat. Several ocean-going vessels, including the steamship Arkansas, were standing by to pick up survivors.

Man Rescues Eleven.

Early reports said that C. M. Twilley, Baltimore automobile dealer who has a home at Pinehurst, near the scene of the fire, rescued 11 persons, including the ship's master, Capt. Charles O. Brooks. Brooks, it was said, stayed aboard the ship almost until she had burned to the water line.

Seven ambulances were sent to shore points closest to the burning ship and Red Cross headquarters in Washington ordered its chapters at Annapolis and Baltimore to lend all emergency aid possible.

The Coast Guard radio picked up a report that the Navy tug Kewaydin was standing by within 1,000 yards of the stricken vessel.

High Wind Fans Blaze.

A high wind was fanning the flames and small rescue boats were prevented by the intense heat from drawing close enough to the steamer to be of immediate help in the rescue work.

Some life boats were lowered, filled with passengers, but the number was not immediately available.

Those who were not able to make the lifeboats either were burned to death or leaped into the bay.

Survivors coming ashore at Arminger, Md., said that many passengers jumped overboard and were picked up by volunteer rescuers who put out in boats from Bayside.

They wore life belts, but most of them had abandoned their clothing.

Officials of the steamship company put the number of those aboard the ship at 96. They said they could not give the number of passengers.

Fishing Boat Helps.

In addition to the cutter Apache, the Coast Guard sent the cutters Cahoone and Carrabasset to the scene, but only the Apache was close enough to be of assistance and last night advices here were that she would be unable to arrive before morning.

A 38-foot fishing boat with Capt. E. R. Lewis and three Baltimore city firemen aboard was closest to the ship when the fire broke out.

Lewis said he noticed smoke issuing from the middle of the boat. The smoke burst abruptly into flames. Lewis said he drove his boat within 150 yards of the ship until the heat stopped him.

"Fifty of them (passengers) were huddled in the bow of the ship, he said. "They were screaming and pleading for us to come closer. A man aboard edged along a ledge at the side of the ship, carrying a rope from the stern. He fastened it to the ship and about 20 persons slid down it into the water."

Lewis said he picked up two men survivors, both of them unconscious.

Flood Lights Used.

Flood lights were rushed to the scene from Baltimore and were played upon the water, picking up here and there a survivor. As the flames died down, the water became littered with boats of all sizes as scores of persons put out from shore to aid in the rescue.

The boat was still burning shortly before midnight, about three hours after Dr. Frank Ogden, Baltimore fire department surgeon, sitting on the lawn of his home at Gibson Island, said he heard a terrific explosion and saw flames shoot skyward amidships of the steamer.

Dr. Ogden said in two or three minutes the ship was a mass of flames.

At Gibson Island where some of the survivors were landed, Robert C. Jones, a volunteer rescue worker, said he heard Capt. Brooks say he could not understand what caused the fire but that it seemed like an explosion.

To Send Planes.

At the White House where President Roosevelt was keeping in touch with the disaster, it was announced that airplanes would be sent out from the Naval Academy to make a search of the waters at daybreak.

A total of nine ships were ordered last night to the scene by the Navy and Coast Guard.

In Baltimore, a radio station broadcast a call for every available taxi and automobile to aid in carrying the injured and burned to hospitals.

The City of Baltimore was built in 1911 and is a three-deck steamer with a length of 297.5 feet. She was built for the Chesapeake Steamship Co. by the Maryland Steel Co. at Sparrows Point.

A sister ship of the City of Norfolk, she carried a crew of 53 men and was of 2,379 gross tons. With the City of Norfolk, she plied between Baltimore and Norfolk, carry ing passengers and cargo.

Steamer Crashed Into Freighter at Same Spot in 1936

On a pleasant July night just a year ago, Seven Foot Knoll, scene of last night's Chesapeake Bay tragedy, was the center of widespread rescue efforts when the Steamer State of Virginia, with Maryland's Governor, Harry W. Nice, aboard collided with a freighter.

The boat was returning from a two-day convention cruise with 200 persons aboard. It was a night similar to last night, clear and balmy and with a moon. Then apparently without reason she struck the Golden Harvest at almost the precise spot which saw the end of the City of Baltimore yesterday. Although the excursion was four hours late reaching Baltimore and much concern was felt for the safety of the Governor and his party, no one was injured. Quick thinking averted a panic.

Near this same spot, exactly six years ago, another City of Baltimore, this one a transatlantic liner, had a similar unexplainable accident. Bound for Europe she collided with an oil tanker in broad daylight. The other City of Baltimore listed dangerously, but was grounded in shallow water and her 50 passengers returned to Baltimore.

The ship which burned to the waterline last night was damaged by fire five weeks ago as she lay at her dock in Norfolk. The fire originated in the galley but firemen managed to check the spread of flames and she made her regular run the next night.

Col. Tupes' Burial Set for Tomorrow

Col. Herschel Tupes, U. S. Army, retired, who died at the Veteran's Administration Hospital, Sawtelle, Calif., on January 30, will be buried with military honors at 2 p. m. tomorrow in Arlington Cemetery. Chaplain Ora J. Cohee will officiate.

Born in Ohio, May 2, 1874, Col. Tupes was a West Point graduate in the class of 1892. In 1919 he was on duty here in the office of the inspector general. He was retired from active duty on December 31, 1921.

During the World War Col. Tupes served with the A. E. F. in France as instructor in the Infantry School of the First Corps. Later he was made commandant of the schools of the First Corps. He also served as assistant chief of staff of the Thirty-second Division, and inspector of the First Division.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Harriet W. Tupes, of Los Angeles, Calif.

Alpheus F. Price Dies at His Home

Alpheus F. Price, resident of Washington for 54 years, died yesterday at his home, 3503 Tenth street northeast. He had been ill for more than two years.

A native of Charles County, Md., Mr. Price was employed for many years in the Northeast Market.

His wife, Mrs. Blanche A. Price, two sons, Richard L. Price and Francis K. Price, and four grandchildren, all of Washington, survive him.

Funeral services will be held at his residence at 8:30 tomorrow morning, followed by requiem mass at 9 in St. Anthony's Catholic Church, Twelfth and Monroe streets northeast. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Booth Tarkington Toils As Usual on Birthday

Kennebunkport, Me., July 29 (AP).—Booth Tarkington didn't let his sixty-eighth birthday interfere with his work today. The novelist, noted for portrayals of American youth, did his usual morning dictation on a new novel. A motorboat spin in the afternoon was followed by an informal dinner. His few guests included Kenneth Roberts, historical novelist, and Mrs. Roberts.

Ship's Flames Keep Rescuers From Her Rail

he arrived on shore he described the hell from which he had escaped.

"I was standing in the salon with Robert Long and Paul Shippe, who had just enlisted from Shamokin, Pa.," he said.

"Somebody in the crew ran through the room yelling the boat was on fire. Then some more of the crew rushed through toward the hold of the ship dragging a hose. Smoke was billowing out of the hold.

"In a few mnutes the crew came up, gasping for air. They had been forced out of the hold by the heat and smoke. The passengers crowded toward the forward deck. Officers came around and told us to get into life preservers.

"The passengers put on the preservers, but in a few minutes the ship was bursting with flames. The fire got so bad we had to go over the side and hang by our hands. I saw many passengers hanging onto the ship rails.

"Then the fire got hotter. It was terrible. We couldn't stand it any longer. Some of us dropped off and more passengers fell off into the water."

Bing and his two Coast Guard companions were rescued by launches. Bing said after reaching shore, "The last thing I remember was dropping into the water."

Elmer M. Jackson, jr., a Baltimore newspaperman on a fishing trip, was first attracted to the Bay steamer when he noticed what he described as "ball of fire" on the water.

"We saw the glow rise off the decks and shoot high in the air in flame. It seemed to spread around the ship."

Alex Taylor, golf professional at the Rolling Club at Baltimore, said that many of the passengers were at dinner "when an explosion occurred."

"We rushed to the bow of the boat," he said, "where there was less flame. We stayed there in the hope the ship would be able to make shore, but after what seemed hours of waiting in insufferable heat, it got so bad most of the passengers and crew were forced into lifeboats or jumped overboard."

Ernest E. Robinson, president of the Pinehurst Co., saw the fire from ashore. He said he was driving along the bay when he noticed the flames.

"It was like the moon coming up—a red glow that was reflected in the water," he said. "I drove along, then looked back, it wasn't a glow any more. The whole horizon was lighted up and the ship—for I realized then that it was a ship—was aflame from stem to stern.

"I could see people jumping into water despite the distance between the ship and me. The whole bay was illuminated and I could see boats of all sizes rushing to the steamer's side."

Realistic Battle Will Be Staged By Md. Guards

Infantry to Use Blanks and Flares in Sham Fight Today.

By Phillip J. Austensen.
A Staff Correspondent.

Camp Albert C. Ritchie, Cascade, Md., July 29.—Blank ammunition, smoke candles and flares will add a realistic touch to a sham battle which will be staged by the First Infantry, Maryland National Guard, near Harbaugh Cnurch tomorrow.

One battalion, commanded by Capt. Guy Anders, of Frederick, will take up a position in defense and the other battalion, commanded by Maj. Stephen Fuller and Maj. Harry E. Flook, will attack. The battalion commanders will use their own initiative in the problem, which is planned to make real the battle they have fought on the sandboxes in their armories all winter.

Regular Army officers detailed as instructors will act as umpires in the battle, but will not interfere.

The battle will mark the closing of the two weeks' annual training encampment of the regiment at this camp. The units will return to their home stations Saturday.

The three battalions today engaged in problems in the areas near camp.

An exhibition guard mount was staged tonight by Company G, of Cumberland, with field music from Cumberland taking part. Capt. Randolph Milholland was officer of the day, Lieut. John C. Golden was officer of the guard and Lieut. Abraham W. Miller, adjutant.

2 CCC Youths Killed.

Red Wing, Minn., July 29 (AP).—A truck killed two Nebraska CCC youths today and injured nine. The vehicle overturned after the driver swerved to avoid collision with an automobile.
